THROUGH THE AIR.

Successful Voyage From Cherbourg to London in a Steering Balloon.

The balloon Torpilleur, which is fitted with a patent steering and propelling apparatus, and in which the aeronaut L'Hoste and astronomer Mangot ascended from Cherbourg, France, at 11 o'clock last Thursday evening, descended in London at 6 o'clock the next morning. The aerial navigators returned to Cherbourg, and will attempt a voyage from that place to Norway.

The most recent feat, with conclusive proofs in the new born science of balloon navigation was performed in France on September 24, 1885, by the young military engineers, the brothers Renard, from the camp at Cholons, within a few miles from Paris. Starting at 4.25 p.m., the aeronauts reached Point du Jour after 5 p.m.; returning to the camp at 5.45 p.m.—a distance of three miles each way. On this journey in the outward trip the wind was against them, opposing the advance of the apparatus toward the capital at the rate of four metres per second. The rate of speed of the balloon, as recorded by the "log balloon," was six metres per second. The revolution of the screw was fifty-five per minute; its diameter seven metres. The volume of the balloon was 1860 cubic metres, filled with pure hydrogen gas. The machine was eight horse power, constructed by M. Gramme, with a battery by Captain Renard, weighing in all 320 kilos, and capable of working at the rate given for two hours. The whole journey was performed with perfect evenness, and the balloon acted in a most satisfactory manner. After the journey Captain Charles Renard said: "I consider the problem of aerial navigation solved by the results of our experiment." A journey was also made on Sept. 23, 1885, with much the same results, the only difference being that the wind was with the aerial boat going out and against her on the return journey, and was light all the time, blowing at the rate of one metre per second. The distance covered was about five miles.

On November 3, 1884, Captains Renard and Krebs made a balloon voyage from Meudon to Bellancourt, and returned, alighting at the point from which they started in forty-five minutes. This was the third attempt made by Captain Renard with his balloon and steering apparatus, the second having proved a failure. His first attempt was in August, 1884, with such good results as to create the greatest interest in all the military circles of Europe. The balloon was cigar-shaped and pointed at each extremity. In the car were seats for two aeronauts, and the balloon had a directing apparatus and rudder. The force was obtained by a series of electric accumulators of ten horse power, and the balloon was operative for four hours.

On October 29, 1883, an experiment took place at the Place de la Defense, Courbevoie, Paris, under M. Brisson, but the cable apparatus failed and the result was consequently unsatisfactory.

In June, 1879, Professor Grimley started from Montreal for New York in the air ship Canada, but he had a fearful experience and came near losing his life owing to the poor quality of gas used.

In September, 1879, Professor C. R. Ritchell's air ship was sent up at Hartford, Conn. It consisted of a balloon above and a vertical screw, worked by hand power, beneath for lifting purposes, and a horizontal screw for steering. The result was anything but a success. In a four-mile breeze it could be steered but at a little increase above that force, it drifted miles to leeward.

An Inventor's Advice.

—George Stevenson when advising young men how to get on would finish by saying, "Do as I have done—persevere." For fifteen years he plodded and worked before giving the finishing touches to his locomotive. In as many days those persevering in the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," have experienced great relief and found themselves on the high road to health. Liver complaints, impure blood, chronic lung diseases and many others yield to its healing influences never to return. All druggists.

The Rosedale Lacrosse Grounds will accommodate 10,000 people. On Monday next the largest gathering ever seen will take place. Go and see the crowd, also the Irish gentlemen show Canadians how they play lacrosse in Ireland.

—Mr. S. Lachance, a leading French druggist of Montreal, says: During my holiday trade, the new perfume, the "Lotus of the Nile," was much called for, the result, as I found, of the ladies who had used it, talking so much about it to their friends. I never saw a perfume that seemed to please everybody so effectually. 36

—West's Pain King excels all other remedies in promptly curing dysentery, diarrhœa, flux, colic, cholera, cholera morbus and all diseases of the stomach and bowels. Price only 25c. All druggists. d

Shoes in Style.
From the Brooklyn Eagle.

"Boots have gone almost entirely out of fashion," said a Fulton-street shoe dealer. "In former years, or about the time of the war, they were very popular. But one man out of a hundred will now wear them, and this is owing, I suppose, to the fact that shoes are much cheaper. And then good boots are costly. I could not make a good pair for less than $12. Old men whose daddies wore boots cling to their old associations, and it is with the utmost difficulty that they are made to give them up. A boot in warm weather is an abomination. It not only causes the wearer great discomfort, but it is not a thing of beauty. I have not sold a pair of boots in a month. I notice that the present generation have much smaller feet than their fathers or mothers, and that they take great pains to have them neatly covered. The boot precludes all idea of neatness and symmetry, and, in consequence, it has been for many years boycotted by young and dressy men. It is only in the far West, where the 'greaser' roams at will, and where the pistol and the bowie knife play important parts in the settlement of difficulties, that the boot is popular and much affected. Notwithstanding the reports to the contrary, many cattle dealers and cowboys still retain the habit of placing their trousers in their boot legs and exposing firearms. A few boots are now sold to horsemen, but they are made up in the finest style and best quality of leather. Oh! no. Boots are but the relics of a bygone age and never, I think, will become popular again."

Boys' odd suits, worth from $4 to $6, selling at $2.50 per suit this week at Petley's. 35

—Thousands of lives saved annually by the use of West's Pain King, the household remedy for chills, colds, flux, summer complaint, dysentery, colic and cholera. Only 25c. All druggists. d

—No one need fear cholera or summer complaint if they have a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels promptly and causes a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and old, rich and poor, and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for cholera, dysentery, etc., in the market.

A New Reading.
From Tid Bits.

"I've heard of 'an eye for an eye,' 'a tooth for a tooth,' etc., but I never heard of 'a hand for a hand' until to-day," said a young man to a friend.

"How did it happen?"

"I was calling at the house of my best girl and had mustered up courage to ask her for her hand."

"And you got it?"

"Got it! No. Didn't the old man came in the parlor and give me his?"

—Cholera morbus, cramps and kindred complaints annually make their appearance at the same time as the hot weather, green fruit, cucumbers, melons, etc., and many persons are debarred from eating these tempting fruits, but they need not abstain if they have Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, and take a few drops in water. It cures the cramps and cholera in a remarkable manner, and is sure to check every disturbance of the bowels.

Too Good to Be True.

They were wandering through the woods when the small child picked some berries.

"Papa, what are these?"

"That's a wild vine, my child."

"What's it for?"

"They make wine from that."

They trotted along, when she picked another berry and squeezed it, and a soft, creamy froth came out.

"Oh, papa, see. Here's some wild beer."

"No such luck," said the tired parent.

BRIDES AND BEAUTY.

A Philadelphian Finds Both at Niagara Falls.
From the Philadelphia Times.

Brides are still a feature of Niagara. Though other things have changed the brides still remain the same. Though it is a current and accepted axiom that everyone is privileged at Niagara to imagine that every blooming, blushing young woman with an attendant cavalier they see must be a bride, and while many are taken to be brides who are not and vice versa, there is no escaping from the fact that more brides in all the happy halo of first honeymoon days are to be encountered there than anywhere else in the wide, wide world. Elsewhere the presence of a newly-married pair, the glamor and peculiar interest of having a bride around, is considered of rare importance. At Niagara it is nothing. At the International Hotel, with its twenty or thirty suites of bridal chambers, to have a score of brides at once is an ordinary incident. In a single day one may see a delicate blonde German bride refusing at the hotel table the second piece of his own chicken her swain has offered her; a Boston bridal pair, with heads together conning the same book in a geological crevice of worn and pebbly brown rock on Goat Island; a New York Benedict and Beatrice playing hide-and-seek in the sequestered shadows of the tall poplars of Prospect Park; a dark, languid bride of the South, with her affectionate lord, who casts stiletto glances at the smiling groups, that note as the carriage passes how she holds his cane and he her smelling bottle; a trim, gentle English novice on the matrimonial sea in a blue yachting suit, whose mate in white flannel from head to foot holds her arms as she peeps over the Horseshoe Precipice; a queer young Philadelphia couple in carefully subdued attire, with their shoulders at an inclination of forty-five degrees toward each other, who feel sure that no one suspects they were lately married; and at every turn and in every nook and corner, kindred specimens of that sweet absorbing egotism that has ever characterized "love's young dream."

There are 40,000 Irish and descendants of Irish in Toronto. The lacrosse grounds won't hold all, but if you are crowded on Monday next reserved seats may be had on the fence.

—It is of the greatest importance that all bowel and stomach complaints should be attended to at once, especially at this season of the year. West's Pain King is prompt, reliable and certain never to fail. Only 25c. All druggists. d

—Worms cause feverishness, moaning and restlessness during sleep. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is pleasant, sure, and effectual. If your druggist has none in stock, get him to procure it for you.

Lord Churchill's American Gold.
London Letter to San Francisco Argonaut.

Talking of speeches reminds me that I have read a most amusing remark made by Lord Randolph Churchill in one of his, a few nights ago. Here is the remark: "Mr. Gladstone has also American gold to help him. Eighty-five members of Mr. Gladstone's party absolutely depend for their living on the almighty dollar."

There isn't prima facie anything very amusing in it, is there? No. But here is where the amusing part comes in. The laugh begins if we reflect that at the present moment Lord Randolph Churchill is himself—as he has been since his marriage—if not altogether, at all events mainly, supported by American dollars, got through his pretty wife. When he married Miss Jennie Jerome, of New York, and got a bagful of American gold and "mighty dollars" from her papa in exchange for his very trumpery title, he was almost unknown in the political world. An utter failure at Oxford, where he was a well-known "sponge"—as the other undergraduates of his college can tell you—he chanced to be so lucky as to meet at a dinner party in Paris the beautiful American girl who has since become such a prominent character in England. She might have had a hump, or a squint, or a snub nose, it would have been all the same to Lord Randolph, for she had money. I don't think her beauty would have helped her to become Lady Randolph Churchill. Like all other Englishmen of his class, Lord Randolph wouldn't have married any woman who hadn't money, and would have maraied any woman who had, and when he found that Miss Jerome owned the Union League Club property in New York, why he proposed for her "right away." Her acceptance of his little pasty hand was the beginning of the successful side of his career. He knows this as well as any one. And, therefore, I say he is no one to sneer at anything American.

—West's Pain King acts promptly, cures quickly. Never fails to cure bowel complaint, colic, cholera morbus, cholera. Costs but 25c. and is always ready. Enquire regarding its merits of any druggist. d —Is there anything more annoying than having your corns stepped upon? Is there anything more delightful than getting rid of it? Holloway's Corn Cure will do it. Try it and be convinced.

The qualities of the steel wire door mat appreciated. Two more large orders from Australasian Colonies for steel wire door mats just received, making in all nearly two thousand within past few weeks. 136

She Had a Coal Mine.
From the Wall-street News.

He entered the office of a capitalist in Richmond the other day and quietly inquired:

"How much would a vein of coal half a mile long, a quarter of a mile broad and fifty feet thick be worth?"

"I should say $25,000, but if you want more exact figures, and will give me the location, I think I can——"

"Oh, no, you can't, Colonel," interrupted the quiet man. "I'm going to marry her myself as soon as the cars can take me out there."

And he hustled out as if fearful that the capitalist might locate the widow and the spot.

—All leading druggists will gladly inform anyone enquiring as to the wonderful merits of West's Pain King. The standard remedy for flux, dysentery, summer complaint, cholera morbus, cholera, colic, etc. 25c. d

A Plain, Simple Man.

"Gentlemen, he said to the reporters, as the sheriff put the knot where it would do the most good, "will you grant me one last request before I die?"

The reporters, to a man, said they would.

"Then write me down as having been simply 'hanged,' not 'launched into eternity.' I'm no dude."

This request caused some consternation among the younger reporters, but they all kept their word.

—C. A. Livingstone, Plattsville, says: "I have much pleasure in recommending Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, from having used it myself, and having sold it for some time. In my own case I will say for it that it is the best preparation I have ever tried for rheumatism."

The Place for Decollete Costumes.

Mr. Minks (horrified)—"Do you mean to say, Mrs. M., that you are going to the party in such a dress as that?"

Mrs. Minks.—"Why, certainly, the neck isn't half so low as Mrs. Dash's."

"I think you better wear your old dress and keep that one for the musicale next Thursday."

"The musicale! Where?"

"At the blind asylum."

—A lady in Syracuse writes: "For about seven years before taking Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, I suffered from a complaint very prevalent with our sex. I was unable to walk any distance, or stand on my feet for more than a few minutes at a time, without feeling exhausted; but now, I am thankful to say, I can walk two miles without feeling the least inconvenience. For female complaints it has no equal."

The Celestial Passion.

O white and midnight sky, O starry path,
Wash me in the pure and heavenly crystal flood;
Cleanse me, ye stars, from earthly soil and scath—
Let not one taint remain in spirit or in blood!
Receive my soul, ye burning awful deeps,
Touch and baptise me with thy mighty power
That in ye thrills, while the dark planet sleeps;
Make me all thine for one blest, secret hour.

O glittering host, O high angelic choir,
Silence each tone that with thy music jars;
Fill me even as an urn with thy white fire
Till all I am is kindred to the stars!
Make me thy child, thou infinite, holy night—
So shall my days be full of heavenly light!

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
EPPS'S COCOA.
BREAKFAST.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
