MONCTON GAS SITUATION.
Indications are at the present time that there will not be a serious gas shortage in Moncton during the coming winter. E. A. Cummins, manager of the Moncton Tramways, Electricity and Gas Company, informed a Transcript reporter. There is no ground for undue optimism, however, Mr. Cummings added, as there has been no means of testing the amount of gas actually available as yet and there really is no test except the practical one which is encountered when a spell of continuous and severely cold weather starts in.

It would be well for householders to have a stock of coal to fall back on, although it need not be too large. It is well to be prepared for eventualities, Mr. Cummings said, and he himself has a stock on hand.

Crocodile meat is considered a luxury in Borneo.
