THE HOLLAND SUCCESSION.

Princess Wilhelmina Proposed as Successor to the Regency.

THE HAGUE, June 23.—It is said the Princess Wilhelmina will be proclaimed successor to the regency under Queen Emma in case of the King's death. The Cabinet has determined to refuse to share tutelage with any German branch of the royal family.

WARLIKE CONTINGENCIES.

The serious illness of William III., King of Holland, who is over sixty-seven years of age, and the death of his son the Prince of Orange, heir to the crown, renders the question of the succession a matter of grave importance to the Dutch people. The long existing sense of danger to the national autonomy, both of Belgium and Holland, from the recognized longing of Prussia for the aggrandizement of these two countries, was exhibited by King William during his recent visit to Leopold II., King of the Belgians, at Brussels, when at a banquet, addressing the general officers present, he alluded to a possible union of the armies of the two countries to oppose invasion of one or the other by some power which he failed to designate. Last year the two kings had a friendly meeting at Spa, and the entente cordiale existing between them is noticeable.

KING WILLIAM IS NOT LIKED

by the Hollanders. He is irascible, overbearing, and takes no pains to ingratiate himself with his subjects. Queen Emma, the daughter of Prince George Victor, of Waldeck and Pyrmont, whom he married in 1879, on the contrary, is the delight of the people, her affable manners, her charming person, and the ease with which she manages the ill-tempered old monarch having made her a universal favourite. It is not strange, therefore, that a large and powerful party should be preparing to support her for the regency in the event of the demise of the King, and that determined objection should be made to Bismarck's intrigues in favour of the House of Nassau. Germany, which is hungry both for Antwerp and for the mouth of the Rhine, may yet find herself confronted by the Belgian and Dutch armies, which combined would be by no means an ignoble foe.

The Governor of Berber has in his possession £80,000 Government money. It is rumoured he was neither wounded nor taken prisoner.

The National Stockman says: "While diarymen will differ somewhat as to their methods of manufacture, etc., all will be found a unit on one point, the necessity of having the best of feed, and that in prime condition, in order to produce a choice article of either butter or cheese.

A Cairo despatch says:—Another armoured steamer has been ordered to patrol the river between Assouain and Wadyhalfa. It is rumoured that the rebels are advancing on Korosko. Colonel Kitchener has arrived at Eliman wells, four days east of Korosko, where he sighted the rebels. He says the Khidaghi rebels are marching on Dongola.

The report current in Cairo that the Governor of Dongola is devoted to El Medhi is extremely unlikely. Hussein Ben Khalifa Pasha, the general in question, has on more than one occasion rendered the English signal service in the Soudan. He is the son of the old Prince of the Ababdes. His father surrendered to Mehemet Ali, and received as a reward an estate situated in Upper Egypt. After the disaster of General Hicks, when the situation at Khartoum became critical, the Khedive appointed him Governor of Berber and Dongola, and made him a Pasha. Hussein Ben Khalifa then proceeded to Berber, but subsequently took up his quarters in Dongola. There can be no doubt that the presence of Hussein Pasha had great influence, and procured a period of tranquillity for the tribes of the Ababdes and the Bisharees. Indeed, it is chiefly due to Hussein Pasha that General Gordon found the Khartoum road open.

Emma Fletcher was to have been married at Bridgeport, Conn., on Wednesday to Sidney Callendar, and extensive arrangements had been made for the wedding. At the hour appointed Miss Fletcher received a telegram from Callendar, dated New York, saying he had met with financial misfortune, and requesting a postponement of their marriage. Callendar stated he would be in Bridgeport on the following day, but has not been heard of since.

Counterfeiters Captured.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 23.—Two notorious counterfeiters were arrested here this evening, and a number of counterfeit bland dollars found in their possession. The officers hope to arrest the remainder of the gang, eight in all, to-morrow.

Made Penniless by Burglars.

PORT JERVIS, N.Y., June 23.—Burglars entered the house of Peter Bogart at Downsville a few nights ago and stole $1,500. Mrs. Bogart, who is 97 years old, and her sister-in-law, 80, were bound, gagged, and roughly treated. The robbery leaves them penniless. It is feared they will die from the shock.

The Sandwich Hangman in Trouble.

BUFFALO, June 20.—John Greenwood, a watch tinker, was brought to No. 5 station by a police officer who found him on the street acting in a strange manner. He was partially intoxicated, and the police surgeon recommended that he be sent to gaol for a few days to sober up. Greenwood says he came from Sandwich, Ont., where he acted as hangman at an execution. He asserts that the friends of the dead criminal are after him.

Attempt to Swindle Insurance Companies.

PORTLAND, Oregon, June 24.—The house of Lewis Kackley, near Hillsboro', was burned on Saturday night. The supposed remains of Kackley were found in the ruins. It was believed he was murdered and the house fired. His wife and child were at their father's house. An investigation leads to the belief that the job was an insurance swindle, and that an old skeleton was placed in the house to represent the charred remains of Kackley, who has policies for $6,000 on his life.

A Southern Social Scandal.

WHEELING, W. Va., June 23.—Mrs. Annie Haymond assaulted William Sheib, a prominent music dealer, on the street on Saturday evening, because he refused to give her money. She claims Sheib induced her to get a divorce on the promise that he would do likewise, and marry her. He, however, failed to keep the agreement. She also says Sheib told Haymond that she was intimate with Drummer. Haymond shot Drummer and was sent to penitentiary. Sheib's wife is prominent in musical circles.

Murder and Arson by a Negro.

SPRINGFIELD Mass., June 22.—In a drunken row this morning at Hinsdale, Chas. Anderson, coloured, shot and fatally wounded L. H. Persip, aged 18. Anderson and a companion named Jones then tried to break into the house of Jas. Darling, but were driven away by Darling, who armed himself with an axe. They then set fire to his two barns, which with his dwelling and contents were burned. The family barely escaped. The two men were arrested and there is great excitement over the affair.

A Vessel Surrounded by Whales in a Dead Calm.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The schooner M. B. Millen, from Savannah, reports that on June 20th, in latitude 34.50, longitude 74.14, while in a dead calm in a smooth sea, she was surrounded by a school of whales as far as the eye could reach. Several came within a few feet of the vessel, spurting water against her side and lying perfectly still for several minutes at a time. They would then roll over and sink down tail foremost until they would stand perpendicular in the water. They swam around the vessel for three hours and were not in the least shy. They averaged 35 to 40 feet in length.

Three Men Buried under Burning Ruins.

NEW YORK, June 22.—The wholesale bakery of A. D. Huseman, at Williamsburg, was burned to-day. The fire originated from a defective flue. The firemen were unable to successfully resist the flames, and while engaged in an effort to save the adjoining building the wall of the burning structure fell into an alley-way where the firemen stood. Three were buried beneath the ruins, Henry Lyeck, George M. Haight, and Steven Allen. In spite of the intense heat every effort was made to rescue the men. Allen was first taken out; he was burned and mangled but alive, and may recover. The other two were dead. The building was entirely destroyed. Loss over $100,000. The adjoining house was damaged $3,000. A stable in the rear took fire and eight horses were burned.

Death of Bishop Simpson.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—Bishop Simpson died here this morning.

Rev. Dr. Simpson was the senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States. He was the prince of pulpit orators in America, and his fame was not confined to the American continent, but was really world-wide. He more than once visited most parts of the world in his Episcopal tours, and in England and the continent of Europe the announcement of his name was the signal for a crowd. At the Methodist Ecumenical Conference, held in the City Road chapel, London, he preached the opening sermon, which created a great sensation. For some time past his health has been very feeble, and at the late general conference held at Philadelphia he could only be present at intervals, when his presence was always hailed with delight. He opened the conference and closed the last session, which were his last official labours. Bishop Simpson had passed the age of three score years and ten, and few men in connection with the Christian Church have ever been more highly esteemed for distinguished talents and great moral worth.

A Magnificent Piano.

NEW YORK, June 22.—One of the most elaborate pianos ever made has just been completed here for Mr. George Stephen, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. It was designed by the Canadian architect who planned Mr. Stephen's house at Montreal. The piano is built of the satinwood of South America, finished in different styles, to produce contrasting effects. The case proper is made of nine pieces of satinwood veneering, glued together, to form one continuous body, which reaches from corner to corner. This is laid off in panels, which are inlaid with rare and costly woods of South America and bright metal. One panel contains a lyre, the frame of which is of tulipwood and the strings of metal. The vine that leads away from it on either sides has its stems of amaranth, its leaves of cocobola, and its leaf skeletons of glittering metal, while the whole has a snakewood border. A sprig of oak has its acorn cups of amaranth and its bulbs of metal, producing the effect of nature. The legs of the instrument are like arched doorways of a palace. Each consists of two columns of satinwood exquisitely carved and inlaid, which come together at the top to form an arch. The value of the instrument is $4,000.

Murder in Michigan.

DETROIT, June 19.—Andrew Long, in gaol charged with the murder of his wife near Muir, made full confession in the presence of the sheriff and two others. He says about midnight he went to the barn without putting on his pantaloons, got an oak club, and came back to the house where his wife was in bed. He struck her three or four blows on the head, and thinking he had caused her death, he then got a razor and cut his hands to make the people believe he had been attacked by burglars. Then got a gun and knocked out a light of glass and fired through the opening. He broke off a nail that fastened the window and threw it down, and then went to the barn and turned his horse loose. He went back to the house, took the money out of his pantaloons, hid it in the straw and carried off the pantaloons. He then returned to the house to see if and found her still breathing. He took a club and threw it into the grass nearhis wife's window, after which he started for the house of Frank Connor, to give the alarm. He threw the razor into a pasture lot on the way. When he returned he found his wife still alive. He says he has a distinct recollection of all that transpired, and did it as deliberately as he would go out and get an armful of wood. He says he cannot give any reason for killing her, except he thought he ought to. This is the most brutal and cold-blooded murder ever committed in Ionia county. The motive which induced Long to commit the crime is still locked in his own guilty breast. The confession was made at his request. The money was found in the place where he said he hid it.

A Husband Shoots his Wife's Seducer.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Wm. C. Rhinelander, who shot Lawyer John Drake, at the latter's office on Thursday, has been committed to the Tombs without bail, to await the result of Drake's injuries. Rhinelander says he shot Drake because the latter had for a long time been endeavouring to ALIENATE HIS WIFE FROM HIM.

Rhinelander in 1876 married an ignorant servant girl, and by doing so forfeited $500,000, which had been left him by his grandfather conditionally. His family have since disowned him, and while he has drawn an allowance from his father he has not been on friendly terms with his family, which is one of the most select and aristocratic of the old Knickerbockers. Shortly after his marriage he went to Toronto and lived there awhile, but he says that even there Drake was endeavouring to separate them. Lately, he says, Drake has had Mrs. Rhinelander closeted in his office, and this, together with the offers of money to Rhinelander to leave his wife, determined him to punish Drake for his conduct. Drake, it should be remembered, is an attorney for the Rhinelander family. In telling this yesterday, Rhinelander said:—"I shot at this man who who, to say the least, with evil intent compromised her and destroyed the greatest happiness a man can enjoy, and without which he cannot live, the trust and confidence which his wife placed in and the love she used to bear him. If this is madness, then I am mad, and if this is the sane man, madman, it is a pity there are not more such madmen to avenge an insult to their honour before it terminates in the dishonour of their wives."

THE HISTORY OF RHINELANDER.

Mr. Frederick K. Clark, speaking of Rhinelander to-day, said:—"Immediately after his marriage Rhinelander went to Canada, in the hope of establishing himself in some business, and I introduced him to some of my friends in Toronto, among whom was Mr. J. C. Forbes, the artist. At the request and expense of his family I went to Canada to see Rhinelander. I was authorized by his family to offer his wife $20,000 and an annuity of $3,000 if she would go to Europe and stay there. This she refused to do. I had scarcely been there two days before Drake came upon the scene. After a time he succeeded in ingratiating himself into Rhinelander's confidence, and, by prying about, found out some of the young man's affairs, which he reported to him, saying that the information had come through me, and finally led Rhinelander to believe that I was in the interest of his family. All our mutual relations ceased except those of a formal character. Mr. Rhinelander was very much attached to his wife, and had two children by her. I believe Mr. Rhinelander's story, that his wife frequently visited Drake's office, but I don't think she has been anything but imprudent. I believe that a jealous disposition, coupled with the belief that his friends were endeavouring to break his marriage, led Rhinelander to the belief that he was justified in taking the course he did."

The Indians captured by the Mounted Police during the raid on provisions at Battleford were yesterday remanded for eight days. The chiefs are repenting of their action, and are making overtures for a renewal of the friendly relations formerly existing with the police.

In 1881 a Rutland county gentleman had twins added to his family. The births took place about half an hour apart, one baby coming to light at 11.45 on the night of December 31, 1881, and the other youngster putting in an appearance a little after twelve o'clock on the morning of January 1, 1882. Here we have a circumstance of twin children whose birthdays occur on different days, in different months, and in different years.—Boston Globe.

At a meeting of Orangemen in Armagh on Tuesday it was resolved that the Orangemen of the whole country shall attend the anniversary meeting at Newry on July 12th.

An Irishman named Johnson, alias McDonald, admitted to the magistrate on Monday he was passively concerned in the dynamite outrage at Victoria station in London, and that he knows the guilty parties.

Rev. Dr. Butler, Roman Catholic Bishop of Limerick, addressing a deputation from the Land League recently, said he approved of the convention to select candidates for Parliament, and advocated the election of Mr. Parnell and his adherents only in the city and county of Limerick.

Earl Spencer, in his recent address in Belfast, said that Ireland has passed through a turbulent period, but there are good grounds for hoping that better times are near at hand. The power of the terrorists for evil, he said, has been curtailed, and the tyranny they previously exercised has passed away; order was restored, and Irishmen could now devote themselves to peaceful pursuits without fear of outrage.

The Queen's Journey.

LONDON, June 24.—Queen Victoria and Princess Beatrice left Balmoral castle this afternoon and took a special train for Windsor, where they are expected to arrive early to-morrow morning. The Queen looked well, and it is evident that her visit in the Highlands has had a most beneficial effect upon her health. Ordinarily the Queen's return to London would be the signal for increase of activity in society, but as the court is still in mourning for Prince Leopold no such expectation exists, and the modistes and milliners are still in the dumps.

Moody's Services.

LONDON, June 20.—Mr. Dwight L. Moody, the American evangelist, will conclude his London mission at Temple Gardens next Monday, and will soon afterwards sail for New York. It is estimated by Mr. Moody that no less than 34,000 persons have become converted through his labours since he began his revival meetings in London and its suburbs last fall. Owing to the serious illness of Mr. Sankey and other reasons, it is said to be doubtful if Mr. Moody will ever revisit England.

Mr. Moody says his revival campaign has been very successful. About four hundred meetings have been held in eleven districts. Thirteen different meetings were held every week, and the number of converts reach into the thousands, and among them were several pronounced sceptics.

Tardy Honour for Bravery.

LONDON, June 20.—United States Minister Lowell to-day presented a gold medal to George Read, formerly chief of the lifeboat brigade at Deal, for an act of heroism performed by him nearly twenty-two years ago. In October, 1862, the American ship Annie Hoopes was wrecked off the Kentish coast, near Deal, and Read and his men, by the exercise of great skill and daring, in which Read especially imperilled his life, succeeded in rescuing the entire crew of the doomed vessel. In replying to Mr. Lowell's eulogistic speech and accepting the medal, Read said that he had only done his duty, and that, in fact, the circumstance had made so little impression upon him that when he was notified that he was to receive a medal he had almost forgotten the occurrence of the wreck and rescue.

Supposed Dynamiter Discharged.

QUEENSTOWN, June 22.—Great excitement was caused here by the arrest of Patrick Joyce on board the steamer Illinois. The tube found in his baggage is supposed to be an infernal machine of a novel and ingenious pattern. It resembled a wooden log, but was found to be hollow, a hole having been pierced through it, leading to a chamber containing a liquid supposed to be explosive. There was an outer wooden casing, sixteen inches long and four thick, within which a brass tube was inserated, bound with gutta percha. On removing a metal cap a liquid was found. Except by careful examination, it was impossible to suppose that the article was anything but a log of wood.

BELLAIRE, O., June 22.—Patrick Joyce, who has been arrested in Ireland with an infernal machine, left here two weeks ago with his wife and child, ostensibly for his health, on money realized by some Irish labourers. He worked in an iron mill, and had been in the country two years.

LONDON, June 23.—Patrick Joyce has been discharged. The tube found on his person contained oil.

The Tunnel Scheme.

LONDON, June 22.—Sir Edward William Watkin, M.P. for Hythe, is as enthusiastic as ever over his Channel tunnel project, despite the adverse majority of 138 in the House of Commons last month and the sturdy opposition of the Duke of Cambridge, the commander of the forces, and of Mr. Jos. Chamberlain, president of the Board of Trade. Sir Edward was seen by your correspondent at the Reform Club last night, and in reply to a question as to the commander-in-chief's objections, said emphatically:—I do not care two pence for the Duke of Cambridge's opinion. I will make that tunnel in spite of his opposition and that of Mr. Chamberlain.

What about the adverse vote in the House in May?

That was obtained by the lobbying of the coast railway companies. The cause of their hostility is very obvious, for who would cross the Channel in the wretched little steamers if they could go under it by rail in a safe tunnel. As far as that opposition is concerned, time is our best ally. Public opinion and public needs already require the tunnel, and they will soon demand it in a voice that will be both unmistakable and irresistible.

But the Duke of Cambridge asserts that there are military reasons that would make the construction of a tunnel between France and England inexpedient and even dangerous.

Just so; but I am willing to set against that notion of his Grace's the opinion of the Duke of Wellington. It is well known that he favoured the prospect of an international tunnel, and I believe that the English people still regard the hero of Waterloo as a more capable strategist than the present commander of her Majesty's forces, even with Lord Wolseley thrown in.

Then you do not fear an invasion of England via the tunnel?

No. The idea is absurd. If the French should attempt it, they would be foiled, just as Pharoah was in his pursuit of the Israelites, and it would not require a miracle either.

Davitt and Parnell.

LONDON, June 24.—There is war to the knife between Michael Davitt and Mr. Parnell. Mr. Davitt's latest point of attack is the Irish Migration Company, of which Mr. Parnell is the chairman, and which seeks to relieve the congested districts of Ireland by purchasing lands in the less crowded parts of the country, and attracting small farmers to them by cheap rents and easy terms for payment. Mr. Davitt says that this is only one step removed from state-aided emigration, and that in some respects it is quite as objectionable. He says there are people who are not only patriotic in their love for their country as a whole, but are also devoted to their native counties, towns, and villages. To transplant a Donegal man to Kerry, or a Corkonian to Tyrone, to send Mayo farmers to Meath, and south families to Galway, is only a shade better than shipping them off to America or Australia. Mr. Davitt also complains of the sum, which Mr. Parnell's company is paying the present landlords for estates, which they could not possibly sell to anyone else at any figure. He charges that Mr. Parnell is using the machinery of the Irish National League and playing upon Irish patriotism to push a private real estate speculation, and intimates that the exorbitant price he is paying for land gives ground for the supposition that he is secretly receiving bonuses from the landlords. Mr. Davitt has made all these charges in writing to Mr. Parnell, but has been met only with curt and tardy replies or contemptuous silence. Now he proposes to publish and circulate as widely as possible the facts upon which his charges are based, for, he says, it is high time that Irishmen throughout the world should know what a self-seeking scheme they have chosen for their leader.

The Dynamite Scare.

LONDON, June 22.—The sensational Paris despatch in the Times, purporting to contain a revelation of the intentions of the new Fenian leaders, has intensified the London dynamite scare. Among the well-informed it is believed that the Times has been imposed upon. James Stephens, ex-head centre of the American Fenians, has consented to lead the Fenians into another warfare against England. He himself recently announced this fact. He also has admitted that the Paris to call a conference in Paris of all those Irishmen who favoured his plan. This he described to be an open warfare of a military character. It is supposed that the motive of the Paris correspondent of the Times in attempting to identify the ex-head centre with the Rossaites in a silly scheme of

to be dropped from balloons, was to coerce the French Government into refusing to harbour Stephens and his Parisian colony of Irish exiles. The Irish leaders in London are anxiously awaiting some expected developments of an extraordinary character. The fact that the Parnellites seem to be in a state of constant apprehension, would indicate they have good reason to know that the "Force Party" are on the eve of attempting to carry out some well-planned scheme of terrorism. The police are nervously active. London was never so thoroughly patrolled. Strangers arriving are closely scrutinized and in many cases shadowed until proved to be beyond suspicion. All the while going to and from Parliament and the public offices. The entire detective force has been put on double duty. Attempts of All the Ministers and a majority of the Tory leaders have adopted the custom of leaving Parliament in cabs, the Ministers making their exits through private entrances. During each recess all the corridors and the vaults of the Parliament buildings are constantly patrolled by special sentries. The Thames embankment has been placed under the care of specially appointed watchmen. Nearly all the well-known Invincibles, who recently were conspicuous in London, have either disappeared or have suddenly become ominously quiet. Peter Tynan, the mysterious "No. 1," recently left London, leaving word that he was going to America. It has been ascertained he went to Paris, and it is asserted he was seen in the French capital recently. It is generally feared that the leaders of the Invincibles are in secret session in Paris for the purpose of directing from there the expected developments which are awaited with a fear bordering on panic.

THE FRANCHISE BILL.

Third Reading Ordered for To-day—What Women Demand as Their Rights.

LONDON, June 24.—House has ordered the Franchise bill to be brought up for third reading Thursday. It is not improbable that an amendment will again be proposed, having for its object the extension of the provisions of the bill to women.

THE FRANCHISE FOR WOMEN.

The memorialists who prayed that the Government would allow woman's suffrage to be an open question referred to the precedent of Mr. Mill's amendment in 1867. But there is a radical difference between now and then. Seventeen years ago woman's suffrage was a mere opinion, altogether beyond the range of practical politics. Members were as free to vote with Mr. Mill as they were to vote for extracting sunshine from cucumbers. To-day it is another matter. "If Mr. Woodall's amendment is left to the free and unbiassed decision of the House on its own merits," says the Pall Mall Gazette, "it might be carried, and, as not a single member of the Cabinet is in favour of woman's suffrage, it is not surprising that they should object to expose themselves to so humiliating a defeat. Prosperity has its drawbacks as well as adversity, and the popularity now commanded by woman's suffrage deprives it of the kindly shelter of indifference which it formerly enjoyed."

WILL THE WOMEN REVOLT?

However, the women's rights agitation is likely to assume a new phase. One of the leaders of the movement announced at a public meeting held recently that she meant to refuse to pay the Queen's taxes until her right to be directly represented in Parliament was conceded, and that she was willing to take all the consequences of her refusal. This course of action is founded on the principle put forward at the time of the secession of the American colonies, as well as by the Chartists, that there should be no taxation without representation, and that a refusal to pay taxes is justifiable on that ground alone.

Gardening in a Hogshead.

Some time ago Mr. G. L. Record, of this city, bored holes in rows around a hogshead, at regular intervals, six inches apart, filling the hogshead with earth, and set a strawberry plant in each one of the holes, beside putting a number of plants on top. There are 100 plants growing from the sides of this novel garden, which are now in full beauty and bloom, having a prolific growth of berries, and looking remarkably thriving and healthy. Some of the berries are ripe, and have attained great size, one measuring three inches in circumference.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Pashkoff and Baronkorff, chiefs of the Evangelical Brotherhood, have been expelled from Russia, and their books, tracts, and pamphlets destroyed.

Mr. Walter Shanly and Mr. C. A. Scott, general manager of the Nova Scotia Government railways, visited the consolidated gold mine in Marmora on Thursday. They will pay it another visit a month hence, after some additional machinery has been introduced.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE

General Gleanings from Distant Lands.

EUROPE.

Two sisters in Vienna, both under 30 years of age, recently murdered their aged father after making him drunk. They were offended at his refusal to give them their dowry.

Elder Smoot, Mormon missionary, has been expelled from Bavaria by order of the Minister of State. Smoot had made numerous converts, whom he was preparing to send to Utah, but the plan is broken up for the present.

There are alarming reports of cholera at Toulon. It is said 200 deaths occurred yesterday and the city is in a state of panic. The Government has ordered the barracks to be evacuated, and sanitary precautions are being rapidly taken.

Several foreign anarchists have been arrested in Vienna. In their possession was found a dynamite bomb of sufficient power to blow up the largest public building in the city. The police have obtained a clue to the secret location of large stores of dynamite.
