OUR BOSTON LETTER.

The Fake Story Concerning the Smuggling of Chinamen.

Regulations for the Year Issued by the Dominion Coal Company.

The Potato Trade - Durant, the Alleged San Francisco Murderer, a Native of Toronto.

(From our own correspondent.)

Remarkable stories of smuggling on the boundary line between Canada and the United States are again going the rounds. The Chinese coffin story is regarded by Uncle Sam's officials in this city as a "fake" pure and simple. Special Agent Converse J. Smith does not take any stock in it whatever and he has been down in Eastern Maine often enough to be well posted. He says, however, that while Chinamen are not smuggled in coffins gigantic smuggling operations have been carried on in connection with the fur industry, and that the government has lost over $50,000 a year. The tourist class are naturally the ones who wear the most fur in winter, and it is claimed that hundreds of these buy valuable furs every year and manage to bring them across the line without paying duty, which has been quite heavy under both tariffs. The treasury agents say that furs are often smuggled in consignments of potatoes. In some instances every twelfth barrel in a car would contain furs. Bales of hay sometimes are found to contain smuggled articles of great value, and in the past arrests and heavy fines have resulted. Special Agent Smith is giving special attention just now to the alleged smuggling at the northeastern boundary line of Maine, Quebec and New Brunswick.

The April report of the United States' agricultural departments shows that this country, despite the fact that it is supposed to raise more potatoes than it can consume, imports as many potatoes as ever. During the ten years which ended June 30 last 29,495,417 bushels were imported, with an aggregate value of $13,155,431. As may be surmised a very large percentage of this quantity came from the maritime provinces. The entire country raised 202,365,000 bushels of potatoes in 1888, the largest crop but one during the ten years, yet during the year 8,250,000 bushels were brought in from other countries. The agricultural department is surprised at the showing and cannot understand why we should import potatoes.

The potato trade has opened at Boston. Several vessels arrived this week from Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia ports. The schooner Lucretia Jane, with 4,300 bushels from Grand River, P. E. I., and the Glenera, from Canning with 3,940 bushels, arrived yesterday.
