"Climax Furnace" for Wood.

Is Admitted by All to be the Best Furnace in Every Way that can be Purchased in the Market.

The Climax Furnace with Radiator is made wholly of heavy cast iron and CANNOT POSSIBLY CRACK BY EXPOSURE TO HEAT.

The Fire Box or Dome, is made in one piece and heavily corrugated; thus giving great strength and heat radiating surface, and so constructed that the joints cannot leak smoke, which is the great objection to every other Wood Furnace in use. The feed Door is large and will admit of burning all kinds of rough wood, which, with the Check Dampers, controlling the fire, makes the Climax Furnace also the most economical. There being no thin plates or sheet iron used in its construction it will easily

Last for 20 Years Without Repairs.

I am prepared to contract for the heating of buildings at lowest possible rates for good work, and have secured the services of experienced workmen so that I can

Grand Juries may be Abolished.

Hon J. S. D. Thompson, the Dominion Minister of Justice, has addressed a circular to the Attorney Generals of the provinces, and judges charged with judicial functions in criminal matters, in which he says: "The question of the expediency of abolishing the functions of grand juries in relation to the administration of criminal justice, has on several occasions been brought to the attention of Parliament, and intimations from time to time been made to the government by municipal bodies, judges and other interested in criminal jurisprudence, that the abolition would be in the public interest. It is my intention to lay before Parliament in the near future, a bill codifying the criminal law of Canada both as regards substantive law and procedure. Before submitting to it, however, I would be very glad to to be favored with your views upon the question above mentioned."

S. & W. Agricultural Society Meeting.

The members of the Sackville and Westmorland Agricultural Society held their annual meeting in Powell's Hall, on Tuesday afternoon; president C. F. McCready in the chair. President McCready, in opening the meeting, congratulated the members upon the flourishing condition of the Society and upon the work done during the past year. The Treasurer's report was then read and passed. It showed that during the past year there had been received $1126.59. The premiums at the exhibition amounted to $486.50, and expenses $1004.68; leaving a balance of $121.91 in the treasury.

The secretary, in his report which was passed, referred to the lightness of the crops of the past two years and its tendency to rob farmers of enthusiasm in their calling. The past spring had been cold and wet; later came some good weather followed by a wet and warm period which played sad havoc with the grain which was in swath or stook. The weather during the latter part of the season was so wet that a freshet, in July, carried off some of the remaining hay. The annual show was held in October, and was a complete success. In comparison with last year, the cattle were not so good, horses the same and horticulture a little behind. Dairy exhibits were good and sheep the best for years.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The work of the society has gone on very satisfactorily during the year. The membership continues about the same, but I think there is a less hopeful feeling among farmers generally than last year. Light crops two years in succession do not tend to inspire enthusiasim in the business. The past season has not been favorable for agricultural operations; the spring was cold and late; in the first three weeks of June vegetation scarcely made any progress at all, then fellowed four or five weeks of very growing weather, the only real seasonable weather during the summer. There were enough fine days in August to enable farmers to get a considerable quantity of good hay, there were also enough rainy days to injure a lot of hay and to retard haying operations so much that it was well on in September before the English hay was all secured. When a large quantity of grain was cut and in stook or swath there came a week of rain and close hot weather that sprouted the grain to a degree never before seen by the present generation of farmers. There were a good many fine days in September and October but they alternated so closely with rainy ones that nearly all the late hay was damaged more or less, and a large number of acres were not cut at all. November has been some finer and there has been to date (22nd) no frost to stop the plow, and more fall ploughing has been done than was expected at one time.

The annual show was held and was quite as successful as usual, both in point of attendance and exhibit. There were about eight hundred entries, compared with last year the display of horses was about the same. Cattle not quite so good. Horticulture a little behind some other years. The dairy exhibit was large, Sheep the best for years principally Leicester and Shropshire grades. There were some fine pigs.

The Experimental Farm at Nappan, had a very interesting exhibit in charge of the manager Col. Blair, who was ready to give any information in his possession that would be an advantage to farmers. The breeds of cattle are same that have been in the district for some time, the Short-horns are the favorite breed, the Jerseys have their admirers and if butter-making takes the lead of beef-making the Jerseys will no doubt take the lead of the Short-horns. It looks as if the Polled Angus had not come to stay, as several gentlemen who were breeding them have sold out, the grades are no improvement on the Short-horn grades, there are no pure-bred Holstiens in the district but there are quite a number of grades and so far there is a difierence of opinion whether they will be an improvement or not. The interest in horse breeding still keeps up and is about equally divided between the heavier and the lighter breeds, there is some very fine young stock of both classes coming on.

THE CROPS.

The crops were unmistakably light excepting hay which can be put down as an average. Oats not more than a half a crop, Barley only a little better. Roots poor particularly turnips. Fruit fairly good, but little grown.

If the yields of the coarser grains had been better it would have encouraged the farmers to sow more another year, and so supply the home market, which is now supplied from Ontario, immense quantities of bran and shorts being regularly brought from that Province, entailing a drain upon this country that must tell against the prosperity of the farmers eventually. The low price of ham last year has led many to turn their attention more to beef raising, and some fine prices were realized during a few weeks in the summer but the prices dropped so suddenly that it is doubtful if the season's operations on the whole, could be put down as profitable. The dairy industry has had a fairly good year, the butter factory in Upper Sackville, was in operation for nearly five months, but there seems to be a doubt in the minds of some of the patrons as to its being continued another year.

The officers elected for the coming year were as follows:—President—J. J. Anderson; Vice-Prest.—W. W. Irvine; Secretary—Howard Trueman; Treasurer—F. A. Dixon; Executive committee—G. A. Fawcett, Edgar Dixon, Charles Thompson, Warren Trenholm, Albert Carter; Auditor—W. F. George; Delegates to Farmers' Convention—John Fawcett and C. F. McCready.

It was decided to award the prizes offered by Jack & Bell, of Halifax, to Messrs G. A. Fawcett, Chas. Thompson, Chas. Pickard and D. Eugene Bowser. The exhibits of roots grown by the use of Jack & Bell's fertilizers were decidedly creditable and worthy of prizes. The following ladies were put on the committee for assisting in revising the prize list for the coming show:—Mrs. McCready, Mrs. W. Ogden and Mrs. Humphrey.

—Says the Star: "The cattle shippers have in the recent gales on the Atlantic, met with most serious losses in their shipments, and the profits on this year's business will be presumably small. It is not difficult to account for the destruction of the cattle when it is considered perfectly safe to ship them on the upper deck with weak scantling put up as shelter for them. This is all right in fine or moderate weather, but when heavy seas begin to come over the bulwarks, nothing can save the poor steers from going overboard. The question, therefore, arises, whether it would not be more profitable to the shippers and trade, if specially built ships were used for transportation. All the improvements for the comfort and care of the animals could then be introduced, which would add to the market value of the beasts.

K. D. C. Will cure you.

How to Ship Eggs to Great Britain

In view of attempts being made on the part of Canadian exporters of eggs, to open up trade with Great Britain, the following brief summary prepared by the London England, correspondent of THE CANADIAN GROCER AND GENERAL STOREKEEPER, Toronto and Montreal, will be of great value:—

LONDON, Nov. 8, 1890.

SOURCES OF SUPPLY

The trade here is eagerly competed for by the neighbouring continental countries, such as France, Holland and Denmark, every facility in point of quick despatch and cheap freightage being given by the respective railways and steamship companies.

In many cases the eggs get into consumption within a week after leaving sources of supply, thus ensuring the produce arriving in such a condition as to secure the full advantages of the market.

In order to reduce lay down cost, every attention has been paid to economy in collection and cheapness of packing. Experience has shown suppliers the most profitable modes of working the business, combined with the reduction to the lowest cost of outlay in placing on this market, in a good merchantable condition.

MARKET.

As may be imagined, in a country like our own, which gives but little attention to dairy culture, there is an extensive scope for foreign supplies. Supplies all find a ready demand, prices varying according to the condition of the trade. Competition serves to keep prices at a moderate level; the fact also that goods have all to be sold directly on arrival, also tends to lower rates.

Supplies so far have not overtaken demand, but circumstances point to the fact that any large influx of eggs would have to be introduced with the greatest caution, and by those firm possessing a knowledge of the handling of the trade.

PRICES.

These vary according to the season of the year, but may roughly be said to vary on best selected qualities from 9s to 10s., medium 7s. 6d. to 8s. 6d.. Small parcels of Canadain, as a novelty, have found buyers as high as 10s. 6d., but with regular supplies prices would soon find their own level.

OBSTACLES TO BUSINESS.

These are largely due to the necessarily longer transit, as compared with Continental supplies. Whatever facilities of cheap and rapid freight transit are provided by those steamship lines anxious to pioneer the trade, the undoubted extra cost, which must of necessity be incurred before regular channels of out-let are found, and the trade shapes itself into a groove, would necessitate that the eggs should be laid down here in an equally fresh condition with the best French qualities, to insure them obtaining that average level of price which we estimate would pay Canadian exporters. The question, after all, turns on the blunt point, whether quality for quality, price for price, Canadian eggs can shew equal or better value as compared with those supplies which have so far served this market so well.

A further difficulty would be found in the inexperience of the Canadian shippers as to the various details of selection and packing demanded by the trade here.

These can only be acquired by experience which will have to be bought, and it will not be until shippers have been able to grasp full details of the various requirements of our trade, that full market value can be obtained for their shipments.

PACKING.

That the requirements of the market are not understood is shewn by the one or two sample shipments, either arriving in ingeniously constructed boxes, compartmented, or in ordinary sized barrels; both packings being of far too expensive a character to compete with the more economical and at the same time more effective method adopted for bringing eggs from the Continent—which is as follows:—Each case contains twelve long hundred (120)—1440 eggs, packed between layers of straw. These cases are further divided into halves by a double cross-wise partition, which allows of the cases being cut into halves on arrival—this method being found to ensure safer passage. Each half of the case contains 720 eggs, packed in layers of about 180.

GENERAL PROSPECTS.

Provided shipments of supplies are controlled, and shippers generally avoid shewing too great an anxiety to cultivate business, we have every reason to believe a trade can be effectually worked up on a sound basis. It is certain, however, that before establishing their business here, Canadian shippers will have to pave their footing and proceed very cautiously in their competition with these other suppliers who possess a highly organized system for fighting fresh comers.
