MR. BOSTON VERY POPULAR

Liberals at Coldstream Give Him Grand Reception.

Workers of Lobo Make Ready for the Fray—Mr. Calvert's Speech.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Liberals of North Middlesex was held in the town hall, Coldstream, last night. Despite the cold, stormy weather there was a large attendance, between 150 and 200 of the stalwarts of the riding being present. The meeting was primarily for the purpose of the organization of the Lobo workers for the approaching fight.

Among the speakers were Mr. W. S. Calvert, M. P. for West Middlesex, and Mr. Robert Boston, the Liberal standard-bearer for North Middlesex.

Mr. Calvert made an excellent speech, dealing with the work performed in the postoffice department, the Grand Trunk Pacific, the great advantages of increased transportation facilities, and other matters, his discourse being listened to with marked attention throughout, and at its conclusion he was loudly cheered.

Mr. Boston, in rising to speak, was given a splendid ovation, and he appeared to be tremendously popular with all present. His speech was a modest but able one, and dealt with the causes which led up to his nomination, and also with the progress of the country, which was due in no small measure to the policy of progress carried out by the Liberals. Mr. Boston was cheered to the echo as he took his seat.

The meeting broke up at a late hour with cheers for the King, Premier Laurier and the speakers.

The meeting then elected Mr. Dugald Graham, of Ivan, president, and Mr. T. G. Turnbull, of Komoka, secretary.

Mr. W. S. Calvert left immediately after to address a convention of Liberals in East Kent.

ENGINES WERE DISCARDED

900-Class Moguls Not Well Adapted for Freight Service.

Grand Trunk Now Has Thirteen New Machines in This Division.

The monster 900 class freight engines which a few months ago were placed on the middle division of the Grand Trunk, have been taken out of the service, having proved unsatisfactory.

The locomotives were of the simple type, and it was found in a short time that they were not suited to freight work. There are a number in the passenger service, hauling the through trains from Sarnia Tunnel to Suspension Bridge, and these will be retained, being well adapted to passenger work. The freight engines were hard on the firemen and the coal pile, and fell far short of the mark made for them in the matter of hauling heavy trains.

In their place, thirteen engines of an improved type are now doing the work. They are known as the 800 class, of the compound variety, and although in use only a short time they have demonstrated to the satisfaction of the railway authorities, that they are superior to the old class. They haul equally as heavy a train, make better time, and are far easier on the coal. They have six driving wheels, weigh 163,700 pounds, and have a total length, over all, of 62 feet.

EXPRESS WRECKS LIGHT ENGINE

The Advertiser that, although dozing in a seat, he was not aware a collision had occurred until a full hour after it happened.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

Trainmaster Price told The Advertiser that it was impossible to say as yet who was responsible for the accident. At the switch, where the accident occurred, there is a semaphore, and Engineer Robinson, of the express claims that this was set for him to come ahead. He did so and was not a hundred yards from the light engine when he saw the locomotive was foul of the main line. Then he did all in his power, but unsuccessful, to avert the wreck.

Fireman Norwood on the other hand, claims that the switch was set to hold the express until the freight engine, No. 839, on which Phibbs was killed, had crossed the main line. Who is right in the matter, Trainmaster Price said, it was impossible to determine at present, and, of course, the Grand Trunk will hold an investigation to ascertain where the blame rests.

HARD JOB FOR WRECKERS.

The men on the auxiliary as well as the yard hands, had a terrible time of it. It was bitterly cold in the early morning, and the snow was whirled into the eyes of the workers in a most provoking manner. Some of the men had also been on duty 36 hours, and were very tired. Nevertheless, urged on by the officials, they worked like Trojans, and while one gang strove to lift the baggage car from the north track, another was at work digging the ice from the rails and putting the roadbed in shape. A large crowd had gathered on the scene and it kept two or three men busy warning the sight-seers to keep away from the danger points. A couple of times the big two-inch cable snapped and the ends flew in the direction of the crowd, but fortunately no one was injured, though there were two or three narrow escapes. Among the crowd stood many of the passengers, who were interested spectators.

OTHER TRAINS BLOCKED.

Because of the wreck, other trains for the east were, of course, held at London. On No. 4 were about 20 or 30 passengers, and these were furnished with meals at the company's expense at the Grand Trunk dining-room. No. 24, due out of here at 8:10, was also held.

Shortly before noon the blockade was removed, and No. 7, with a new engine pulled into the depot here at a little after 12. At about 1 o'clock the train was sent on its way westward, the passengers all being greatly pleased at being allowed to resume their journey.

All other trains which were held in this city on account of the wreck resumed their usual runs at noon, but of course there was none of them on time.

Engineer Phibbs was quite a young man—scarcely 25 years of age—but he bore the reputation of being a first-class engineer. He was well-known all along the line and his death is sincerely regretted by all who knew him.

Coroner MacLaren has ordered an inquest to be held at Harrison's undertaking rooms at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

A large audience appeared to be greatly pleased with the Quaker Vaudeville Company, who opened a week's engagement at the London Opera House last night. All the songs, sayings and skits introduced were new, and the show was well worth double the price of admission. Some very fine illustrated songs were also given, and the performance as a whole was very satisfactory. Tonight the performance will be repeated, and some new features will also be introduced.

WAS A GOOD INCREASE

Contributors at St. James' Presbyterian Church Grow in Numbers.

New St. James' Presbyterian Church was crowded by the members of the congregation last evening, when unfinished business from the annual meeting was disposed of, and a social meeting held. Rev. A. J. MacGillivray presided, and the report of the subscription clerk, Mr. T. Brown, was received. This report showed a net gain over the previous year of $739, and a net gain in the number of subscribers of 35. The report was adopted, and Mr. Brown thanked for his services. Votes of thanks were also passed to the choir, and the ushers, for what they had done during the year. No action was taken in regard to the question of increasing the seating capacity which was fully discussed.

After the business portion the congregation spent the rest of the evening in a social manner in the lecture room. The ladies served a much enjoyed supper and a programme of music was given by Misses Yealland, Albright and Edith McLeod, and Messrs. Quantz, Havard and Davidson.
