COMPLAINTS ABOUT TARIFF

than the cost per gallon of the acid. This acid is made in Canada, but it is not up to the standard. At the present time, nevertheless, the Canadian article is almost exclusively used in Canada owing to the high duty.

Mr. Cairncross also suggested that the duty on perfumes be reduced.

To Mr. Brodeur, Mr. Cairncross said that the American product of acetic acid is superior to the Canadian, because the former is made from oak shavings.

"I hear acetic acid is good for making vinegar," said Mr. Brodeur, with a smile.

"I don't know anything about that," was Mr. Cairncross' reply, as he, too, enjoyed the joke.

WANTS FREE OLIVES.

Mr. R. E. Eckert, of the Gorman-Eckert Spice Company, next addressed the commission. He brought up the question of the duty of olives, the packing of which is now an important industry in Canada. The duty on olives at present is 35 per cent in cask lots, and if from England one-third less. He asked that the duty on the raw material be wiped out, if shipped in lots of 150 gallons or more, direct from the country where grown.

The chief competition is from Great Britain. Formerly it was from the United States. The olives come from Great Britain in bottles, ready for sale. Small lots also come in casks. The duty on olives going into the United States is only 15 cents a gallon.

Mr. Eckert having stated that his firm exports olives to other countries, Mr. Fielding said that under the customs regulations Mr. Eckert could secure a rebate from the Government on olives brought into this country and then bottled and shipped out again. But on bottles made in Canada no rebate could be allowed where the goods are shipped out, as the bottles paid no uty. The Gorman-Eckert Company is the only firm in Canada bottling olives for shipment. The trade employs ten men.

"You're not thinking of the revenue," said Mr. Fielding to Mr. Eckert. "You want the olives free, and you buy your bottles in Canada, which is very creditable to you."

"But olives are a luxury," said Mr. Brodeur.

"They are," admitted Mr. Eckert. "They are eaten by people who acquire the taste."

In Memory of Irving.

New York, Nov. 20. — Two hundred persons, actors clergymen and others, occupied the Manhattan Theater yesterday, at services in memory of Sir Henry Irving. The services were under the auspices of the Actors' Church Alliance. F. F. MacKay, director of the Dramatic School of Art, made the memorial address.

There is no money in poetry is the comment of this most commercial of ages. And as there is no poetry in money, it is not necessary to count the pros and cons. The verdict is all for the prose.

HOSPITAL WARD NEEDED

Dr. Bruce Smith Recommends One for the County Jail.

Dr. R. Bruce Smith, inspector of prisons, has made his report on the county jail. He finds everything about the building most satisfactory. The improvements in the jail such as the new cement floor, better sanitary arrangements, and the new furnaces, were very highly commended. He recommended that the two aged prisoners should be removed to some institution where they will be cared for properly. The old men's chief crime seems to be that they are old and friendless. Dr. Smith thinks that the jail is no place for them.

The report recommended that a coal cellar be dug under corridor No. 4, as the present arrangement for the storing of coal is most unsatisfactory. While the coal is being brought in, the whole building is subjected to draughts and much inconvenience results. It also recommended a hospital ward.

Dr. Smith also highly complimented Governor Carter on the satisfactory state of the premises. Everything was in good shape. The discipline and management were excellent. He also advised that an increase in salary be given the jail officials, who were considerably underpaid.

TORONTO STORY FALSE

Facts About the Death of Garfield Browne, a Young Londoner.

The funeral of the late Garfield Browne, who died rather unexpectedly in Toronto on Thursday last, was held this afternoon from the residence of the deceased's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. B. Browne, 828 Queen's avenue. Rev. Dyson Hague, rector of the Memorial Church, officiated at the house and grave. Interment was at Woodland Cemetery.

Members of Mr. Browne's family were in Toronto last week, and they learned that the young man's death was due to heart disease, from which he had suffered for some time, and was not caused by drinking a mixture of shellac and alcohol, as reported in the Toronto papers. Browne left Londont three months ago to take a position as assistant foreman in Robertson's confectionery. On Tuesday last he was unable to go to work, and on Thursday, while being taken to the hospital in an ambulance, he passed away. His friends state that his medical attendant was called four times before he responded, and that in the meantime the patient was rapidly sinking. An action may be brought against the physician for criminal negligence.

The deceased was, prior to his removal to Toronto, employed by the Globe Casket Works. He is survived by his parents, five brothers and three sisters, and his wife, formerly Miss Mary Eva Micks, of Weston, to whom he was married just seven weeks ago.

MATTER WILL BE DECIDED TONIGHT

Council to Dispose of License Reduction Question—Engineer on Deck.

The council meeting tonight will in all probability prove a most important one, in that it is expected the temperance question will come up, and the aldermen will be called upon to decide whether a bylaw for the proposed reduction shall be submitted to the people, or a simple plebiscite on the question taken. That the latter course will be adopted seems a foregone conclusion.

A portion of Mr. Jewell's report will also be dealt with, and a warm discussion on the question of more help in the civic offices is to be expected. Other matters of more or less importance will also come up.

Manager King, of the London street railway, had a conference with City Engineer Graydon today, on the subject of finishing the pavement on Richmond street north this fall. Mr. King is willing to go ahead with the work if Mr. Graydon says so, but the engineer is as yet undecided.

Mr. Graydon, who has been very ill, was in his office today for the first time in several weeks. His physician wants him to be careful, and Chairman Forristal, of the board of works, is anxious that he should not expose himself to the dangers of a fresh attack. He suffered from congestion of the lungs, not bronchitis, as announced.

ALLEGED INCENDIARISM

Arrests May Be Made in Connection With Fire in Indian Reserve.

Some time ago the house occupied by the late Sam Plain, of the Indian reserve in Caradoc, was destroyed by fire, and it was suspected that the fire was of an incendiary nature. The authorities began working on the case, and it is said that the parties suspected will be arrested in a day or two.

Advertiser Correspondence

PLASTERERS MAKE DENIAL.

To the Editor of the Advertiser:

I noticed an article in the evening edition of the London Advertiser last Saturday that is, I think, very misleading to the public, entitled "Complete Collapse of the Plumbers' and Plasterers' Combines." Being entirely ignorant of any Plumbers' business transactions, I shall confine my attention entirely to the plastering part of the article, and I think it my duty, Mr. Editor, to contradict in as few words as possible, what I consider is a libel on every reputable contracting plasterer of this city, and a base misleading statement to go before our citizens. Where the writer of the article in question obtained his information is not hard to find, but why he or any other sore head should give publicity to assertions so detrimental to the building interests of this city it is hard to understand. To rectify this to the best of my ability, I positively deny the existence of any combine among the contracting plasterers of London. I admit, Mr. Editor, that the prices for plastering have materially increased during the last year or two, and I shall endeavor to show that there is sufficient cause for it and to do so a few comparative figures will be necessary. We will take a period of the last four years. Then, I could purchase lath for $3 25 per thousand feet; today, $8 50. Lathing 1½ per yard; today, 2½ cents. Lime, 55 cents per barrel; today, 80 cents per barrel. Sand 50 cents per load; today, 90 cents per load. Journeymen plasterers four years ago, $2 per day of eight hours; today, $3 for eight hours' work. Laborers at the same time, $1 50 for nine hours' work; now $2 for eight hours' work, and all other expenses connected with a plastering business have increased in like proportion. So it is easy to be demonstrated that there was more money to be made at plastering four years ago at 20 cents per yard than there is today at the present price of 30 cents per yard for the best work.

I maintain that the citizens of London are getting plastering work done cheaper than those of any other city in this Dominion, and so because the price of plastering has advanced the cry of combine is raised, and because of certain exposures at Toronto re plumbers, the "plasterers of London" get scared, called a hasty meeting and disbanded after burning their books," is the statement given such prominence in Saturday's Advertiser.

Now, I am prepared to prove that those statements are false in every particular, as there was no meeting called or any books burned or any disbandment of any association of plasterers. Further, Mr. Editor, the Contracting Plasterers' Association of London held their weekly meetings as usual and they are open for anyone interested to attend, and any books in their possession will be cheerfully produced for inspection for any properly authorized commission when desired.

Thanking you for publishing the above, I am, fours truly,

Secretary Plasterers' Association.

London, Nov. 20, 1905.

Parsons as Adviser.

Ottawa, Nov. 20. — It is stated here that Sir Charles Parsons, commander of the British forces in Canada, will not leave Halifax until spring. That does not mean that Canada will not have control before then. The general will stay for a time in an advisory capacity.

FLOOD PROOF NOW IS WEST LONDON

Works Chairman Inspects the Breakwater, and Declares the Suburb Safe.

Ald. Forristal stated today that he has made an inspection of the breakwater, and he declares that the village will be proof against floods next year. The alderman declares that no rest will be allowed the workmen until such times as the wall is strengthened, wherever the engineers think it is weak.

Some time ago all the milkmen of the city raised the price of milk and published the names of the dealers who had agreed to maintain the increase. Upon looking over this list, Inspector McCallum found that there are quite a number of milk dealers in the city who have failed to take out a license, so he has taken steps to see that they conform to the law at once.

The engineer's department this morning issued a building permit to Charles E. McHugh for the erection of three 1½-story, brick-veneer houses on John and St. George streets.

THE BUSH FAMILY AGAIN.

The Bush family threatens to break into prominence against, as they have not yet had enough of law. Some time ago Henry Bush, the father, was committed to the asylum for the insane. Not long since he was released, at the instigation of the son so it is said. Now Mrs. Bush is looking for law, and threatens to have the whole outfit arrested. So another chapter in the family's troubles will probably be written.

GEOLOGICAL MYSTERIES

An Interesting Talk on the Formations at Kettle Point.

Kettle Point and its peculiar geological formations came in for a very interesting discussion by Dr. Woolverton, at the meeting of the Etomological Society in the Library Saturday evening.

The subject is one of long standing, great differences of opinion have been expressed in regard to it, and withal it is always an interesting one. By reason of Dr. Woolverton's living in such close proximity to Kettle Point during the summer months he has had greater opportunities than perhaps any other geologist for investigation. His address was illustrated by many interesting fossits and parts of the materials mentioned in his lecture.

The most peculiar feature of Kettle Point is the presence there of the "kettles" or large round masses of limestone containing more or less bituminous matter. These spherical concretes, as the speaker called them, are found there in every size, from the size of a walnut to those four or five feet in diameter, and all have a spherical shape. This latter fact is the great one, which the geologists find difficult to fathom. Another fact of seemingly wonderful portent is that these concretes are gradually growing larger, and in some instances are actually pressing their way, by their growth, through thick masses of bituminous shale, which has a slate-like appearance. These concretes extend out from Kettle Point for six or eight miles, and the concretions are much larger out in the lake.

Geologists all over the world were greatly interested in these globular substances, and a great deal of speculation has been rife regarding their origin. The speaker had obtained nine splendid specimens, but one way and another had lost them. The Indians, finding the sale of the smaller ones a lucrative one, had picked up nearly all the available small ones, and sold them. But many large ones remain there yet.

When broken in two, they break in semi-spherical shape and have much the appearance of petrified wood. The lines radiate from a point near the center. The concretes are, according to Dr. Woolverton, merely a crystallization of liwe and bituminous matter. At Sandusky, Ohio, similar concretes are found, but they are not spherical. Their center is found to consist of a fossil of some sort. At Kettle Point fossils seem to be very scarce. In the concretes the center is clay and iron. The absence of fossils was explained by the speaker by the presence of iron in the water. This also accounts for the peculiar color of the shale in the vicinity.

Kettle Point is the only point in Canada where the corniferous formation is exposed. Some examples of the hard, tough, rocklike substances were shown. Slightly east of Kettle Point is a point named by Dr. Woolverton "Silica Point," where this substance is found to a great extent. The silica that is incorporated in the stone found at "Silica Point" makes the corniferous formation which is found there.

The concretes originally are centers of clay and iron, and in the course of time the deposition of the matter continued until their present condition was reached. As all bodies have an affinity for one another, the crystallized limestone attracted all the rest of the same substance in the vicinity. The action of the water and frost has brought many to the surface, but they grew in the mud deposit where they were.

When set on fire the limestone concretes will burn freely, and the speaker attached credence to the old Indian tradition of Kettle Point once acting as a beacon light and being on fire. Dr. Woolverton had seen the concretes burn freely.

Other matters regarding the formation of this western country were touched upon, the whole forming a most profitable address.

NENUPHAR.

THE name of our new pattern of World Brand Silver-Plated Forks, Spoons and Fancy Table pieces.

TWICE the amount of silver is plated on the goods as is carried on the regular A1 quality of other standard makers.

THE beauty of the design is brought out by the gray-finished handle and bowl.

THE goods must be seen to be appreciated. We take pleasure in showing them.
