LOST AT SEA.

BY T. B. ALDRICH, IN MEMORY OF RALPH KEELER.

The solemn bead that Guido drew
Looks down from out its leafy hood—
The holly berries, gleaming through
The pointed leaves, seem drops of blood.

Above the mantlepiece, round the hearth,
Are evergreens and spruce-tree boughs;
'Tis Christmas morning; Christmas mirth
And joyous voices fill the house.

I pause, and know not what to do:
I feel reproach that I am glad:
Until to-day, no thought of you,
O Comrade! ever made me sad.

But now the thought of your blithe heart,
Your ringing laugh, can give me pain,
Knowing that we are worlds apart,
Not knowing we shall meet again.

For all is dark that lies in store!
Though they may preach, the brotherhood,
We know just this, and nothing more,
That we are dust, and God is good.

What life begins when death makes end!
Sleek gownsman, is't all very clear?
How fares it with us?—Oh, my Friend,
I only know you are not here!

That I am in a warm, light room,
With life and love to comfort me,
While you are drifting through the gloom,
Beneath the sea, beneath the sea?

O wild green waves that lash the sands
Of Santiago and beyond,
Left him, I pray, with gentle hands,
And bear him on—true heart and fond!

To some still grotto far below
The washings of the warm Gulf Stream
Bear him, and let the winds that blow
About the world not break his dream!

—I smooth my brow. Upon the stair
I hear my children shout in glee,
With sparkling eyes and dancing hair,
Bringing a Christmas wreath for me.

Their joy, like sunshine deep and broad,
Falls on my heart, and makes me glad:
I think the face of our dear Lord
Looks down on them, and seems not sad!

THE KING OF NO LAND. (See 4th page.)

NOTES AND NEWS.

In one of the French communes or districts, containing 2,714 voters, at a recent election, only a single vote was cast.

A London paper felicitates itself upon the fact that the Thames embankment is rapidly becoming the handsomest boulevard in Europe.

"I am very happy," said a French mother. "I have a son-in-law whom everybody discusses, and a daughter whom no one talks about."

Oh, my! A fashion writer says that corsets are made of white satin richly embroidered with white silk. Thought they were abolished.

There was a curious lawsuit at State Centre, Iowa, the other day. Mr. Snider had a Mr. Mitten arrested for putting a crooked pin in his seat in church; and the examination before the magistrate was held with closed doors.

Some members of a Boston hook and ladder company have had duplicate fire badges made for their friends, in order to procure their admittance inside the lines of fire, probably for purposes of plunder, and the matter is being investigated.

"Step in," said a cheap clothier to a countryman; "the cheapest goods in the market." "Have you any fine shirts?" "As splendid assortment, sir." "Are they clean?" "Of course, sir—clean, to be sure." "Then," said the countryman, gravely, "you had better put one on."

The sisters of a colored Baptist church at Raleigh, N. C., held a public meeting the other day, and raised a subscription to release their pastor, who was in jail on a charge of bastardy. When the fine had been paid, the sisters marched to the jail door and received the reverend gentleman with open arms. The scene is described as deeply affecting.

It is the perfectly candid opinion of The Chicago Post and Mail that a "casual visit to almost any school room will impress the practical and observant man that the educational machine still moves in a rut. There is too much book, and too little common sense there—too great lack of independent thought on the teacher's part to adapt his instruction to the capacities and permanent wants of the pupils."

Boston spent during the last school year $1,365,720.59 for educational purposes. The salaries for teachers and officers amounted to $1,041,576. The Boston Herald asserts that only a third of the graduates of the grammar schools, who are themselves but a fraction of those who enter, ever go into the high schools, while of the primary school graduates only half reach the second class in the grammar schools.

St. Nicholas for January is a real holiday number, and a peculiarly attractive one. It opens with a beautiful frontispiece called "Mozart, the Little Music King," followed by a short sketch of the great musician's career. It gives us an abundance of interesting Christmas stories, such as "Tommy, the Soprano," by Charles Barnard; "May's Christmas Tree," by Oliver Thorne; "A Christmas Legend," by Florence Scannell (each of the three with a beautiful picture by Hyslop); and "The Dwarf's Mirror," illustrated by F. A. Chapman. There is also a fac simile of the original manuscript of the famous ballad "'Twas the Night before Christmas," which will attract the attention of all the boys and girls.

The January number of Scribner is not without a Christmas flavor—containing, as it does, a Christmas sketch by L. Clark Davis, entitled "My night in a Stage-Coach," a "Christmas Suggestion," and "A Christmas Sleigh-ride," the latter by F. R. Stockton. In this number begins Dr. Holland's new serial, "The Story of Sevenoaks," with an illustration by Sol. Eytinge. The first instalment of Major Powell's account of his daring descent of the Colorado is here given, with striking illustrations by T. Moran and W. H. Sheppard; also the beginning of a series of "Old Letters," written from London in the time of William IV., and now for the first time published. "Travels in South America," the opening article of the "Monthly," is effectively illustrated and interesting. Besides these contributions we have "A Bouquet of Japanese Verses"; "A New Solution of an Old Puzzle"; "Bazaine's Prison"; "Hereditary Foes"; continuations of Saxe Holm's "My Tourmaline," and Jules Verne's "Mysterious Island"; and poems by R. H. Stoddard, E. C. Stedman, John Hay, and F. W. Bourdillon. In "Topics of the Time" Dr. Holland writes about "National Politics," "Room at the Top" and "Ritualism." "The Cabinet" contains "The Sublime and the Ridiculous," "Salvini as a Dutchman," and other matters. In "Home and Society" is a timely "Plea for Handles."
