ADAMS' GINGER BEER RECIPE.

Adams Extract .....one bottle
Fleischmann's Yeast ....½ to one cake
Sugar ..... two pounds
Cream of tartar .....One-half ounce
Lukewarm water ..... Two gallons

Dissolve the sugar, cream of tartar and yeast in the water, then add the extract; stir until thoroughly mixed and immediately bottle in strong bottles or jugs, corking and tying the corks securely. Place the bottles in a warm place for several hours until the yeast can work sufficiently to make the contents effervescent, then store in a cellar or other cool place.

If these directions are strictly followed and Fleischmann's or fresh homemade yeast is used, failure to produce a bright, sparkling, foaming and refreshing drink is an impossibility. zxv

After Sam Barker.

Former Londoner Charged With Slandering a Torontonian.

No Escape for Him—Mr. Barker Must Either Prove His Charge or Stand Guilty.

The following lively correspondence appears in the Hamilton Times:

Sir,—Noticing in today's Globe, in an account of Mr. Whitney's meeting at Dundas, an attack made on me by Mr. S. Barker, I have written him for an explanation of the outrageous statement, of which the inclosed is a copy. As the meeting took place, and the statement is said to have been uttered in the district of Hamilton, I will thank you to give publicity to my challenge to Mr. Barker, and who, being the offender, must not complain if I nail his ears to the gates of your city, as is usually done with foolish or malicious creatures who venture where angels fear to tread. Yours,

PETER RYAN.

Toronto, July 7, 1897.

Toronto, July 7, 1897.

Samuel Barker, Esq., Hamilton, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—In today's Globe you are reported to have said at Mr. Whitney's Dundas meeting, "that in 1895 Mr. Peter Ryan, whom the speaker characterized as a government pet, had, when employed to auction off certain timber limits, bought one portion in for $115,000. He had done this, although at the time he was not only the government auctioneer for such occasions, but also registrar for the county."

Will you please furnish proof or any justification whatever for the above grave charge, or say on what you have based the statement? You are by no means an ignorant man or one who can screen himself behind a cloud of irresponsibility.

I trust you will lose no time in publishing the details, for many there are who will real such with much interest and no small measure of gratification. You must either apologize for the statement, or I will very promptly take steps to afford you every opportunity to justify in the courts. Perhaps you thought you were safe in making the statement, and that it would help to tone up a somewhat stupid speech, and excite horror in the hearts of the "patriots," but, however much you may relish this cowardly warfare, I must in self-defense pull you into the open, where you shall not lack for opportunity to prove your charge of my unjust stewardship.

However much I may have offended in your eyes as a party man in the past, and however marked my defects as an auctioneer may be, dishonesty as such is certainly not one of them, and while in your reckless charge you give amount and date, I will confine you to neither, but say that if you can prove that I ever personally or by any member of my family or any person on our behalf were financially interested in any timber berth that was sold by auction when I was auctioneer, save and except my ordinary commission, I will admit your justification. You are not the first to make such a statement in public, but I have never failed to follow up the slanderers, just as I am determined to follow you unless you do me the justice of saying that you were not warranted in saying what the Globe reports as the spice of your address.

In waiting your reply, and which I reserve the right to use publicly, I have further to say that there is a much worse element in this country than even the dishonest auctioneers, and that is the rather numerous class who "bear false witness against their neighbor," and who vainly imagine that party warfare justifies the use of falsehood and the destruction of their fellow-citizens' good name.

I await your explanation before giving the case into the hands of my solicitors. Yours truly,

PETER RYAN.

BLAMES THE REPORTERS, OF COURSE!

The following reply is printed:

Hamilton, July 8, 1897.

Peter Ryan, city registry office, E. D., Toronto:

Sir, I have this morning your letter of yesterday.

At the Dundas meeting I commented upon the financial position and the dealings of the Ontario Government with the timber of the province, and I particularly mentioned their taking Mr. Peter Ryan from his fine, fat registry office in Toronto, and from his public duties, to receive, no doubt, further big fees as auctioneer of timber limits. I mentioned this as a matter which had received the condemnation of the Conservative party. I also alluded to a law report in the Globe of June 25 last, wherein it appeared that a Mr. Peter Ryan—presumably this same auctioneer and holder of a fine government office—was, in February, 1895, in a position to contract for the purchase from a Mr. Fraser of one timber limit for the handsome price of $115,000, and that Mr. Ryan was apparently able to undertake to pay the cash within 30 days.

It you wish to publish this statement as a correction of the Globe's report of the meeting, which report I have not seen, you are at liberty to do so; and if you prefer to test in the courts my rights at a public meeting to state such facts as these, go ahead. Yours faithfully,

SAMUEL BARKER.

SAN JOSE SCALE

Said to Exist in Twenty Counties in Michigan.

Lansing, Mich., July 9.—At the next meeting of the state board of agriculture an inspector will be appointed under the authority of a bill passed by the last legislature, to prevent the spread of the disease known as the San Jose scale, which afflicts fruit trees.

The disease proves fatal to trees if the greatest care is not taken. It first appeared in California, whence it found its way to New Jersey and recently to Michigan through the nurseries which ship young trees into the state. It is now known to exist in 20 counties in this state. To the naked eye the twigs are incrusted in a fine white scale impervious to water, which may be removed only in the winter time by a strong solution of lye. The scale is the product of a minute insect which fastens itself upon the tree and penetrates the wood with its long feelers or borers.

The inspector to be appointed will have authority to prosecute persons who neglect to destroy the pests, to inspect nurseries and to destroy trees which are afflicted with the borers.

Terrible Deed.

The Work of a Revengeful Incendiary.

Entire Family of Six Persons Burned to a Cinder in Kentucky.

Pineville, Ky., July 9.—Hugh Joeson and family of five, who live fifteen miles north of this place, were burned to death Tuesday night, being unable to escape from their cottage, which was fired over their heads. The dead are:

Hugh Joeson, the father; Mary Joeson, his wife; Fannie Joeson, a daughter 14 years old; John Joeson, a son 10 years old; a daughter, 8 years old; Maggie, a daughter 6 years old.

The remains of all six were found in the debris. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin, and the Bell county officers are taking steps to discover the criminals.

LASHED TOGETHER.

Bodies of Mysterious Suicides at Cleveland Recovered in the Lake.

Cleveland, July 9.—The bodies of Horace J. Johnson and his daughter, Effie, who were the occupants of the boat which was found empty off Lakewood on Monday morning, were discovered yesterday morning floating near the beach at Lakewood, lashed together.

The anchor rope was fastened securely about the body of the man. It was then tied to the woman's body. The anchor, which was a 30-pound stone, was at the end of the rope, and it served to hold the bodies at the bottom of the lake.

MELTED HER CORSETS.

Electric Bolt Strikes Mrs. John W. Allin and Finds a Conductor.

Columbia, Mo., July 9.—During a terrific thunder storm last night John A. Allin and wife started from Centralia, Mo., to Columbia, driving a two-horse team. A lightning bolt fell upon Mrs. Allin, striking her upon the crown of the head, burning away half her hair and melting several hairpins. The lightning then passed down her side, melting her corset steels and tearing the buggy seat to pieces.

The electricity then passed forward and instantly killed both horses. Mrs. Allin was unconscious for several hours, but will recover.

The buggy was demolished, but Mr. Allin, who sat beside his wife, did not receive the slightest injury.

CANADA'S PRIME MINISTER

Is the Peer of the Empire's Great Statesmen.

The reception of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in England is practical proof of the recognition of the fact that he stands in the first half dozen of the statesmen of Great and Greater Britain. He has been with us but a few weeks, he is of modest and retiring nature, yet his features have "caught on" with the public as freely as his policy. The occasion is a great one, inasmuch as it is, we think, the first time on record in which a politician of our new worlds has been recognized as the equal of the great men of the old country. Representing a vast dominion, fruitful in every sense of the word, richly mineralized, peopled by the best blood of Old Gaul and Old England, he comes to us splendidly introduced, of course; but it is his work, so closely watched for some years in this country, that has obtained for him the splendid reception accorded to him wherever he shows himself in public.

The colonial prime ministers are, as a whole, a fine body of men. It must be frankly admitted that a comparison with parliamentary representatives of this country and not a few politicians of cabinet rank is greatly to their advantage. Without exception they are excellent speakers, they are of fine presence, and while hard-headed, practical men of business and affairs, they are not without that tinge of imagination without which no man can be truly great. Sir Wilfrid Laurier especially appeals to the English mind. In addition to his great gifts, he is possessed of a charm of manner that would make him very welcome as the representative of the Dominion in this country. Some such practical outcome of this gathering of our kith and kin there must be. The present system of agents-general and high commissioner is an excellent one in many respects, but it should be supplemented. The colonies need a voice in the Imperial Parliament. They have shown us by practical example that their statesmen are every whit the equal of our own, and we trust that in the many conferences now taking place between them and Mr. Chamberlain this essential is not being overlooked.

With such live and active men at work in London for their respective peoples, the practical progress of imperial federation would be greatly facilitated. They would tend to increase the weight and importance of government that has lately become of less and less importance. Such a man as Sir Wilfrid Laurier in particular would be a splendid addition to our parliamentary forces if Canada can spare him. But can it?—London Mail, June 30th.

TO WELCOME HIGHLANDERS.

Toronto, July 9.—The committee to receive the Forty-eighth Highlanders' team will have money enough to give the men a substantial purse in addition to the gold medal each will receive.

The list of invited speakers to a reception on arrival is as follows: Sir Richard Cartwright, E. F. Clarke, M. P., Lieut.-Col. McLennan, M.P., Glengarry; Hon. G. W. Ross and Mayor Fleming.

Max Major, of Kildonan, has successfully solved the problem whether strawberries could be grown in Manitoba. He has a two-acre field, which is now covered with luscious fruit, and he expects to pick from 1,500 to 2,000 quarts. The berries have a very fine flavor, being much superior to the imported article.

None of His Business.

Philosophers, lazy men and Turks have many qualities in common. So, at least, it would appear from the reply of a Turkish pasha to the British minister at Constantinople, who had asked for information concerning the population and trade of a certain province.

"Illustrious friend, joy of my liver!" the pasha's letter began. "The thing you ask of me is both difficult and useless.

"Although I have passed all my days in this place, I have neither counted the houses nor have I inquired into the number of the inhabitants; and as to what one person loads on his mules and another stows away in the bottom of his ships, that is no business of mine.

"O my soul! O my lamb! seek not after the things that concern thee not. Thou comest to us and we welcome thee; go in peace.

"Of a truth thou hast spoken many words, and there is no harm done, for the speaker is one and the listener is another.

"After the fashion of thy people thou hast wandered from one place to another, until thou art happy and content in none."

Doubtful Point

An old deacon in a New England town is possessed of such an inquiring mind that no subject is without its doubtful points for him, and they must be made clear before he is satisfied.

It is customary for the older members of the congregation to gather in a pine grove behind the church after the morning service in pleasant summer weather, to eat dinner and to have an informal talk from the minister.

One Sunday the subject under discussion, in a series of talks on the Old Testament, was "The Jews: Their Ceremonies and Observances."

"Now," said the minister, who was an enthusiastic young man, and greatly enjoyed his noon Bible class, "let us first see why these ceremonies and observances were imposed upon the Jews; how they came to be imposed upon them."

"There's one p'int I should like to have settled before you begin on that," rose the deacon's voice, quavering with age, but not with indecision.

"What is that, Deacon Twombly?" asked the minister, with a sinking heart, but a cheerful smile.

"Well, sir," quavered the deacon, "the p'int I want settled is, How be we sure and sartin that the Jews considered them ceremonies and observances an imposition? I say, how be we sure of it?"

Grass Without Water.

Mr. J. B. Olcott, the grass expert of Connecticut, where he has a collection of 1,500 varieties from all parts of the world, thinks grass may be grown on the arid plains of the west without water, says the San Francisco Chronicle. The possibility of a green carpet of forage grass covering the Majove desert is one of his refreshing suggestions. Mr. Olcott, having grown good turf in Connecticut without watering, is anxious to try some grasses in a winterless land, where they may grow without interference from snow and fierce cold. Correspondence has been opened with Prof. Hilgard, of the California College of Agriculture to see if a place may be found for the experiment at one of the state stations.

There are in Russia 12,174 private and about 10,000 military physicians, making on the average one physician to every 50,000 of the population.
