OUR PROSPERITY.

Plenty of Money in Circulation and an Interest in Art.

That Canada is prosperous no one can deny. There seems to be an abundance of money in the country, and every commercial firm is benefiting because of this thoroughly satisfactory condition. More than this, there is every evidence that the country is paying more and more attention to art in all its forms. When the firm of Gourlay, Winter & Leeming decided to put on sale a really high-grade piano, such as the Gourlay is, pessimistic friends endeavored to dissuade them, saying that Canadians were willing to be satisfied with ordinary goods, and that there would be no sale for anything better. But the firm had convictions, and the courage of them and the result is seen in an abundance of orders from all parts of Canada. Professional musicians and customers of all classes are enthusiastic over the merits of the piano, and letters of commendation are constantly arriving. The other morning, three of these appeared at once. To show how widespread is the reputation of the Gourlay, it is only necessary to quote them.

Rev. S. Rondeau of St. Hyacinthe, Que., says: "The piano has been seen, tried and approved by several of our friends, who have been unanimous in their praises. My wife is delighted with it, and she is of the opinion that such a high-grade instrument is worthy of a place in all homes of refinement."

From Goderich comes the following tribute from Mr. Wm. Gallow: "Its mellowness and purity of tone render it an instrument which any firm may well be proud of, and the workmanship is a triumph of art."

Alberta is also represented by the letter of Rev. R. West, which says: "We are greatly pleased with the instrument. In purity of tone, responsiveness to touch and balance of power throughout, it is indeed all that can be desired. After long years of acquaintance in England with the best productions of the English and continental makers, I can truly say that the piano you have sent us is perfection."

BRASS WORKS GUTTED.

Fire Breaks Out in Boiler Room of Canada Brass Supply Co.

London, Oct. 14.—Fire broke out in the Canada Brass Supply Company's works here this evening, and before it could be got under control had completely gutted the building.

The fire broke out in the boiler rooms and spread with great rapidity to the wood working shop. A general alarm was sent in, and all the firemen were quickly on hand, but owing to the great headway which the flames had secured, they were in great danger of falling walls. After fighting the flames for two hours, the fire was got under control.

The loss, $20,000, is covered by insurance.

LARGE PARADE OF GARRISON WEATHER WASN'T THE BEST

Over 2600 Men Turned Out to Annual Fall Service and Crowds Were as Dense as Usual.

The garrison church parade yesterday afternoon was one of the biggest of the kind that have taken place. The weather remained fine until after the service in Massey Hall. Before the clouds gathered, it was usual "garrison weather." But the parade was, in all respects, a fine one, the accoutrements and generally-smart bearing of the men of the several regiments attracting expressions of admiration from the crowds that lined the route to and from the armories. The regiments paraded there at two o'clock in the afternoon. It was shortly after 3 o'clock when the last contingent left.

Col. John I. Davidson was in command of the garrison, and his staff comprised the following: Col. Bruce, D.A.G.A.; Col. Gallaway, D.A.G.B.; Col. Delamere, Col. Ryerson, Major Gunther, Brigade-Major; Lieut.-Col. Hall, Major Langton, Lieut.-Col. Fotheringham, Capt. Van Nostrand, Capt. Wyatt and Capt. Mitchell, and Lieut. Michel (orderly). There were also Col. Barrett and Capt. Denison, Cavalry Brigade; Major Nelles, of the Royal Canadian Dragoons; Major McCarthy, commanding officer in the Toronto Light Horse; Capt. Mitchell, commanding the Ninth Field Battery; Lieut. Biggs, of the Toronto Engineers; Capt. Cowen, of the Army Service Corps; Major Fenton, of the Fourth Bearer Company; Col. Macdonald, brigade major of the Infantry Brigade; Col. Stimson of the Grenadiers, and Col. Pellatt, Q.O.R.; Major Cameron, G.G.-B.G.; Capt. Denison, brigadier major of the Cavalry Brigade; Lieut.-Col. Merritt, G.G.B.G.; Capt. Campbell, 48th Highlanders; Capt. Leduc, R.C.R. The following was the strength of the regiments:

The total strength of the Infantry Brigade was 2166, and that of the Cavalry Brigade 472. The following represents the strength of the various units:

Queen's Own, 38 officers and 775 non-commissioned officers and men, total 813; Royal Canadian Regiment, two officers and 115 non-commissioned officers and men, total 117; Royal Grenadiers, 24 officers and 517 non-commissioned officers and men, total 541; 48th Highlanders, 26 officers and 561 non-commissioned officers and men, total 587; Army Service Corps, one officer and 50 non-commissioned officers and men, total 51; Governor-General's Body Guard, six officers and 128 non-commissioned officers and men, total 134; Toronto Light Horse, 11 officers and 111 non-commissioner officers and men, total 122; Ninth Battery, Canadian Field Artillery, four officers and 68 non-commissioned officers and men, total 72; Fourth Bearer Company, three officers and 43 non-commissioned officers and men, total 46; Royal Canadian Dragoons, eight officers and 75 non-commissioned officers and men, total 83; Second Field Co. of the Canadian Engineers, four officers and 55 non-commissioned officers and men, total 59.

The route to the hall was via Queen, Beverley, College and Yonge, and the music of the bands, tho it was remarked that most of the marches have been heard many times before, lent considerable animation to the surroundings. Massey Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity and admission thereto was by ticket. By the side of Gen. Otter on the platform was Major Holford, one of the equerries to His Majesty King Edward. Lady Morley and Lady Parker occupied a box. Lady Parker is a sister and Major Holford a brother of Lady Grey, wife of the governor-general.

The service opened with the playing of Mascagni's beautiful "Ave Marie," played by the band of the Grenadiers, who admirably contributed to the proceedings, which were thruout of a most hearty character. The evensong prayers were pronounced by Canon Welch. The lesson was read by Chaplain Cayley, and the supplications for the King and the other members of the royal family by Chaplain Harrison. During the offertory the band played Gounod's "Send Out Thy Light." The hymn, "O Jesus, I Have Promised," was sung to the familiar strains of "Home Sweet Home."

The sermon was preached by Canon Baldwin, chaplain to the Grenadiers. In a homely, straight discourse, he compared the peace now ensuing between Japan and Russia to the peace offered by God, the peace that the world could not give. The preacher referred to Carlyle's dictum concerning the preponderance of fools. "How silly people are," said the canon. "They take a sort of delight in showing how coarsely ignorant they are of the word of God. The Bible is a grander book than even Shakespeare wrote."

Then he went on to draw a distinction between righteousness and goodness, and to urge a thoroly practical and sincere religion. He appealed to the soldiers to attend church as regularly as possible. He did not believe the statement that many of them only went twice a year.

The service ended with the singing of the National Anthem, and at the close the troops marched back to the armories down Yonge, up King and by Simcoe amid showers.

LABOR MEN AND THE TARIFF PROTECTION TO THEIR GOOD

Former Vice-President of Congress Takes Issue With Special Committee's Declaration.

James B. Mack of Montreal, former vice-president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, has sent a communication to the secretary-treasurer of the congress, P. M. Draper, of Ottawa, in which he says he has "read with amazement the pronouncement on the tariff question made recently by the tariff committee of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

"It seems to me," he continues, "that if the trades unions of Canada allow the committee's declaration to pass as representing our opinion we will be placed in a most ridiculous position in the eyes of the Canadian people.

"It has been pointed out by a well-known Canadian economic writer that on the average each Canadian during the fiscal year, 1904, bought as much from the United States as forty-one Americans bought from Canada, and it is a well-known fact that the Canadian tariff is not much more than half as high as the American tariff. If the position were reversed; if the United States tariff were only half as high as the Canadian tariff and the Americans bought forty-one times as much from Canada per head of population as Canadians bought from the United States, do you suppose that any organization of American workingmen would be such fools as to ask the United States government to refuse the request of their employers to raise the tariff to the Canadian level? I notice in the report of the census commissioner, just published, that the average rate of wages paid to Canadian workmen is considerably lower than the average wages in the United States. Why is this? I can see no other reason than the fact that the manufacturers of the United States have always had much higher protection than Canadian manufacturers. Being properly protected they can afford to pay higher wages.

Will Benefit U. S.

"I would like to ask the workingmen of Canada a question. Will the labor leaders of the United States invite us over there when we are thrown out of work in this country by inadequate protection? I do not mean to say that the committee are intentionally trying to promote the interests of American manufacturers to the injury of Canadian workingmen, but I do say that if they are successful in persuading the government to allow our tariff protection to remain as low as it is, American manufacturers and their employes will be the only ones benefited.

"The object of a labor organization is to improve the condition of workingmen, not to promote ill-feeling. We may sometimes have to fight the manufacturers and large corporations to get what we want, but we have no desire for perpetual war. Moreover, in any fight we may be obliged to go into we are certain to lose unless we have the general sympathy of the Canadian people. Will the common sense of the people go with us if they find that on any matter of public policy we are determined to take the opposite view from the Canadian Manufacturers' Association regardless of whether it is right or wrong?

Favor Protection.

"In conclusion let me say that I believe nine Canadian workingmen out of ten, whether Liberals or Conservatives, are in favor of making the Canadian tariff against United States products as high as the American tariff against Canadian products. I have had talks with many workmen on this question, and know the general feeling. For instance, to-day I had a long conversation with Alexander Mitchell, who has been for years business agent and general secretary of the Montreal Iron Moulders' Union, No. 21, and who is now an officer of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada. He said that the Province of Quebec was now a dumping ground for foreign manufacturers owing to the low tariff, and remarked that this was a sad state of affairs, being most injurious to our Canadian artisans."

CHURCH IS RE-OPENED.

St. Michael's at Belleville Re-Opened With Impressive Ceremony.

Belleville, Oct. 15.—St. Michael's Church, which was burned down last December, was to-day re-opened after being rebuilt. Archbishop Gauthier of Kingston arrived in the city last evening, and was received by the members of all their societies of Belleville. Headed by the I. O. O. F. band, a procession was formed and marched to St. Michael's Church, where an address was presented to his grace by the members of the congregation.

This morning the church was blessed and dedicated by the archbishop, who afterwards conducted pontifical high mass. The sermon was preached by Rev. Father Callaghan, Montreal. At the evening service vespers was chanted, and Rev. Dr. Salmon of Kingston preached a fine sermon.

The church is not yet completely furnished, but the congregation were anxious to again enter it, owing to the fact that Archbishop Gauthier leaves shortly for Rome, and it was desired to have him dedicate it before he went. So far the rebuilding of St. Michael's has cost $40,000, and fully that much more will be required for its completion.

Rev. Father Twoomey, the new parish priest, has done wonders towards rebuilding the church.

WANT CANADIAN SUGAR BEETS.

Michigan Factories Apply for Lowering of the Import Duties.

Detroit, Oct. 14.—A New York despatch says that to save many Michigan beet sugar factories from being shut down because of a scarcity of material, a protest against the present sugar beet tariff has been made before the United States general appraisor there by the Marine Sugar Company of Marine City, Mich., who ask for a reduction of the tariff from its present rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem to 10 per cent. ad valorem.

The appraisers are asked to lower the duty in order that the American factories may get beets from Canada. The technical ground on which this protest is made declares that sugar beet is not in reality a vegetable, but merely a raw material for use in manufacturing sugar.

To allow the board to consider this point the case was adjourned until Dec. 6.

TO BE BEST DRESSED GIRL STEALS $10 DAILY FOR YEARS

Bookkeeper for N. Y. Concern, She Evolved System of Embezzlement Which Was Highly Successful.

New York, Oct. 15.—Her sole ambition to be the best dressed working girl to cross Brooklyn Bridge is assigned as the cause of Miss Mary E. Golding's grief. She is a self-confessed thief, having systematically robbed her employers, the Larkin Soap Company, Nos. 4 and 6 White-street, of more than $15,000, taking an average of $10 a day for the last three years.

She says her imprisonment should be a lesson to young women whose pride cannot be appeased by their incomes. She is thoroly repentant and throws herself upon the mercy of the court.

Miss Golding wept bitterly as she told her story to Magistrate Finn in the Toombs court yesterday. She is of medium height, thin, about twenty-eight years old, and her raiment is stylish and expensive. She did not look like a working girl. She gave the appearance of an unhappy bride rather that a prisoner charged with theft.

Miss Golding has been cashier of the Larkins Company here four years having been employed by the same company in Buffalo for three years prior to that. She handled all the money in the New York branch and had the confidence of her employers.

Liked Fine Raiment.

Her salary was $15 a week, but that was not enough to permit her to buy the kind of clothes she wanted to wear. She has a modest room in Brooklyn. Her little room is literally packed with costly gowns and her wardrobe would be envied by many actresses. She did not having any peculiar hobby for jewelry, but her millinery was thruout smart. Gloves she has by the dozen of pairs, and her handkerchief box is filled with the finest kind of linen. She had a pair of shoes for every day in the week.

The Larkin concern a month ago employed private detectives to discover which of the many employes in the office was stealing, as more goods were going out than were accounted for. Miss Golding was never for a moment suspected, and she was asked by the manager, Edward F. Gay, to assist the detectives.

She readily consented, and her ever anxiety to ferret out the pilferings led the detectives to believe the cashier knew more than she was telling.

Miss Golding was indignant at first and threatened to tell Mr. May that she had been insulted, but finally when told that she had been shadowed, promised to confess all to the manager. She did, and her arrest followed.

Began by Stealing $10.

"My family at home," Miss Golding is reported to have told the Larkin firm, "were dependent upon me. My salary was too small to permit me to live here and take care of the folks in Buffalo, too; so one day, about three years ago, I stole $10. I waited for some time to see if it was noticed, and when nothing came of it, I started to take $10 every day. I don't know just how much I have taken, but I guess I averaged $10 a day all the time.

"Some days I did not touch any money, and other days I would take $20 or $30, and I got about $10 a day thru the whole period. I am sorry that I ever stole a penny."

To Mr. May she said she sent sometimes as much as $40 home to her parents. But to the detectives working on the case, when questioned more closely, Miss Golding admitted that her father had a good position with the Erie Railroad at Buffalo; that she spent all her stolen money upon clothes for herself, and that the only money she ever sent home was an occasional $2 to her sister, who was an invalid.

"Loved to Dress Well."

She told the detectives she "loved to dress well," and declared in a boastful way that "no better dressed girl than she ever came over the bridge in the morning or went back at night."

The prisoner explained that part of her system was to enter orders on the order book and omit the payment for them on the cash book. She added that none of the customers lost anything by her peculations, as all orders were filled.

Mr. May says he believes Miss Golding has exaggerated her stealings. He thinks the aggregate will not exceed $3,000.

DECKHAND JUMPED OVERBOARD.

Had Quarreled With the Captain, Who is Arrested.

Providence, R.I., Oct. 15.—Capt. Robt. J. Lanier of the coal barge Hamilton Fish of New York is being detained by the police here, pending an investigation of the disappearance of John Rose, a Cape de Vere deckhand, who, following a dispute with the captain, jumped from the barge last night while she lay at anchor in the middle of Providence River.

According to Capt. Lanier, Rose refused to obey orders and made the assertion that Lanier would meet the fate which befell the captain of the schooner Harry A. Berwind, on board of which several murders were recently committed. Lanier and Rose came to blows, and it is alleged that the captain struck the deckhand with a capstan bar, Rose immediately leaping overboard.

When last seen by those on the barge, the deckhand was swimming strongly, but up to this evening the police had not been able to find any trace of him.

UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR HELD FOR SCURRILOUS ETTER

Goshen, Ind., Oct. 14. — Robert L. Greene, a professor at Notre Dame University, was this afternoon held to appear before the federal grand jury in Indianapolis on Nov. 14, on the charge of sending scurrilous and defamatory matter thru the mails.

Greene's offence was the alleged mailing of a postal card to Sheriff Peck of Windsor, Vermont, who was to hang Mrs. Mary Rogers, the condemned murderess, written as follows:

"Before butchering Mrs. Mary Rogers, carefully consider the command of the highest power in the universe. 'Thou shalt not kill.' Do not disgrace yourself and family by committing murder, even tho it is legal and made so by men in defiance of the above command."
