—"Why is it," exclaimed a leading ratepayer, "that whenever a fire alarm is sounded No. 2 and No. 3 brigades come dashing up town in most cases to find a chimney is blazing, and then to go back after a hard ride? They should only come when the chief finds their services necessary and sends for them. Supposing a fire occurred in the east or south part of the city during this absence?"

At Osgoode Hall.

Re Alger and Sarnia Oil Company—Judgment on appeal by James A. Moore, a shareholder of the company, from an order of the local judge at Sarnia staying proceedings by the appellant upon certain applications in the matter of the winding-up of the company until the appellant should give security for costs of those applications. An order of the court had delegated to the local judge in the most plenary manner the powers exercisable by the court for the winding-up. The learned chancellor holds that the local judge had jurisdiction to make the order and also that it is a proper case for security for costs. Appeal dismissed with costs. There was also an appeal from an order of the local judge dismissing an application by Moore, which was one of the applications upon which proceedings were stayed. Judgment upon this appeal suspended till security for costs is given. If not given within a reasonable time application may be made to the chancellor. G. W. Marsh (London) for the appellant. Duncan MacMillan (London) and E. R. Cameron (London) for the respondents.

Among Scenes of His Childhood.

Mr. Thomas Martindale, a former resident of this city, now a prosperous merchant in Philadelphia, has been on a visit to scenes of his childhood in Northern England. At St. John's town hall the other night he gave an address on "Weardale's Wants," advocating the construction of an electric railway to facilitate travel in that romantic neighborhood. The Auckland Chronicle of Oct. 2 thus refers to the interest which this warm-hearted native of England yet takes in the locality where he spent his early days: "High House Chapel has been closed for some time, and is undergoing rehabilitation. The architect (Mr. Geo. Race, Westgate), after sundry internal alterations, placed the decorative work in the hands of Mr. Wrathall, Barnard Castle, who has amply justified his selection. Mr. Thomas Martindale, an old dalesman, has arrived from Philadelphia, America, to assist at the reopening, with his wife and son, and they are staying with Mr. Joseph Watson, Ling Rigg. It will be remembered that Mr. Martindale placed a memorial clock in the gallery on his last visit, and he is the principal promoter of the present renovation."

Death of R. Waddell.

The death was announced yesterday morning of Robert Waddell, at his residence, 562 Ridout street. He had been confined to his room for about a week, the complaint being kidney trouble. His constitution was naturally strong. Deceased was born in Newry, county Down, Ireland, in 1823, and when young emigrated to Canada and settled in Kingston, where he resided for a short time. While there he was married to Miss Mary Coston. Shortly afterwards he removed to this city, where he has lived for 46 years, and was for some time head bookkeeper with the firm of Adam Hope & Co. Of late years he has been engaged in the insurance business and was remarkably successful. Mr. Waddell was admired and respected by all who knew him for his integrity of character, geniality and pronounced ability. He was very tasteful in his habits and appearance. Although taking no active part in politics he was always a Conservative. The Church of England loses a valued member by his removal. Deceased leaves a family of three sons and two daughters—Miss Waddell and Mrs. F. J. Hammond, of this city; Thomas, of Chicago; Samuel, of the Northwest Territory, and Johnson, of this city. The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Pupils to be Equally Divided.

Inspector Carson was directed to distribute the pupils equally among the teachers in each school, even though a teacher be thereby required to teach two grades, by No. 1 Committee of the Board of Education Wednesday. Pupils resident outside the county and studying for a first-class certificate at the institute will have to pay a fee of $1 a month and supply their own books, in case they are taking the English literature course. The city solicitor will prepare the proper forms for the enforcement of the Truant Act. Applications for positions on the kindergarten teaching staff were filed for reference. The name of Miss Field was added to the list of public school teachers, Inspector Carson reporting that she held a first-class certificate and was an excellent teacher. The chairman and inspector will get prices and purchase at the lowest price one gross Andrew's dustless blackboard erasers and one dozen boxes colored crayons. There were present Messrs Yates (chairman), Dewar, Stephenson, Jeffrey, Jeffers, Inspector Carson, Principal Merchant and Secretary Abbott.

Mark Twain's "Prince and Pauper," as dramatized by Joseph Hatton, is said to have made a distinct hit in London. But Mark Twain is not the only American humorist who is meeting with success on the stage. Bill Nye's "Cadi" is improving with every performance, and is nightly delighting large audiences.

A Hartford, Conn., dispatch says: Mrs. Clara Louise Kellogg-Strakosch, who is living at her summer home at New Hartford, was petting a strange dog last Saturday, when he seized a diamond ring she had removed from one hand and was holding in the other. The dog swallowed the jewel, which had cost the owner $350, and the prima donna began negotiations for the purchase of the dog. The owner agreed to part with the dog for 50 cents, which Mrs. Strakosch gladly paid. The animal's value has now risen to $350 50.
