The Ring.

TO FIGHT FOR A $12,000 PURSE.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 24.—Parson Davies, for Jim Hall, and George R. Clark, for Bob Fitzsimmons, to-day signed articles of agreement for a fight to a finish with four ounce gloves, Marquis of Queensberry rules between Hall and Fitzsimmons, for a purse of $12,000.

The match is to take place in St. Paul, Minn., July 22, the winner to receive $11-000 the loser $1,000, the men to weigh at the ring side in costume.

Both contestants agree to weigh not over 156 pounds.

A forfeit of $1,500 has been posted by each man with Frank N. Shaw, who is to name the club under the auspices of which the fight will take place. Davies and Clark are to agree upon a referee.

The Turf.

J. M. Johnston purchased at Fredericton yesterday the thorough-bred stallion Balboogie Prince for $345.

W. S. McKie of Charlottetown has his celebrated Percheron stallion Duroc in town en route to Bangor.

D. W. McCormack's gray gelding Mose who has been more or less in the hospital with a sore toe for a long time, has wintered finely and comes out this spring almost as good as new. He never looked better since he struck St. John. Mose is a good all round horse. To-day he can carry you to the front in almost any [company and tomorrow the ladies may drive him around town as they please, letting him stand anywhere.

Lady Sim (2.38¼) has had a fine let up since the snow went off and is now looking as fine as silk. If all goes well and she is on the turf this summer there is no doubt but that she will reach the 30 mark before the season closes.

Allie Clay, wintered at Charles Ward's stable (one mile house) where he still remains and for general appearance, condition, style and action has no superior in the city. He was very much admired on the road last winter.

Lakeland Wilkes, lately imported by J. M. Johnson is also, for the present, at Mr. Ward's stables where he is being cared for and jogged. He was in town Wednesday afternoon and elicited universal admiration. He is a beautiful bay stallion with dark points, three years old, good size and, though not much accustomed to harness, has action like clock work.

A new horse arrived at Peter's stables, Wednesday for a popular young mill owner of this city who is a little fastidious in the matter of horses and the presumption is that this is a good one Just where he came from is not very well known but suffice it to say he is not liable to customs seizure and may be safely counted a "dark horse."

Speculation, 2.32¾, made his appearance on the road a few days ago, his first outing since the snow went off. He looks as though he had been stopping at a first class hotel since last fall. Intelligent horsemen set great store by this fine young stallion whose early track performances were so much admired. George Carvill, the owner, has just added another token of appreciation by presenting his horse with an entire new suit made of heavy black cloth with gold trimmings which may now be seen hanging in the window of of T. Partelow Mott's store, Union street, where the suit was made to order.

Breeders of trotting stock in this city never before had so many elegible stallions from which to make their selection. In addition to those named above is the stud of John McCoy at Woodside, one mile from the city, where will be found Sir Charles, who probably has as many admirers as any horse in Canada; Mack F., whose young stock is creating a favorable impression; Thorndale Echo, who is spending his first season here, and a number of others which it would scarcely be safe to attempt to enumerate later than two hours after visiting the farm, as no one can tell what may be Mr. McCoy's next addition nor how soon it may be made.

Indications point to a good season for Moosepath park this summer as there are more horses, young and old, to be worked than there ever has been before. The Park management have under consideration an afternoon meeting for the 24th May which would be a popular move if the season will permit. It has been suggested that as soon as the track is dry and in good order, a free afternoon at Moosepath might be arranged and all owners invited to exhibit their trotting stock, and the public invited to see it. This would make a very interesting meeting and might be rendered servicable to both the track and horse owners in future. The track committee are live men and will doubtless be heard from in a few days.

There will probably be no trotting circuit arranged for New Brunswick this summer as Fredericton has expressed disinclination to go in after the experience of last year, which leaves only too tracks, St Stephen and Moosepath.

Police Court.

Dow Parks, charged by Albert Hodge, with assaulting and beating him on Main street, was fined $20.

John Campbell, a vagrant, was sent into jail.

James Welsh, Wm. Fitzgibbons and Jeremiah Donovan, drunks, were fined $4 each.

Bernard Devine charged by Julia Ann Elson, with assault was fined $20.

Michael Manning was fined $20 for breaking windows.

Minnie Burns, charged with assault against Addie Foley, was allowed to go on payment of cost.

James McKenna charged with overworking and neglecting his horse will be brought before the magistrate on Monday.

FAREWELL SUPPER.—Frank McGillan who has leased the Intercolonial Hotel, Sussex, was last night, tendered a complimentary supper by some thirty or forty of his gentlemen friends at Prof. Washington's. J. R. Currie occupied the chair. After the supper, the chair proposed "The Queen," which was responded to by Messrs. Walker and Wakeling. J. S. Currie next proposed "the guest of the evening" which was responded to by Mr. McGillan in a neat speech. Horace Richardson proposed "the press" which brought up Mr. Ed. Secord. The following programme was then carried out: Violin selections by James Wilson, piano selections by D. L. Currie, Highland Fling by Elijah Brown, Flute solo by J. H. Bond, step dance by Messrs Walker and Scott and numerous songs by others. Mr. McGillen takes charge of the hotel in a few days.

Lady—"That lady over there is my sister." Brown—Lord be praised that I am not her brother." Lady—"What do you mean?" Brown—"You see, if I was her brother I'd never be able to flirt with her."

CLIMO'S GRATUITOUS SERVICES at the studio of the Centuries will be further extended by an offer to make photos of the characters connected therewith at half-price. 85 Germain street.

Investigating a Strange Death.

Coroner Berryman began an inquiry last evening into the death of John Erskine, which occurred a few days ago under suspicious circumstances at his home on Brussels street.

Ellen Erskine in testimony stated that she was the widow of John Erskine. She was at her own house, 104 Brussels street, on Tuesday evening. Her husband was there. He had a bad cough. He went to bed about 7.30 o'clock; she was then in bed. They kept two lodgers. Scribner had been there since Hallowe'en, Higgins not so long. She drank no liquor on Tuesday. She slept very well all night. Scribner was in. Higgins came in at 9 o'clock. He was not very drunk. No one else came in that night. There was no row at all. Between 6 and 7 o'clock on Wednesday morning she heard her husband making a noise. She called Scribner and Higgins. She told Scribner to go for a doctor. The doctor said Erskine was dead. She did not take any liquor that day until 1 o'clock.

The coroner here admonished the witnesses to tell the truth, as he knew from his own knowledge that the last statement was not true.

Witness repeated the statement.

She didn't know of any cause for Erskine's death. She knew nothing about any cut in the back of her husband's head. She didn't think a row could have taken place in the house, and she not know anything about it. She always slept pretty soundly. Her daughter Mary Jane Toner, was not in the house Tuesday night.

George Higgins testified that he had been lodging at Erskine's for two or three weeks. Last Tuesday night he got home between 9.30 and 10 o'clock. Mrs. Erskine opened the door for him. He drank nothing Tuesday night. He knew nothing about the cut. He didn't see Mary Jane Toner in the house that night.

Dr. J. A. Simon testified to having examined Erskine on Wednesday morning last. He was dead. He saw deceased again Thursday night, and found blood on the back of his head and on the pillow. He removed the hair from the back of the head of deceased and found the wound on the left side of the head. It was a very straight wound with no ragged edges. The back of the head was slightly chafed. Witness thought from the appearance of the blood that the wound was inflicted before death. The wound presented the appearance of having been caused by a blow. There might have been a fracture of the skull, that would have been sufficient to cause death.

John O'Leary, sworn, testified that he worked with Dean on Brussels street in the yard next to Erskine's. He had heard quarrels in the Erskine house. Scribner, one of the chief witnesses, did not put in an appearance.

The inquest was adjourned until to-night at 8 o'clock.

Florida's Labyrinthian Waterways.

"Where have you been?" said a guest at one of the hotels yesterday as a friend walked up the steps, well laden with souvenirs from south Florida.

"Oh!" was the reply, "I've been down to Charlotte Harbor and up that river with the unmentionable name."

"Caloosahatchee?"

"Yes, that's it. I spent six days trying to pronounce it and haven't succeeded yet. These Indian names are beautiful names, but they are decidedly hard to pronounce. By the way, where have you been?"

"Well, I went over to the Suwanee river, cut over the country and shot 'gators on the Withlacoochee, fished for bass in Tsala Apopka, sailed on Thonotosassa, skipped over to Okonlockhatchee, walked by the shores of the Weohyakapka, plucked flowers by Hickpochee's limpid waters, visited the sugar fields on Tohopekaliga, sailed on the tortuous Kissimmee, was buffeted by the waves of Okeechobee and have also captured tarpon on the Caloosahatchee. I expect to visit Istokpogayoxle, Lockapepka, Hatcheneeha and Ecantockhatchee before I leave the state."

"Gosh!" ejaculated his companion as he stepped into the hotel.

Tommy—"Can we play at keeping a store in here, mamma?" Mamma (who has a headache)—"Certainly; but you must be very quiet." Tommy—"Well, we'll pretend we don't advertise."

The Charm of Eugenie's Face.

When the Empress Eugenie was at her best I could only admire her side face, and thought the front face unpleasant and full of glaring defects. Its under part (les bas joues) was the reverse of oval, and approximated to the pear shape of Louis Phillipe's visage. The nose at the nostrils was very wide and at the bridge so extremely narrow as almost to be unsightly. Her eyebrows rose far too high above the inner corners of the eyes and fell much too low at the outer ones. The eyelids seemed drawn down along with them. She had a very poor forehead, and the narrowness of the face across the eyes showed that the mass of brain behind was too limited in quantity and had not, such as it was, room for easy play. All these defects have become accentuated. But I think her profile, from an æsthetic standpoint, more beautiful than in the triumphant phase of her strange life, because of the purifying action of sorrow and, I doubt not, concentration. Its harmoney is marvellous. The charm vanishes when the front face is presented.
