HOW TWO CANADIANS DIED

Details of the Deaths in South Africa of Major Ogilvy and Trooper William Jones of Toronto.

LATTER WAS SHOT THRU THE HEART

By Ambushed Boers and the Former Was Killed By an Old Man.

Ottawa, April 2.—A letter received from a member of "C" division, S.A.C., written Feb. 21, says that while two Canadians were going to take up a position at a lookout post, they were surprised by the Boers, and one of the men, William Jones of Toronto, was shot thru the heart before he had covered ten yards. The other ran about three hundred yards with four bullet holes in him. The most dangerous was thru his right arm, another in the thigh and still another in the knee. The doctor says he will recover. There were 12 Boers altogether. After the men fell they jumped on their horses and galloped away for dear life, the letter adds.

Captain A. J. Boyd, formerly of the 10th Royal Grenadiers, Toronto, now of the S.A.C., in a letter, gives an account of how Major Ogilvy was killed. His force met a party of Boers, and he rushed almost into them with his revolver drawn, ahead of everybody. An old man put up his rifle, shot the horse thru the head and the bullet went on into Ogilvy's abdomen. The horse was killed instantly. Ogilvy lingered until the next day, when he died just as he was nearing Rietfontein.

Nearly all infants are more or less subject to diarrhoea and such complaints while teething, and as this period of their lives is the most critical mothers should not be without a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. This medicine is a specific for such complaints and is highly spoken of by those who have used it. The proprietors claim it will cure any case of cholera or summer complaint.

Stevenson Lodge At Home.

The Assembly Hall of the Temple Building was in gala attire last night on the occasion of the annual at-home of Stevenson Lodge, No. 218, A.F. & A.M. The first part of the evening was devoted to a musical program, which was admirably carried out by Harry R. Banks, the popular basso, Alex. Gorrie, Arthur Blight, T. B. Taylor, W. G. Armstrong, Miss Alice McCarron, Miss Marion Apted and Miss Violet Apted. The chair was occupied by the W. M., John Stevens. Also on the platform was John Watson, D.D.G.M. After the concert, dancing was enjoyed by the 150 couples, music being furnished by D'Alesandro's Orchestra. At midnight the guests partook of a sumptuous repast, served in the red room of the Temple Cafe under the direction of A. H. Gammon.

Classical Association Dinner.

The Ontario Classical Association held an enjoyable dinner last night in the Temple Cafe. The retiring president, W. N. Bell, presided, and about fifty were present. An interesting toast list was carried out, the speakers being Chancellor Burwash, Dr. Gordon Laing of Chicago University, Principal Hutton, Prof. Campbell, H. I. Strong, Rev. C. A. Woolsey and J. E. Hudson. Interspersed with the speeches were vocal and instrumental selections. The dinner was served by A. H. Gammon.

CONFERENCE WAS UNSUCCESSFUL.

Striking Polson Pattern Makers Meet the Bosses.

The patternmakers in the Polson Iron and Ship Yards, who have been out on strike for the past two weeks, held a conference last night with a representative of the firm in Charles E. Ireson's Black Horse Hotel, with a view to bringing about a settlement. The conference continued for over two hours, but it was unsuccessful. About 15 patternmakers were present.

Two weeks ago they presented an ultimatum to the firm for an increase from $2.75 to $3 a day. The company refused to accede to the demand, and the men went out on strike. At the present time there is a big demand for patternmakers in the big shipbuilding cities of the United States, principally New York, Boston, Cleveland and Detroit, and several of the Toronto strikers have crossed the border, where, it is said, they are being paid nearly double the wages they received here. Others of the strikers would also go to the United States only they have families here, while some have purchased their own homes in Toronto, and do not want to move. They say that they will continue the fight until the firm yield.

The firm, on the other hand, have been placed in a difficult position thru the strike of the men. It is at the present time, said an officer of the company to The World, that the services of the patternmakers are most required. The men are said to be organized to a man in Toronto, and the firm has found it to be impossible to secure others to take their places.

IMPERIALISM IN EDUCATION.

New York Commercial: It will be in strict consonance with the character, the ideals, the aspirations and the breadth of the man if it shall turn out to be true that the bulk of Cecil Rhodes' great fortune has been left to his country for the promotion, as it has been described, "of a vast imperial plan of education." It would be essentially unlike him to have devised his money for any purpose that did not comprehend vastness, beneficence and ultimately power; to have distributed it—no matter how widely and beneficently, as such things are generally understood—would have been only to take from it the force that comes of magnitude and compactness. To keep that fortune in bulk, to be employed strictly for one purpose—the intellectual betterment of the British race, wherever in the world the "Union Jack" flies, together with a fostering of the imperial sentiment—that comes about as near perpetuating the work and the influence of the man himself as can easily be imagined.

It had, no doubt, been impressed upon him many times, and with increasing force in the less than 50 years that he lived, that opposition to his work and aims came largely from ignorance—from the inability to measure the world and its forces and possibilities as he could—and thus that education along the lines suggested by his imperialistic ideals would make easier the work of those on whom his mantle might fall.

So, tho Rhodes be dead, his soul goes marching on, and his great work may be continued in the employment of his fortune for the training of "empire-builders."

LAKE SUPERIOR STUCK.

St. John, N.B., April 2.—Several more scow loads of cargo were taken from the steamer Lake Superior to-day. Manager D. W. Campbell of the Elder-Dempster Line, owners of the stranded vessel, said to-night that the lightering operations would be suspended for a time until the freshets subsided. The hole in the steamer's bottom is just beneath the stoke hole. The plan now is to procure powerful pumps, clear out the water, patch the damaged part and then float the ship. Representatives of Halifax firms, owning the appliances needed, are here, and an offer was made by one to float the steamer. They said the chances were favorable. A representative of a Toronto firm is expected here to-morrow.

ADVANCE IN OCEAN RATES.

New Schedule is From $15 to $23 Higher Than Old.

Montreal, April 2.—The agreement touching a uniform and increased passenger rate, which has been brewing for some time, and which was recently entered into by almost all of the trans-Atlantic passenger steamship lines, has resulted in the adoption by the various companies in the combine of a new tariff schedule which takes effect at once, and which shows an advance in saloon passenger rates of from $15 to $35.

SNOWBOUND OUT IN DAKOTA

Passengers for Four Days and Five Nights Lived on Two Frugal Meals a Day.

DIFFICULTY TO KEEP FROM FREEZING

How a Wire Was Tapped to Bring Aid to an Attempted Suicide.

St. Paul, Minn., April 2.—Passengers arriving to-day on a Great Northern train, due last Friday, tell of being snowbound for four days and five nights on the prairies of North Dakota in the midst of the worst blizzard the Northwest has seen in many years, with only food enough for two frugal meals a day, and with such a small amount of fuel that the ladies had to wrap themselves in blankets, and the men had to wear their overcoats day and night to keep from freezing.

Late Thursday afternoon the train crawled out of Williston in the hope of being able to reach Minot, some 14 miles east, before night. About midway, at a place called Ray, where there are only a siding, a water tank and a coal shed, it was stalled. The engineer started the engine back to Williston for aid, taking the conductor along, but the engine got stuck in a drift in a rut near town and had to be abandoned. This left the train of eight coaches and about 250 passengers alone on the siding with all communication cut off.

There was an incipient riot on the first day. The second-class passengers insisted that they must have as much or more food than others, and, as they were in larger numbers and had more ravenous appetites, it was difficult to confine them to their quota. The first-class passengers insisted that the women and children should be fed, and taken care of first, and, after some argument, the second-class passengers were prevailed upon to subside.

Monday evening Prof. Colegrove of the University of Washington, who had been despondent, cut his throat with a razor. There was a physician on the train, but he had no instruments, and it became absolutely necessary to get communication with one of the neighboring towns. The passengers desperately broke open every thing in the train chest. In the conductor's box, they found a telegraph instrument. A young electrician faced the blizzard, tapped one of the wires and attached the instrument, notifying the operators at both Minot and Williston of what had occurred.

A snowplow was started from each place, in front of an engine, bearing a surgeon. The one from Minot, after a hard night's work, reached the siding early the following morning, and the wounded man was removed on the first train to St. Paul, where he was cared for at the City Hospital. The almost famished passengers, who had suffered from the cold and exposure, were given food and warm berths in the first train pushed thru drifts. The rotary plow made one trip thru the drift between Ray and Minot, but the snow piled in so rapidly that it was necessary for the rotary to pass thru again and to precede the passenger thru the cut.

Prof. Colegrove's jugular vein is partially severed. It is not believed he can recover. He had been ill, and had decided to spend a month with friends and relatives at Hamilton, N. Y.

SIMS RICHARDS DEAD.

Well-Known Vocalist Passed Away Last Night.

Samuel Richardson, better known as "Sims" Richards," who ten years ago was Toronto's most popular tenor singer, died yesterday morning in the Western Hospital. Mr. Richardson had been in the hospital for the past three weeks. He passed away about 10 o'clock. Deceased was 54 years of age. He was born in London, Eng., and at the age of 8 years was a paid chorister in St. Stephen's Church choir. From 9 to 11 years of age he led the singing of 1000 children in the Sunday School of Eccleston Square Congregational Church. In 1869 he came to this country, settling in Gravenhurst, where he led the choir of St. Thomas' Church. For seven years he was leader of a church choir at Rosseau. He returned to England, where he had his voice trained, and on returning to America went to New York. There he secured a position in the choir of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher's church. Later he sang on several occasions in Talmage's church. In 1882 he came to Toronto, and made his first appearance here in the Philharmonic Society's concert. Mr. Richardson was a sergeant-major and drill instructor in the Third Middlesex Regiment before leaving England. He was an expert swordsman, and for some years conducted an archery store on Yonge-street. He was a member of the Church of England, and a strong temperance advocate. He was also a member of Doric Lodge, A.F. & A.M.

The funeral will take place to-morrow from his late residence, 78 Clinton-street, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

BATHHOUSE JOHN WON.

Chicago, April 2.—The Republicans and Democrats each made a net gain of one alderman in the city election held to-day. The new council will consist of 39 Republicans, 30 Democrats, 1 Independent. The old council consisted of 38 Republicans, 29 Democrats and 3 Independents.

The hottest fight of the campaign was in the First Ward, where a determined effort was made by the opponents of John Coughlin, known as "Bath-house," to defeat him. It was the only ward in the city where anything like a full vote was polled. Coughlin won easily, however, securing a majority of 2605 votes over David L. Frank, the Republican candidate.

The men elected to the offices of assessor, collector, clerk and supervisor will never enter upon their duties, for the reason that the same election which gave them their positions wiped out those positions.

Among the questions of public policy voted upon were municipal ownership of street car systems, gas works and other public utilities, and the nomination for candidates by vote at the primaries instead of by the usual custom of holding city conventions. All of these were favorably voted upon. None of the votes save that on the abolishment of the town offices carried action with it. The others are merely expressive of the wish of the people.

Against the British.

Caracas, Venezuela, April 2.—The Republica, a semi-official newspaper, has recently published several indignant articles to the authorities of the British Island of Trinidad, on account of the hospitality shown the Mato's revolutionary steamer Bolivar, formerly the Liberador and the Ban Righ, in permitting her to enter the harbor of Port of Spain and to coal and repair there, notwithstanding the fact that friendly relations exist between Great Britain and Venezuela.

The Republica urges the Venezuela government immediately to make reprisals against Trinidad by excluding all vessels from the island from the ports of Venezuela, and by the imposition of an additional duty of 30 per cent. on all goods brought to Venezuela by British steamers touching at Trinidad. The Republica also urges Venezuela to demand an indemnity from Great Britain for damages resulting from the operations of the Bolivar, and cites the Alabama case as a precedent for such action.

UGLY MEN FASCINATE PRETTY WOMEN

One of the most remarkable traits of femininity is the tendency of women to fall in love with men whose plainness of feature is obvious to the point of positive ugliness, and in all ages and countries this tendency has been strikingly demonstrated.

Mirabeau, one of the leading spirits of the French Revolution, a man whose face was hideously pock-marked and whose figure was short and unwieldly, exercised a fascination over the fair sex which was little short of marvelous. It is said, indeed, that no woman could resist this Caliban of politics, whose only attractiveness lay in his undoubted gift of eloquence. After his death his rooms were found to contain numberless love letters from all sorts and conditions of women, many of whom declared their passion in hyperbolic strain. And yet Mirabeau was so ugly that his hideousness passed into a byword in the streets of Paris at the period in question.

At the present time there is a woman confined in a private asylum, suffering from melancholia brought about by an unrequited love affair. The object of this unfortunate creature's worship is a certain comic singer whose pretensions to good looks are anything but great, and, as a matter of fact, he is considered by many people to be the ugliest comedian upon the stage.

For many months the admiring girl wrote ardent letters to the player, and, moreover, was in the habit of awaiting his exit from the stage door, when she would press upon him flowers, jewelry and other gifts. Eventually her conduct became so pronounced that the actor, who is a married man, communicated with her parents, and the latter took the young lady away from the city forthwith. However, she pined incessantly after her unsightly hero, and soon had to be conveyed to the sanitarium, where she now remains—a victim of a hopeless passion for one whose ugliness is as conspicuous as his talent.

Some years ago the writer encountered a charming woman who informed him that she possessed an absolute worship for plain-featured men. There was a certain pathos in their visages, she averred, which constrained her deep admiration; and eventually she proved her consistency by marrying a gentleman whose countenance went farther to prove the Darwinian theory of the relationship of man to the ape than a thousand discourses on the subject could go, the marriage, however, being an exceedingly happy one.

The fact remains that no man, however hideous, need consider himself exiled from the love and even worship of woman, and this knowledge ought to console some whose faces are not exactly their fortunes, but rather the reverse.

"Is My Hat On Straight?"

From The Atlanta Constitution.

When I go to get my sweetheart
With the theatre in view
And I'm really in a hurry—
I have minutes just a few—
In the doorway when she meets me
And her face is all a smile,
And she leads me to the parlor,
Bids me wait a little while:
I am left all by my lonesome self,
And with patience do I wait
Till I hear her voice, "Now, mamma,
Is
My
Hat
On Straight?"

Then I know I'm strictly in it,
For another hour or so,
But I sit and bear and grin it.
With a book I'd like to throw,
I get up and pace the carpet,
Just my feelings to restrain.
And I whistle now at intervals my courage to sustain.
Oh, there comes to me the feeling
That I'd like to "pull my freight"
When I hear her ask her sister,
"Is
My
Hat
On Straight?"

While I love her, yet I wonder
If she ever stops to think
That the chain that binds, by thunder,
Is but holden by a link?
Yet while all these thoughts come to me,
And as many, many more,
I still find myself perambulating up and down the floor,
In a mood that's aught but passive,
For it does exasperate
When you find it is 9.30
And the curtain's up at 8.

Pretty soon the door flies open,
And a change comes over me;
There she stands in regal splendor
And a wealth of finery.
Tripping softly over to me
Then she gently steals a kiss,
Which accounts in a great measure
For the metamorphosis.
In an angel's voice she whispers,
"Jack, I know it's getting late:
But you'll tell me, won't you, dearie,
Is
My
Hat
On Straight?"

IN THE DENTAL CHAIR

Women Bear Pain a Great Deal More Patiently Than Men.

Dentists have an excellent opportunity for observing the varying distinctive actions of men and women while enduring the intense pain usually accompanying dental surgery, and they are authority for the statement that men are "natural born cowards" when it comes to facing an operation which they know will set their nerves to jumping and cause them much physical suffering.

A woman will sit for hours and allow a dentist to gouge and prod her gums with any number of sharp steel instruments that he chooses to use, without whimpering, and if the operation is not completed she will come back the next day and have the painful ordeal repeated. But a man! Not so with him. He may show up for the first day's treatment, but the chances are that on the second day his appointment will remain unkept. He hasn't the necessary nerve and inclination to subject himself to another siege of torture, and so he gives the dentist's office a wide berth.

It is not a fact, however, that all men are cowards when facing a dental chair; nor is it true that all women are brave under similar circumstances; but, taken as a class, and viewed under the inspecting glass of the D.D.S., women show more courage than men when called upon to endure treatment which at the best is anything but pleasant.

A Toronto dentist has observed the distinctive characteristics of men and women who occupy his chair from day to day and has gathered some interesting facts.

"The actions of a man in my chair are as different from those of a woman as day is from night," he said. "In the first place a woman will present herself at the appointed time, trembling perhaps, but determined to see it thru, no matter how great the pain may be. She gets into the chair, settles back against the headrest, and tho she may flinch when the nerves are aggravated she will not utter one word of complaint.

"A man comes in maintaining a blustering, bravado attitude and gets into the chair with so much apparent resignation and determination that if you never had seen a man in a dentist's office before you would declare he was woman's superior in point of bravery at every point. But just wait. The minute you begin to hurt him you hear something, and this something depends upon the religious tendencies of the particular man. If he is profane he swears, and if he is not given to profanity he uses language so close to a violation of moral law that it is rather hard to draw a distinguishing line.

"The woman will go thru the first operation, and when told to come back the following day will agree to do so. What is more, she will keep her word. But a man will go away gnashing his teeth, and the chances are you won't see him again for a week. You have to use all sorts of means to get him back. The fact of the matter is he hasn't the courage to undergo a repetition of the pain to which he has been subjected.

"There is another great difference between men and women which involves personal pride. If a woman has bad teeth she wants them treated in the best possible way, no matter how much physical suffering is involved. She will sit for a whole day and subject herself to any sort of treatment in order to have a crooked tooth straightened or some other natural defect remedied. This of course is largely a matter of pride, but a man won't do it. He wants good work, certainly, but he wants it done in the least painful manner, and isn't so particular about his personal appearance that he is willing to endure 'torture' to bring about the result.

"In justice to the men it must be said that in cases of sudden shock they have more nerve than women. This is evident in the pulling of a tooth. A man stands this ordeal better than a woman, but where endurance enters into the operation he is not her equal in point of nerve in any respect."

Three Thousand Out.

Butte, Mont., April 2.—The strike of the hoisting engineers in the Amalgamated Mines for higher wages, whereby nine of the principal producers of the big copper mining company are tied up, and over 3000 men are rendered idle, with the prospects that as soon as the supply of ore has been exhausted the smelters thousands more will be thrown out of work, shows no signs of an early settlement. The strikers are defiant.

Word from the Washoe smelters at Anaconda is to the effect that about another day's running will exhaust the ore bins and necessitate the closing of the big works. This suspension will mean the idleness of 2500 more men.

DR. PITCHER CURES A TORONTO TOBACCONIST

Mr. C. F. Helmkay, the Proprietor of the "New Century Cigar Store," 94 Queen St. East, Cured of Acute Kidney Trouble.

He is Strong in His Endorsation of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

There are not a few people in the eastern portion of Toronto who know Mr. C. F. Helmkay who keeps the New Century Cigar Store at 94 Queen-street east. Hundreds who do not know him personally are at least acquainted with his place of business. For some time past Mr. Helmkay has been a victim of kidney complaint in its most acute form, and every remedy he tried seemed to be of no avail to cure him.

MR. C. F. HELMKAY.

He heard that Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets were curing cases of severe kidney complaint that other remedies seemed unable to benefit, and in consequence he decided to try them. The results were simply marvelous. A few bottles of Dr. Pitcher's Tablets soon removed every trace of the distressing kidney trouble and made Mr. Helmkay feel like a new man. When interviewed about his case, Mr. Helmkay gladly gave the following particulars:

"Yes," said he, "I suffered from kidney trouble in the most acute and tenacious form, and can never be thankful enough for what Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets did for me."

"What were the symptoms of your complaint?"

"Well, I had a terrible pain across the small of my back, an irritable condition of the bladder, that caused much suffering. My appetite was poor, and when I did eat anything it gave me great distress."

"Had you been troubled that way for any length of time?"

"Yes, for some considerable time. Of course, I took all sorts of remedies, hoping to be cured, but kept getting worse all the time."

"Then you say it was Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets that cured you?"

"I most certainly do. I think Dr. Pitcher's Tablets are the only remedy in the world for kidney troubles. This statement may seem extravagant, but I have gone the rounds of all the advertised kidney medicines, and Dr. Pitcher's was the only one that touched the spot and cured me."
