Poetry.

THE OLD MAN AND THE CHILDREN.

BY JAMES PRICHETT HOG.

Spring was busy in the woodlands,
Climbing up from peak to peak,
As an old man sat an hoodoll,
With a flush upon his cheek.

Many years press'd hard upon him,
And his living friends were few,
And from out the sombre future
Trouble, drifted into view.

There is something moves one strangely
In old ruins grey with years;
Yet there's something far more touching
In an old face wet with tears.

And he sat there, sadly sighing
O'er his feebleness and wrongs,
Though the birds outside his window
Talk'd of summer in their songs!

But, behold, a change comes o'er him;
Where are all his sorrow now?
Could they leave his heart so quickly
As the goom clouds left his brow?

Up the green slope of his garden,
Past the dial, he saw run
Three young girls, with bright eyes shining
Like their brown heads in the sun.

There was Fanny, famed for wisdom;
And fair Alice, famed for pride;
And one that could say, 'Uncle,'
And suit little else beside.

And that vision startled memories,
That soon hid all scenes of strife.
Sending floods of hallow'd sunshine
Through the ragged rents of life.

Then they took him from his study,
Through long lanes and tangled bowers,
Out into the shaded valleys,
Richly tapted o'er with flowers.

And he blessed their merry voices
Singing round him as he went,
For the sight of their wild gladness
Fill'd his own heart with content.

And, that night, there come about him
Far off meadows pictured fair,
And old woods in which he wander'd,
Ere he knew the name of care;
And he said, 'These angel faces
Take the whiteness from one's hair.'"

HOME AND FRIENDS.

Oh! there's a power to make each hour,
As sweet as Heaven designed it;
Nor need we roam to bring it home,
Though few there be that find it.
We seek too high for things close by,
And lose what nature found us;
For life hath here no charm so dear
As home and friends around us.

We oft destroy the present joy
For future hope—and praise them;
Whilst flowers as sweet dwell at our feet
If we'd but stoop to rise them;
For things afar still sweetest are
When youth's bright spell hath bound us;
But soon we're taught the earth hath nought
Like home and friends around us.

The friends that speed in time of need,
When hope's last reed is shaken,
Will show us still, that come what will,
We are not quite forsaken.
Though all were night, but if the light
From friendship's altar crowned us,
'Twould prove the bliss of earth was this,
Our home and friends around us.

MARRIAGE IN THE ROTHSCHILD FAMILY.—On Wednesday afternoon, March the 4th, a marriage was celebrated with great pomp and splendor, at Gannersbury Park, near Chiswick, the country seat of Baron Lionel de Rothschild. The contracting parties were the representatives of the two great—or rather greatest—firms of the Rothschild family, the bride being Miss Leonora, the eldest daughter of Baron Lionel, and the bridegroom Baron Alphonse, the eldest son of Baron James Rothschild, of Paris. The wedding repast was laid out in two large rooms, one of which was specially built on to the dining room for the occasion. Both were decorated with exquisite taste and splendor. The covers were laid for 110. Only the plate of the family was used. We cannot hazard a guess as to its weight or value, but it must be enormous. The bridal presents, both in quality and variety, were more than sufficient to have stocked an Eastern Bazaar; so a mere glance at the most prominent must suffice. Breakfast services, as usual, distinctly prevailed, there being four five or six of them, all of silver, except one set from Mrs. Montefore, which was of massive standard gold enriched with the most elaborate chasings. To this princely gift succeeded a long row of candlesticks, gold and silver filagree, and enamel ivory workboxes, lace, fans, jewelled buttons, prayer-books, bound in gold and jewelled, escritoires of buhl and marqueterie, more breakfast services, and a lace parasol. The latter was in a kind of jewel case; the handle was covered with serpents of rubies and diamonds, and the tip of each rib was formed of an oval-shaped emerald and large pearl. Arranged on a table by themselves were the jewels, a dazzling pile, all given by different members of the Rothschild family. Close by these, and in a well merited place of honor, were some humble but beautifully worked little presents from the scholars and pupil-teachers of the Jewish free school. Before three o'clock the guests who were invited to be present at the ceremony, began to arrive. A velvet canopy, supported by four of the bridegroom's garcons d'honneur, was placed at the upper end of the saloon. The bridegroom was then led in by the nearest male relatives, and placed under the canopy. The bride, who till then had remained in her apartment, descended to the saloon, attended by no less than six bridesmaids, all attired alike in white dresses, trimmed with light blue, the bride wearing the usual lace dress and orange blossoms. At the door of the saloon she was met by her mother, who, assisted by the bridesmaid, completely enveloped her whole figure and person in a veil which reached to the ground, and which is worn in compliance with the Scriptural verse in Genesis relating to Rebecca. She was then conducted to the saloon with the same forms as the bridegroom and placed under the canopy. The chief Rabbi, having pronounced a most eloquent exhortation to each, the service was commenced in Hebrew. The betrothed then drank a cup of wine and water, and the bridgroom, taking the ring, placed it on the bride's finger, repeating slowly, "Behold, thou art betrothed unto me, with this ring, according to the rites of Moses and Israel." The marriage contract was then read, and prayers then resumed, the betrothed again drank a glass of wine between them, and the glass being laid on the ground empty the bridegroom crushed it with his foot, all the relations at the same time wishing (in Hebrew) that the marriage might be happy, and the bride and bridegroom be as irrevocably joined as the pieces of glass were smashed. About an hour after the conclusion of the ceremony, the visitors sat down to the dinner. The bride's health was proposed by the French Ambassador, and drunk with enthusiasm, shortly after which both bride and bridegroom left for the seat of Baron Meyer de Rothschild, in Buckinghamshire. Mr. Disraeli then proposed "The health of Baron James de Rothschild," and Lord John Russell that of his colleague the Baron Lionel. More toasts followed and in the evening a grand ball was given, at which there was a brilliant attendance of the aristocracy and beau monde.—Liverpool Mail.

DISSIMULATION.—Dissimulation in youth is the forerunner of perfidity in old age; its first appearance is the fatal omen of growing depravity and future shame. It degrades parts and learning, obscures the lustre of every accomplishment, and sinks us into contempt. The path of falsehood is a perplexing maize. After the first departure from sincerity it is not in our power to stop; one artifice unavoidably leads on to another; till, as the intricacy of the labyrinth increases, we are entangled in the snare.—D. Blair.

The Subscriber having been appointed Agent to the above Company for New-Brunswick, begs to announce that he is prepared to receive Proposals for FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE. The large Capital of the Company, and the number and influence of its Proprietors, enable it to rank with the most eligible Offices, either in America or Europe, with respect to the advantages offered to the Public.

FIRE BRANCH.

Persons Assured by this Company are not subject to any covenants or calls to make good losses which may happen to themselves or other, nor do they depend on any uncertain fund or contribution, the Capital Stock of this Company being an unquestionable security to the Assured in case of Loss or Damage by Fire.

LIFE BRANCH.

In addition to the more customary methods of Insurance, the Company likewise Assures Lives on any of the following contingencies:—

For the terms of One Year, Seven Years, or any other definite period.

For the whole continuance of Life—The Premiums to cease, after a limited number of Annual Payments.

For Two Joint Lives.—The sum assured to be paid on the death of either.

On the longest of Two or Three Lives.—The sum assured to be payable at the death of the last survivor; or,

The Survivorships.—To secure the payment of the sum assured, if a life A die before another life B.

For a sum to be payable at age 60, or at death.

Premiums on Credit.—A portion of the Premiums on Credit. Assurances may be effected in various ways, not enumerated, to meet the convenience of parties.

The important advantages afforded by the Company in the Life Branch will include the following viz:—

The Guarantee of an ample Capital, and Exemption of the Assured from liability of Partnership.

Moderate Premiums.

Large Participation of Profits by the Assured amounting to Two-thirds of its net amount, which may be applied at the option of the party effecting the Assurance:—1st. By the immediate payment of the sum so apportioned.—2nd. By an equivalent increase of the sum assured.

Small Charge for Management.—The expenses of the Office being borne in due proportion by the two Branches.

Prompt Settlement of Claims.

Policies lapsed by non-payment of the Premium may be renewed within three months, by paying the premium, with a fine of 10s per cent., on the production of evidence to the satisfaction of the Directors of the good health of the life assured.

The Company will always be prepared to Purchase the Policies of this Office at their equitable value or will grant a New Policy in lieu thereof without any further payment of Premium, for a sum to be agreed on.

Extra Premiums, suitable to special circumstances, will be accepted to enable a party possessing a Policy on the life of another to guard against the possibility of its being vitiated by the Life departing beyond limits, or by any other cause.

Thirty Days are allowed for the Payment of Premiums after the day on which they respectively

HAGLE, HATTER.

THE Subscriber would respectfully inform his friends and the public in general, that he has removed a part of his Establishment to 27, North side of King Street, directly opposite Cross Street, and one door below Mr. J. Frost's Shoe Store, where he will be found ready to serve the Public with HATS and CAPS of his own Manufactory, made under his inspection, which he feels warranted in saying are equal to any made or sold in this City, as has been proved at the Exhibitions held in this City and Fredericton, and also at Halifax, N. S., from which he received a Certificate of merit under the Seal of that Province.

The business will be conducted as formerly at his old Stand, under the management of his Nephew, D. Mann, a practical Hatter; where the Public will always find a good article, and at a reasonable price.
