They have been extensively and successfully used by the Medical Faculty, many of whose most distinguished members in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, the United States elsewhere, have given ample testimony in their favor.

These Bitters produce a feeling of buoyancy, removing depression or melancholy, and hence are of great value in the treatment of Mental and Nervous affection. They produce a healthy flow of the secretions, and should be used by all who suffer from

SECOND EDITION.

CRONIN'S MURDER.

A LIVERY STABLE KEEPER TELLS A STRANGE STORY

Which Throws Suspicion on a Chicago Detective.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

CHICAGO, May 25.—The Times says "The Times within the last 24 hours has come into possession of a most important and most startling chain of facts. A white horse and buggy which carried the men who lured Dr Cronin to his death has been discovered and the man who ordered this rig according to the story of the livery stable keeper, is a detective in the employ of the Chicago police force and his name is Daniel Coughlin. On the morning of Saturday, May 4, Coughlin called at the livery stable of Patrick Dinan, and gave notice that a friend would call about 7 that evening and that he was to be given a horse and buggy. That evening a man called and was given a buggy and white horse and about 7.15 the man left the stable with the rig and drove north on Clark street and according to Frank Scanlan it was 5 minutes thereafter when the stranger drove to Cronin's house and informed Cronin he was wanted at Sullivan's ice house. Dinan says the man asked for a buggy with side curtains but he had none to give him. The white horse and buggy were returned to the stable by Coughlin's friend at 9.30. Dinan says he thought nothing more of the matter until Monday morning, when the papers began to publish Cronin's mysterious disappearance, and the peculiar connection of a white horse and buggy with the sensation. Then he became suspicious of the trip his own white horse made under the guidance of detective Coughlan's friend. He went at once to the East Chicago avenue station to tell Capt. Schaack of the curious coincidence. He found the Detective Coughlan who took him aside and cautioned him not to say anything about the affair of Saturday night because, not being on good terms with Dr. Cronin some, re might think he had sometl with his disappearance, told Captain Schaack his story and insisted that a full report be made to chief Hubbard. But becoming suspicious that the report had not been made, he called on the chief himself. The matter is now being investigated.

The Minister of Inland Revenue.

(Charlottown Examiner.)

The Hon. J. Costigan, M. P., enters upon his seventh year's service as Minister of Inland Revenue to-day. In the last twenty years the country has had fourteen Ministers in this Department; and, without disparagement of any, it may be said that Canada has ample reason to be satisfied with Mr. Costigan's administration. The employes of the inside and outside service, through a fixed system of examination and tenure of service, have well grounded hopes of promotion, mainly dependent on each officer's own skill, ability and merit. The Minister has put it within the reach of the most deserving, irrespective of other influences, that every position, however important or lucrative, inside or outside, is open to every employe. The status of the service is improved greatly by this very knowledge, acting as an incentive and inducement for officers to use their best exertions to attain not only a high technical proficiency, but also to reach that goal where the public see united the useful officer and the worthy employe. The systems adopted for collecting the excise, defeating illicit manufacturing, inspecting divisional work, and generally administering the service, have greatly advanced, developed and matured until now, by the statement for 1867, the initial year, and 1888 the closed year of Mr. Costigan's administration, the public can see what the blue books show to the House of Commons. In 1882, the revenue was seven per cent higher than in 1881, and 15 per cent. higher than the preceeding four years' average. In 1888, the revenue amounts to six and and a half millions, equal to 1878, though the obnoxious "stamp act" has long since (March, 1883) been abolished. The expenses of collection for 1882 were $522,344; for thirty four divisions, four hundred and thirty-nine employes, and a population of about four and a half millions; for 1888 the years expenses were $644,854, thirty-seven divisions and four hundred and sixty-six employes, with a population of nearer six millions, and very largely increased territory for supervision and collection. Examinations have become a regular part of the service; promotion a statutory fact. The popular Minister of Inland Revenue regards his department as something to benefit the people of Canada. He is still in life's prime, having been born in 1853 in Quebec Province. His early manhood was spent in New Brunswick. From 1881 to 1886 he was M. P. P. for Victoria County, N. B.; and from confederation in New Brunswick until now he has represented Victoria, N. B., without a defeat in twenty years or more. Clear-minded and courteous, in official and civil life, Mr. Costigan is worthy of the congratulations of his officers and the gratitude of his fellow-countrymen.

Mr. Ritchie's Appointment.

The Royal Gazette, which is dated Wednesday, did not arrive here until this morning. It contains the appointment of the Police Magistracy, Chief of Police and Recorder, under the Union act, 52nd Vict. Cap. 27. Mr. Ritchie's appointment is as follows:—

Robert J. Ritchie, Esq., to be Police Magistrate for the City of Saint John, in the City and County of Saint John.

There is no mention of Mr. Peters who was made Police Magistrate by the act of Union. As Mr. Peters does not appear to have been removed, he must still be Police Magistrate under the terms of the Union Act. If Mr. Peters is still Magistrate, Mr. Ritchie must be sitting illegally. His title should be tested by a writ of quo warranto.

Fall River Mill Adopts the Profit Sharing Plan.

FALL RIVER, Mass., May 23.—A sensation was caused here this morning by the announcement of the directors of the Bourne mills corporation that they had decided to adopt the plan of profit sharing with their operatives. The arrangement will begin July 1st and extend to the first of next January as an experiment. The exact details of the arrangement have not yet been determined upon. This radically new departure in Fall River mill management and its result will be watched with great interest by the management and employes of other corporations.

THE "SHAMROCK'S" NEW GROUNDS.

About 20 men under the inspection of Mr. P. J. Gorman are at work getting the "Shamrock's" grounds at La Tour Rink' North End, ready for use. The work of filling and draining is progressing favorably, and it is expected will be far enough advanced in a week or ten days to allow of the clubs using the rink for practice. These centrally located sporting grounds include an area of the La Tour rink and several hundred feet in the rear, and will be large enough to give a 100 yard track across parallel wit' Main street, and another at right angles to it of 125 yards in length. There will be a cinder path ¼ of a mile long and 15 feet wide all round at a distance of 7½ ft. from the fence. The erection of a grand stand near the entrance is also under consideration, so that all over the grounds will, in every respect, be all that can be desired.

The Shamrocks have secured the services of Messrs. Kelly and Donovan for their training, and have good prospects ahead.

St. Croix Coal Mining Association.

A meeting of this association was held this morning pursuant to adjournment, Mr. James Kennedy, president, in the chair. In the absence of Secretary Duffell Mr. J. Arch. Milligan was appointed secretary pro tem.

A telegram received from Mr. R. G. Leckie by Mr. Cruikshank in which the former accepts the proposal to purchase the Joggins's mines for a price that will net $200,000 to the Association, was read and was discussed at some length and quite forcibly pro and con by some of the stockholders who were present.

Some of those, who, at the former meeting were not unwilling to sell the mines for the above sum, have since changed their minds, and expressed themselves strongly today against a sale at those figures.

The varied and in some respects conflicting interests of the Joggins stockholders, the Phoenix stockholders and the Joggins railway stockholders, influenced the utterance of the different speakers, and, it seemed at times as if nothing would be done.

At length a resolution offered by Mr. T. W. Daniel, empowering the directors of the Association to take steps to secure the necessary 75,000 shares required to nullify the existing lease to the Phoenix in order to a sale to the Syndicate which Mr. Leckie represents, and at the figures in his telegram, was put and was decided as carried. The vote was taken by ballot and on shares.

The total number of shares voting was 72,248.

Of these there were for the resolution 45,964
Against the resolution 26,284

Although the vote was taken on shares it was considered a majority vote, and the resolution was declared carried.

It did not transpire during the meeting whether it is an English or an American Syndicate that Mr Leckie now represents in these negotiations.

On the vote being declared the meeting again adjourned till 5th of June next, at 11 o'clock, a. m.

New Brunswick Cheese.

The Montreal Trade Bulletin refers to the starting of cheese factories in New Brunswick and commends some of the samples which it has seen as being equal to Ontario cheese, "splendid keepers and others use very desirable goods." The export of cheese from Canada to the United Kingdom last year was 1,409,000 boxes as compared with 1,908,000 boxes now to the United States, so that Canada is not ahead in this business. We hope New Brunswick will presently enjoy a good share of this trade.

THE CORPSE MOVED.

ANOTHER CASE OF SUSPENDED ANIMATION.

After Lying Motionless for a Day and a Half a Supposed Dead Man is Restored to Life.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24. Residents of the little village of Corner Stores, about two miles from Phoenixville, Chester county, are persuaded that a miracle has occured there in the revival of a supposed dead man. Seven months ago Lafayette Rennard, a man of 34 years, who is employed in the Phœnixville Iron works, was stricken down at his residence at Corner Stores with inflammtory rheumatism. During the past few months Rennard has been suffering with heart trouble superinduced by his prolonged illness. His condition reached its critical stage last Saturday, when his physician, Dr. Reeder, announced to the family and relatives that he would live only two hours longer. At the expiration of that time Rennard took a few short gasps, quivered slightly and stretched himself out stiff and cold like a corpse.

His wife who was attending him, immediately summoned all the relatives living near her home, and preparations begun for the burial of Rennard. A day and a half passed and the supposed corpse still lay cold and placid. Mrs. Rennard, however, objected to having her husband put into the ice-box before Sunday afternoon, thinking possibly he might be in a trance, and the undertaker was notified to that effect. The afternoon all the family and relatives gathered together in the room where he lay. Suddenly, while they were engaged in conversation, the corpse moved a little on the board on which it had been placed. A startled look passed over the faces of the relatives present, but each thought that probably the movement of the corpse was merely imaginary.

Hardly had they recovered from their agitation when the supposed dead man raised one arm and onened his eyes. Consternation seized the family and relatives, and they became so frightened that they could not move from their chairs. Rennard's wife, however, who thought all along that her husband was merely in a trance, rushed to his side and begged him to live. The supposed corpse slowly regained his consciousness, nodded to his wife, and in a few minutes he was able to speak. He told his wife and relatives that he had been cognizant of everything that had transpired during his supposed death, but that he could neither move a muscle nor say a word.

Immediately after the remarkable restoration of consciousness the order for his coffin was cancelled and notices were sent to distant relatives that the death of Lafayette Rennard, as announced was not true. Mrs. Rennard said yesterday that she never thought her husband dead at any time, and that she would never have allowed him to be buried before a week had passed. He is gradually improving, and the physicians are confident that he will surely baffle death this time.

A PROFLIGATE ENGLISHMAN

After Squandering One Fortune Comes into Possession of a vast Estate—His Career in this Country.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 23.—John Wilkin Lowry, the St. Paul auctioneer, who has fallen hair to $50,000 a year and vast estates in Cumberland, England, has received a cablegram from Dobinson & Watson, his solicitors in Carlise, stating that they had forwarded to him a letter of credit for $5,000 and requesting him to proceed to England at once.

Young Lowry has been until recently a profligate having within two years squandered $40,000 left him by his father and gotten into innumerable scrapes. With his stroke of good fortune comes a dash of bitterness that threatens to mar his future happiness.

Since his arrival in St. Paul two years ago he has been on terms of intimacy with a young woman poorer than the traditional church mouse, and of whose ancestry no mention is made by Bourke or Debrett. Lowry accomplished the girl's ruin, and to prevent a suit for seduction and the probable loss of his position, he made the girl his wife.

At that time he did not dream that the Lowry estates would ever come into his hands. Now that he has suddenly fallen into the lap of fortune, he is trying to suppress the fact of his marriage. Mrs. Lowry, however, has heard of her husband's windfall, and says that she intends to go to England with him and be mistress of Lowry hall. The estates are among the most extensive in Cumberland, valued at upward of $3,000,000, and besides there is an income of $50,000 per annum from an investment in English consols.

SECOND SIGHT.

The Extraordinary Case of Mrs. Emma Althouse.

ATTICA, N. Y., May 24.—Mrs. Emma Althouse, whose continued trances during the past two years have attracted so much attention, has taken a change for the better and there is a chance that she may entirely recover. Mrs. Althouse partakes of small quantities of nourishment but is wholly powerless to sit up in bed where she has lain during two years of her illness. Her last trance lasted only a week and she has had several short naps of three or four days. In one of them she plainly saw the scenes attending the inauguration of President Harrison but her strength was not sufficient to fully describe them. The longest trance she had lasted thirty-five days.

BOODLE RULED THE ASYULM.

More Testimony Before the Cook County Insane Asylum Board.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 24. In the inquiry as to the state of affairs at the Cook county insane asyulm today, Dr. Clevenger, formerly a member of the medical staff there, testified that it was impossible for a reputable practitioner or attendant to stay there. "The most disreputable ones were the ones to stay, because they devoted more time to intrigue. The disreputable ones practised a system of elimination of the better element by either physical violence or other means. Once in 1883, I heard screams of pain, and running from my office found two attendants standing over a patient named Hertzberg, who was bleeding profusely. I knew there was no use in making any complaint, as the attendants were supported by John Cummings' influence on the county board. Soon after they rebelled and refused to obey my orders. They secreted bodies on which I desired to hold post mortem examinations, and I could not get them for two or three days after they were buried. I published a statement, and the following night one of the attendants called me a vile name, and a few moments later a shot was fired down stairs, and a bullet crashed through the floor and lodged in my bookcase." Soon after this the doctor resignod.

"What is the matter with the institution now?" was asked.

"It is under the influence of boodleism. It is in a bad place, on unsalubrious ground. There should be new buildings for male, as well as female, patients. No building should have more than 500 patients, because it is impossible for one man to oversee more. Then the county board should be kicked out and the asylum put into the hands of a state commission." The doctor told how boodleism had prevented investigations.

UNHAPPY NEW YORK GIRLS.

One Finds an Unfaithful Lover and Others Want to Leave Their Husbands.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Mary Klein, a shop girl, 23 years old, told in court today how her lover, August Petrie, had swindled her out of $800, and had then deserted her. Petrie took her savings at the end of each month for two years, for the ostensible purpose of depositing them in bank. She eventually learned that Petrie had spent her $800 upon other girls. Tomorrow Miss Klein will bring into court some of the girls, whose dresses and theatre tickets Petrie paid for with her money.

Mrs. Frank Harrison wishes an absolute divorce and $50 a week alimony from her wealthy husband, Capt. Harrison of Brooklyn. Capt Harrison is anxious enough for the divorce, but objects to the alimony. His counsel in showing why Mrs Harrison should not get her $50 a week, to-day read in court several letters which her husband had found in her secretary. All of them had been written by her to John R. Hatch, formerly Capt. Harrison's best friend. The letters were signed "Your own little wife" or "Your own little girlie." In every one of them Mrs. Harrison told "Jack" how much she loved him, and what "a disagreeable old thing" her husband was. She also hinted that she was preparing to get a divorce so she could marry him. Hatch is a married man and prominent in yachting circles.

Mrs. Florence Gale has served a summons in a suit for absolute divorce from her husband, Walter Gale, the actor.

COMPLETION OF A RAILWAY UNEQUALLED IN MAGNITUDE AND DIFFICULTY.

The C. P. R. Line Through Maine Built in a Wilderness Over Mountain and Stream—To be Opened on Monday.

BANGOR, Maine, May 21.—Of all the railroad projects ever carried to a successful completion in New England none equals in magnitude and in difficulties overcome that of the Canadian Pacific railway across the state of Maine. Not even the famous Hoosac Tunnel route, on which the state of Massachusetts spent millions, can compare with it, for while the former was carried on in the midst of civilization and where sources of supply were established upon every hand, the latter was built in a wilderness and across chains of mountains so far remote from the settlements that more than one hundred of miles were traversed without crossing a single highway, except an old military road leading from the Kennebec valley of Quebec, in Canada. So rough was the country, so wide and deep the rivers, ponds and lakes, so hard and high the mountains, that no less than five attempts to establish a line were made, each attempt costing, in survey work alone, over $15,000.

The building of the road began from Megantic, Canada, southeasterly across the state, running in an air line, save where it swung south around the foot of Moosehead lake to a point on the Maine Central known as Mattawamkeag, about sixty miles from the New Brunswick line. From this point running rights were obtained over the Maine Central to Vaceborough, where the New Brunswick railway is taken to St. John, Halifax, and all points in the maritime provinces. The New Brunswick system had been acquired by the Canadian Pacific people. Therefore on the completion of the roads, the Canadian rails would be down from the Atlantic to the Pacific save the few miles mentioned, and it was understood that at an early date a charter would be asked for to run down to the ocean from Mattawamkeag and to a point opposite St. Andrews, N. B., and at that point the St. Croix river would be bridged to the old English cathedal and garrison town on one of the best seaports on the American coast, and one from which ships can put to sea in a brief space of time.

From here there ran, by a direct route to St. John, a road known as the Grand Southern, and soon after the Maine charter, spoken of above, was granted, Russell Sage came here from New York for the first time in his life and purchased this connecting link, every foot of which is on English soil, while American and English capitalists purchased large blocks of shore front in St. Andrews under the name of the St. Andrews Land Improvement company.

Three years ago the Canadian people began work on the Maine line, putting into the forests thousands of woodsmen for whom it was difficult to procure food. However, by much work a rude roadbed was made for the bringing in of supplies, the work being done, to a great extent, by Italian laborers, who came from New York by thousands, and Maine men who had heard so much regarding protection to American labor, and who had hoped to clear a few dollars by working for the foreign corporation, stood idly by and saw men work for 75 and 85 cents a day.

Then the work went on, and gradually rails were laid up to ponds, lakes and rivers, and then came a set of bridges from the Union Bridge company and the Edgemore Iron company, which surpass anything of the kind to be seen upon any road in New England. Two of them are viaducts, 150 feet high and 843 feet long. The latter, known as the Ship Pond viaduct, is said to be a superior structure to any other in the country, save one, and it cost, with the remaining 4,000 feet necessary to make the mile $300,000.

In addition to these there are about twenty other bridges nearly all of iron. Running from west to east as the road does, while the rivers of Maine run south as a rule, every large river in the State, save the Androscoggin, has been bridged. The Pennobscot, Kennebec, Pleasant, Moose and other rivers all have been bridged at a cost of millions.

The road is now practically completed, and although summer has come and the ports of Quebec and Montreal are open, the Canadian people can now say for the first time that their line extends from the Pacific to the Atlantic and, save the sixty miles of Maine Central road, all is under one management. Next winter this new line will be utilized for winter business, but during this summer only a fast mail service will be established and an effort made to open up the immense coal mines of Nova Scotia, with a view of supplying Canada with that article of fuel. The outlook now is that steamers will run from some point on the coast of Maine to Europe in the winter, in connection with the road, these being the vessels which run from the St. Lawrence in summer. New York men hope to make Castine such a port, and have a charter to tap the Canadian Pacific above here.

Maine hopes for much through this new line, but already one American company has received a set-back. The American express controls the business on that line in this section and also in New Brunswick, but in a few days they must withdraw from the foreign soil, as the Canadian Pacific officers have informed them that the Canadian Pacific Express will do the business.

W. C. Van Horn, president; T. A. McKinnon, general manager; Mr. Rideout government inspector of railways for Canada, and Assistant Superintendent Vanzille have inspected the Canadian Pacific Maine and New Brunswick railway in the province, and have ordered the road opened on June 2. Forty locomotives have been assigned to this division. Nine freight trains are to be put on to move the large lot of freight awaiting shipment to and from the west. A fast English mail and an emigrant train are to be added at once.

Vast timber lands, among them being thousands of acres of white birch, which is exported as spool wood, have been opened up; vast water powers can now be utilized, and, with or without annexation, Maine is bound soon to be richer by hundreds of thousands of dollars through the push of Canadian railroad people and Canadian coin.
