BRITAIN AUGHRED EUROPE.

Made a Bargain With Japan That Displeases Russia.

New York, April 25.—A special to The Herald from London says: The real significance of the joint protest made Tuesday by Russia, Germany and France against the ratification of the Chino-Japanese treaty of peace is a protest against a secret British-Japanese understanding arrived at before peace was finally arranged.

In a word, England has made a hard and fast combination with Japan, and the other great powers have joined in the late protest to prevent the possible consummation of the alliance. England and Japan have been in perfect accord since the peace negotiations began.

England, after the continental powers rejected her overtures at the commencement of the war, set to work safe-guarding British interests, in view of the ultimate success of the Japanese.

It is stated on good authority that Lord Kimberley has been consulted in every step during the peace negotiations, and that England will support Japan by every diplomatic influence in the ratification of the treaty as arranged at Shimonoseki.

Japan's concessions to England it is impossible to learn, but a definite understanding has been arrived at, and England will support Japan if the latter ignores the protests of the continental powers.

A Gigantic Bluff.

London, April 25.—The Times, in an editorial on the protest of Russia, Germany and France, against the acquirement by Japan of any of the Chinese mainland territory, says the report will arouse much interest in England. Perhaps the feeling predominating will be that of surprise, with a mixture of amusement. The Times doubts the genuineness of the protest, but says if it is genuine Russia is entitled to be congratulated upon having achieved a triumph of diplomacy. The fact that France and Germany are so slightly interested in the question, however, makes it appear like a game of bluff, though Japan will possibly feel through this her wisest course would probably to yield in order to avoid a mistake which might have grave consequences.

British and U S Interests One.

Sir Henry H. Howorth, M.P., has written a letter to The Times, in which he declares that it is in the interest of England to formulate a common policy with the United States in regard to the far east.

The Pall Mall Gazette approves the ideas expressed by Sir Henry Howorth, and says: "America has received many marks of respect from China and Japan, and joint diplomatic action with the United States would prevent stronger action on the part of others. Our stake upon every side of the Pacific, in China, Canada and Australia, forbids us to remain passive.

ON THE BENCH AND JUDGED

DOGS OF HIGH DEGREE AT THE T.K.C.'S GREAT SHOW.

A Fashionable Attendance at 14 King-Street East to See Judgment Passed On Valuable Canines—The Three Judges Perform Their Work Satisfactorily—All the Awards.

The greatest dog show ever held in Toronto, outside the Industrial, was the general opinion of those who attended yesterday. It was the first day of the Toronto Kennel Club's show, and there were upwards of 2000 persons visited the Foster & Pender building afternoon and evening. They were the fashionable set, too, and all seemed to enjoy the appearance of the other 400. The dogs are comfortably benched on the first and second floors of the perfectly ventilated building.

Fox terriers and cockers were on exhibition in the largest numbers, but what the others lacked in quantity was made up in quality, not to say that quality did not also go with quantity.

The judges evidently did their work well, for there were few or no protests from their rulings. The judges were: Mastiffs, St. Bernards, Newfoundlands, Russian wolfhounds, Scottish deerhounds, greyhounds, foxhounds, spaniels, bulldogs, beagles, Dachshunds, all terriers except fox terriers, pugs, toy spaniels and miscellaneous class, J. Ferrier Kirk, Toronto;

Pointers and setters, Montague Smith, Forest, Ont.

Collies and fox terriers (smooth and wire-haired), Richard Gibson, Delaware, Ont.

SCHOOLING TO BE ALLOWED.

Jumpers to Have the Use of the Field at Woodbine Park.

The continued fine weather is hailed with delight by the trainers at Woodbine Park and vicinity, and the horses being prepared for the Ontario Jockey Club meeting are coming along nicely. So far no unfavorable reports are heard from any of the stables, every candidate apparently doing well, and the trainers in consequence are all in good spirits. As the time draws near the work of the horses becomes more and more severe each day, and by next week trainers will begin to "press" their charges, when a visit to the Woodbine in the early morning will be looked forward to with interest. Yesterday a fairly good crowd of enthusiasts assembled at the track to watch the horses at exercise, but Rover was the only one sent along, Orphan's jumper breezing a mile in 1.57.

The track is now in excellent condition, with the exception of the head of the stretch, which is still a little heavy. The steeplechase ground, too, is drying out nicely and the management have decided to allow horses to be "schooled" through the field next week, which the owners of jumpers will doubtless be pleased to hear. The jumps are to be built up to-day and next week the timber toppers will be given an inning. This decision on the part of the club in allowing horses the use of the field is a good one, and one which horse owners will appreciate. Heretofore jumpers have been debarred from using the field prior to the races, while on every track in the United States "schooling" is permitted, as it is at Hamilton and Windsor. Until a year or two ago the steeplechase ground at Montreal was always open to the jumpers, but, seeing that it was prohibited at Toronto, the Bel-Air people also put a stop to it, which appears rather unfair. It seems only fair that the jumpers should have an opportunity of preparing for their business through the field as much as the flat horse has on the track.

LAUGHED AT ANNEXATION.

New York Senators Amused at O'Grady's Bid For Canada.

Albany, N.Y., April 25.—In the Senate Mr. O'Grady's concurrent resolution favoring Canadian annexation was received with laughter. Senator O'Connor did not think it becoming for New York State to invite Canada to sever its connection with England. Senator Pound said the resolution was backed up by thousands of prominent names, and asked its immediate consideration. Senator O'Connor protested. He did not want to stir up discord in a neighboring country. He did not think that the names of Mr. Depew, Mayor Strong, Mr. Platt and others which go with the resolution should carry the Senate off its feet.

Senator Raines offered to amend by requesting Congress to invite the union. It was adopted and the resolution was then laid over.

Difficulties in the Way of Settling the Question at Issue.

The Pall Mall Budget comments on an article by Strindberg in the January number of The Revue Blanche called "The Inferiority of Women." It is a coincidence that The Spectator of the same week contains a review of a book by Eliza Burt Gamble entitled "The Evolution of Woman." These two facts, placed side by side, bring home to us at once the utter futility of the endles discussion on the relative positions of man and woman. The defense of men is undertaken by a man, the defense of women by a woman; they are both special pleaders, and as such can be no more than advocates; it is impossible for them to set themselves up as judges. Until some being, neither man nor woman, at once above yet in perfect sympathy with both, can be brought into court the question will ever remain an open one.

The fact is, it is impossible for us, constituted as we are, to measure things which do not contain a common unit. Man and woman differ not in degree but in kind. It is as absurd to claim that man as a whole is superior to woman as to claim the reverse. On what grounds can we go? Take that usually selected by the opponents—intellectual capacity. All men are not cleverer than all women. No one in his senses would assert it, and its opposite is not affirmed even by the most ardent "womanite." If we regard not the exceptions but the mass, what do we find? The ordinary man declares the woman to be devoid of business faculty, power of concentration and judgment; she retorts he is dull, lacking in imagination, unobservant. They are probably both right. But it is because their brains are differently constituted or because both are strong in the faculties which have been brought forward?

From his earliest school time, throughout his busines life, the boy and man has been forced to concentrate his attention, however, repugnant the process may be to him, or the penalty will be unendurable, he wil be left altogether behind in the race. And so with the other qualities. The ordinary woman, on the other hand, is bound to be observant, to get what pleasure she can out of trifles, to make her own interests, or her penalty will be excessive, the weariness of a life too dull to be borne. We are all familiar with the brilliant exceptions, the women who, without the advantages of the men, have outstripped them on their own ground. We wonder how M. Strindberg would deal with these; they are getting a little too numerous to be lightly thrust aside as "proving the rule." Besides these many of us have met women who never have done nor will do anything brilliant, but who are strong in the very qualities man claims for himself. Business-like, self-controlled, with admirable judgment, capable in every respect, even if they have lived with all their lives at home. The petulance which classes them in a mass with "negroes and children" shows something of the fretfulness of a "sick child" itself.

Until we can find our angelic visitant who is to tell us definitely once for all the truth of the matter, is it not wiser to cease quarrelling and allow each sex the fullest opportunity for developing what capabilities it has?—London Queen.

Corney Grain.

Although a lover of fun, and ever full of boyish spirits, he would never permit a liberty to be taken with him. Familiarity was the one thing he resented in the most unmistakable form. I have seen an unfortunate hilarious youth, soon after his first introduction to Grain, slap him on the back and call him "Corney." Grain would give that youth a look, or rather a glare, with his big eyes, such as a lion would give before springing on his victim. The look was enough. The hilarious youth was instantly transformed into a sober, solemn worm. I heard that once Grain was giving an entertainment at Cambridge—from whence he hailed, and where he was an enormous favorite—the undergraduates were shouting to him for more, and calling "Encore, Corney—another son, Corney!" But Grain would not respond. Presently one 'grad shouted: "Please give us another, sir!" All the students took it up—"Encore, sir!" Grain then came on, and obliged them to their heart's content.

Among his intimate friends he was always called "Dick"—never "Corney." I have always rather envied the clever cynicism of the patter in his sketches. In one of his entertainments he was supposed to be rebuking a badly-behaved boy at an afternoon party. You could almost see the boy standing in front of him. The rebuke, as far as I remember, was:—

"Now, look here, my boy, you must not talk when people are singing. You are only a boy, and such conduct is very rude, and ill mannered. Of course when you are grown up it is a different thing all together. It's expected of you then." What a fine piece of satire that is! His entertainments were crammed full of such gems.—Pall Mall Budget.

Wanted—A Curate!

The rector of a hundred years ago had somewhat peculiar ideas as to the qualifications of a curate, if one may judge from the following curious advertisement, which appeared in The St. James' Chronicle of May 4, 1795:

WANTED immediately, a good, strong, bony man to act in the capacity of curate. He must be subject to the following particulars, viz.: To have no objection to act as gardener, husbandman, and occasional whipperin. Any gent whom the above may suit, on application to Mr. B., at the Gray's Inn Coffee House, Holborn, may meet with immediate employ. N.B.—Character will not be so much required as equestrian skill, and none need apply who has not undergone a complete stabalarian (sic) education.

The curate of 1795 was evidently intended more for use than ornament. It is often the other way about with the curate of 1895.—Tit-Bits.

Transatlantic Penny Post.

This dream of postal reformers was actual fact as far back as the year 1648. At that period masters of vessels bound to America used to hang up bags in the coffee houses for the reception of letters, which they were glad enough to convey across the ocean at the rate of one penny each "single," or twopence per "double" letter.—Ueber Land und Meer.
