Poetry.

ANTHEM.

Sung on the occasion of the Marriage of the Princess Royal of England.

WORDS BY TENNYSON, POET LAUREATE.

God bless our Prince and Bride!
God keep their lands allied,
God save the Queen!
Clothe them with righteousness,
Crown them with happiness,
Them with all blessings bless,
God save the Queen!

Fair fall this hallowed hour!
Fairwell, our England's Flower!
God save the Queen.
Fairwell, first Rose of May!
Let both the peoples say,
God bless thy marriage day!
God bless the Queen!

VARIETIES.

A POLICE STORY WITH A MORAL.—Catherine Mear is a widow lady of some six months' standing, plump, blooming, and radiant in all the beauty of mature womanhood, while Richard Winther is a young and debonair, whose sanguine temperament induced him to imagine that he had erased the impression of the 'dear departed' from the heart of the relic, and degueerotyped his own image in its place. They were fellow boarders in a house on Fifth street, of some three month's acquaintance, during which time it appears that the gallant Earl escorted the fair widow on several occasions to the theatre and other places of amusement. Presuming upon the incipient intimacy which thus sprung up while sitting together in the parlor of the boarding house, he attempted to improve the opportunity of stealing a kiss from the ripe lips of the luscious widow, who struggled, but as he persisted she screamed, which brought the landlady and several boarders upon the scene, the former declaring that she would have no such carryings on in her house. The mortified widow burst into tears, and the whole formed a very interesting tableau. A male friend and probably a rival took the matter in hand, and the result was that the too confident Richard Winter found himself compelled to attend the tone horse court of Justice McFall, to answer to a charge of assault and battery.

The affair, as presented, was rather a poser to Squire John, who didn't know what to make of it. At lengthe said he:

"Did he kiss you, madam?

The widow blushed and simpered 'Yes.'

"Well, did he hurt you?'

"Oh no, sir,' replied Mrs. Mear.

"Then there's no assaut and battery in the case,' rejoined the magistrate, 'so, young man, you're discharged; only,' continued he, 'when you try it on again, don't strike the iron before it is hot.

A letter from Paris to the Boston Post says:—"Some dark hints have been thrown out by Orsini whose expressions at hope in the ultimate success of the federation to which he belongs are open and undisguised. He declares that the association to which he belongs is no pettifogging Italian conspiracy to overthrow the governet of such a city—the mayor of such and such a village, but the grand European bond of brotherhood—to assist each man in claiming his own, avenging the common wrong, and in the abolishment of all tyrants and their tyrannic rule. 'To this society we men of '48 belong, all or us. Louis Napoleon himself is one of its sworn members—he has violated his oath—he has betrayed us all—he knows the rules of the association—he knows the wording of the oath he took—he knows the penalty he must pay—he knows that he must die!' If such be the truth, and these really be the words of the assassin, much that has seemed strange and mysterious will straightway be accounted for. The Italian section of the secret society, which has ramifications all over the globe, was the one from whence the first avenger was to be drawn; and in this section lots will be delivered until the black deed be accomplished.

Such is the account given by the people who profess to know every secret; and, from doubtful, it has grown to be considered correct, and is openly talked of as justifying sundry rumors which have gone before, and which had bidden us to prepare for the very thing which has just happened.

Ever since the great attempt, the emperor is seen taking his daily walk in the private garden belonging to the Tuileries. He leans upon the arm of a tall, strong man, and walks with a thick cane as well. He looks wretchedly ill, and has aged wonderfully in the last few months, leaning his head forward, and raising his shoulders behind, in the most painful careworn manner."

REV. DR. BELLOWS ON THE ELEVATION OF WOMEN.—Rev. Dr. Bellows lectured at the Warren Street Chapel on Monday evening last on the above mentioned subject. He discussed the alleged inferiority of women to men, their political rights, the laws in regard to the property of married women, want of independent individual action in married women, favoring in this connection to some extent a seperate property in the wife. He also spoke of the desirableness of having many kinds of employment which are now almost exclusively carried on by the male sex, equally open to both sexes, and equally paid; of the unhappy effect of the almost universal expectation of marriage on the part of women, of the propriety of educating girls, as boys are now educated, for some particular calling or profession; of the great responsibility of women of influence to set examples of simplicity in dress; of a higher order of social intercourse; and of more energetic and systematic assistance to the poor, and the unfortunate and the vicious.

The lecture gave evidence of much originality of thought and patient observation. It would afford fruitful themes for discussion.—Bost. Journal.

WHAT ARE YOU LOOKING FOR.—A man was angry with his wife, as was often the case, either because she talked too much, or contradicted him, or for some reason or other; in short, he was out of humor with her, and resolved not to speak to her for a long, long time. He kept his resolution for a few days very strictly. One evening he is laying in bed and wishes to sleep; he draws his blankets over his ears, and his wife may say what she will, he hears nothing of it. The wife then takes a candle, and carries it to every nook and corner of the room; she removes stools, chairs, and tables; and looks carefully behind them. The husband sits up in bed, and gazes inquiringly at her movements, he thinks that the din must have an end at last. But he is mistaken. His wife keeps on looking and searching. The husband loses patience, and cries, What are you looking for? For your tongue, she answers, and now that I have found it, tell me why you are angry. Hereupon they became good friends again.

PREVENTION OF PITTING IN SMALL POX.—Mr Martin, the senior surgeon in the Gurney Hospital for diseases of the skin, has recommended to the Medical Times, a very important plan, which he has adopted during the 14 years, for preventing pitting in small pox, and which he states has always proved successful. The plan consists in applying acuumcanthardides or any vesicating fluid, by means of a camel hair brush to the apex of each spot or pustule of the disease on all the exposed surface of the body, until blistering is evident by the whiteness of the skin in the parts subjected to the application, when the fluid producing it is to be wished off with water or thin arrow root gruel. The pain attending the application of the vesicating fluid is very slight and transient.

A CURIOUS CALCULATION.—The Meteorologist at Brooklyn Heights states that the entire depth of rain and snow melted that had fallen in New York in a period of 32 years, may be stated at 115 feet, and could it have all remained, would have afforded a free channel for navigation of large merchant ships across the Continent from New York to Quebec. The greatest water between the points in the channel would be at the summit at Champlain Canal, seven miles this side of Whitehall.

The bogs of Ireland, it is stated, are being made to furnish candles of as pure paraffine as our American coal. There are no less than 3,000,000 acres of this peat land in Ireland. The peat is from 12 to 40 feet thick.

A country exchange says: As our 'Devil' was going home with his sweetheart a few evenings since, she said to him,—'Nat I fear I shall never get to Heaven!' 'Why,' asked the knight of the ink keg. 'Because,' said she with a melting look, I love the Devil so well.'

WILLIAM GABRIEL begs to Tender his sincere thanks to his friends and the Public for the extensive patronage hitherto received from them; and he takes this method further to inform them that he is prepared at all times to execuet orders in his line of business, in the be t possible manner, and in the style that is most suitable to this Country.

AMERICAN HOUSE,
BOSTON.
RE-ESTABLISHMENT OF THE OLD PLAN OF MANAGEMENT.

LEWIS RICE, Proprietor, respectfully announces that he has resumed the old plan of management as it existed before the recent alteration. Trial of the European system in this Hotel, proves, that although the advantages are great, yet the plan is better adapted for the smaller class of hotels.

The accommodations and conveniences of the House are unsurpassd, and the recent improvements and alterations, for the comfort of guests, leave nothing to be desired.
