West Indies v. Ontario at Cricket.

The second West Indian match was begun yesterday morning, the Islanders meeting a provincial team. The visitors were the first to bat, and they were only able to secure 51 runs, to which sum Stewart contributed 15 by nice cricket, and Lees 13 by cricket of a more substantial kind, Ontario amassed 101, Vickers heading the list with 32, F. Allan and S. D. Smith following him up with 22 and 18. Vickers got two clean five hits to leg. In their second essay the West Indians got 57 runs at a cost of two wickets, Lees was not out with 30, and Marshall not out with 14. The bowling and fielding of the provincial men was very good. The fielding of the visitors was erratic and uncertain. A redeeming point, however, was F. Isaacs' wicket keeping. The game will be re-commenced this morning at 10.30. Every cricketer should attend.

How Imitation Jewels Are Made.

The ingenuity of persons who "get up" precious stones and mock pearls for "the trade" has been often commented upon and frequently censured. A London lapidary who works in the groove indicated was called on a few months ago in a court of law to explain his mode of procedure. "I make all my imitations out of real stone," was his reply to the judge. On being asked to be more explicit he said: "Perhaps I possess some pale stones which are of small value; these I split by the aid of my tools; then introducing a deeper tone of color I join them together again, having considerably increased their saleable value." In this manner the colors of many stones are said to be intensified, such as emeralds, sapphires, amethysts and others.

A Terrible Calamity for a Young Lady.

From the San Francisco Report.

Terrible calamities have at times interfered with prospective and present pleasures. Whole families have been plunged into grief on the eve of some great rejoicing; young men have suffered tortures because their pants were "kneezy;" old men have blown out their brains because the Canadian excursion train did not start on schedule time, and old women have cut each other dead because of some tale-bearing cook. But it remained for a sweet, shy girl graduate to suffer the most horrible catastrophe of the year. She was to have a party. The invitations were scattered far and wide. Her prepared toilet was a gem. Her admirers doubled the fingers of both hands. All decorative nature and gastronomic art smiled. The eventful day arrived. She awoke with lightsome heart. She arose. She gazed upon her nightgowned duplicate in the mirror. Horror! A pimple; a horrid pimple. Where! Awful to tell—upon her nose. Despite every remedy it grew, and grew and grew. By noon it was the size of a pea. At 2 o'clock a cherry was scarcely its rival. The only panacea, a messenger boy with explanatory note. The invitations were recalled, and that night a residence on Bush-street responded not to the tiny conversation of vealy cubs and giggling maids.

August.

All the long August afternoon,
The little browsy stream
Whispers a melancholy tune,
As if it dreamed of June
And whispered in its dream.

The thistles show beyond the brook
Dust on their down and bloom,
And out of many a weed-grown nook
The aster-flowers look
With eyes of tender gloom.

The silent orchard aisles are sweet
With smell of ripening fruit;
Through the sere grass, in shy retreat,
Flutter at coming feet
The robins strange and mute.

There is no wind to stir the leaves,
The harsh leaves overhead;
Only the querulous cricket grieves,
And shrilling locust weaves
A song of summer dead.

MANAGER SHAW HAPPY.

A Busy Scene at the New "Toronto Opera House."

The clang of over a hundred hammers—the artistic daub of the painters' brush—a great rushing to and fro—is what greeted The World's eyes and ears as he entered Manager Shaw's new "Toronto Opera House," in Adelaide-street west, yesterday. Mr. Shaw was on hand superintending the busy movements of the workmen. "You can say," began the new candidate for Toronto patronage, "that I will open one of the completest and neatest playhouses on the North American continent on Monday night next, with an attraction that ought to play to good business. It is the McCaull Opera Company."

The new theatre, now on the verge of completion, will undoubtedly be an attractive one, and Manager Shaw's well-known reputation for booking the best talent on the road ought to meet with success at the hands of the theatre-goers of this city, and they are not a few, either.

"The "Toronto Opera House," as the new play-house will be called, is being constructed on the most modern plans as regards comfort, compactness, acoustic properties, ventilation, heating, entrances, exits and toilet rooms. Of the exits there are seven. The main entrance will be from Adelaide-street. The seating capacity of the theatre will be 1700; balcony 500, pit 650, family circle 600. Fourteen prismatic boxes will form a semi-circle around the pit. These boxes will contain 6 persons, will be divided by brass railings and will be furnished with movable seats. The seats in the pit will be iron, easily folded, the backs and bottoms being veneered, with a view to cleanliness, coolness and comfort. There will be one private box on each side of the stage, which will be 50 ft. wide, 54 ft. high, and 50 ft. deep. The walls and ceilings are being artistically finished in terra cotta and old blue. Light will be furnished from a London sun-burner chandelier of 70 lights. Toilet rooms, with attendants, will be found of considerable convenience to ladies and gentlemen.

The World congratulates Manager Shaw on the prospective completeness of his theatre, and would venture the opinion that with first class attractions, a judicious regard for the rights of the public, and fair and reasonable prices of admission, he will find his new venture one of profit and pleasure.

Short and Sensible.

From yesterday's Telegram.

SIR: It is a recognized principle of journalism that cases sub judice should not be commented upon. There is a notable want of this principle exhibited by an evening contemporary since the alleged coal conspiracy was sprung upon the people of this city, and particularly in an article of yesterday, which is a tissue of veiled threats and innuendos, and only wants the addition of one word to make it complete, and that is Bosh!

The Amusement Season.

The Grand Opera House will open the regular season on Monday evening next, Aug. 30. Manager Sheppard has secured for the opening week the talented favorites, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Florence, who will produce their popular play, entitled "Our Governor, or His Little Hatchet," Monday and Tuesday evenings. "The Flirt," a new comedy by Melbourne and Gill, will be produced for the first time on any stage on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Due notice will be given of the pieces for the remainder of the week.

See this young man with a downcast look
Who would like to get married by hook or crook,
But his means are scanty and his business took
Nearly all his capital.
But hearing of WALKER'S he quickly did go,
For dear Julia's mother, to ask her and show
Where things could be bought on time and so low,
Through Walker's easy system.
Julia's mother expressed herself highly delighted,
So Charlie and Julia were quickly united;
And their home from attic to cellar is righted,
With goods obtained from Walker.

MORAL:

Young man, despair not. Young lady, weep not. The future is before you of a snug dreside of your own. A man's home is his castle. Walker will help you to get these homes furnished. Proceed therefore to 107½ Queen-street west right away and be happy forever.
