ONONETTE FAIR TOOK IN $1,712

Net Profits $1,365.95—To go to Patriotic, Soldiers' Comforts and Red Cross Funds — Where Credit is Due

A representative and enthusiastic meeting of the Ononette population met in committee last evening, utilizing a neighboring garage as a public hall, and concluded every detail in connection with the recent Patriotic Fair, which proved a success of almost unprecedented proportions, not only in respect to the amount raised, but more particularly with regard to the business like manner in which the affair was promoted and brought to a successful conclusion in a very few days. Those in a position to know account for it because of the fact that every man, woman and child in the village vied with one another in the extent of the work they could accomplish which, unfortunately, is an exception to the rule in undertakings of similar character. Last evening's reports indicated the following interesting results. Gross takings $1,712.84, expenses $346.89, leaving a net profit of $1,365.95 to be divided equally between the Patriotic, Soldiers' Comforts and Red Cross Funds.

Every Ononette resident has, during the week, received congratulations upon the success of their original, entertaining and altogether unique method of fund-raising, which laudable effort will doubtless prompt the emulation of many organizations throughout the province; in fact it is said the good example has already borne fruit, and so the net result can hardly be measured by the above figures.

PASSING STREET CALLS

Familiar Sing-Song of "Rags a' Bottles" or "'Brellas to Men" Now Disappearing Rapidly.

Meny a New Yorker misses the wandering tradesmen, each with a slogan descriptive of his own calling, who less than a quarter century ago gave variety to the city streets.

The "rags a' bottles" man with a burlap bag slung across his shoulder, was usually of native birth, as was that vigilant hunter of back yards, the "lines put up!" man. They were a rough hewn, hardy lot, always looking fit and with a relish for a fray. But modern efficiency has evolved other means for the disposition of bottles. And rays? Who ever hears of them in these days of dustless dusters, oil mops and other such innovations?

Among itinerants of earlier years the class of "umbrellas to mend" survives in thinned numbers and prospers mostly in commercial districts. The "cas' ol' clo's"—cash for old clothes—man still maintains a sporadic existence, but his prosperity has been shorn since the days when a member of the brotherhood was called up by the tenant of an apartment house, a jocund Irishman, who brought forth a $25 suit he had worn twice. In answer to the Irishman's "how much?" came the offer "a toller fifdy," followed hurriedly by the "ol clo's" man's forced retreat headlong downstairs.

"The singer of "Tinware to mend" seems to have become quite extinct, probably with the general use of vessels of more durable metal. The husky-voiced vender of apples "ten cents a whole lot" has given place to the apathetic pedler who displays his artfully packed pail, which the prospective buyer may take or leave at his own risk.

That snowy aproned darkey who rythmically carolled. "Here's yer sweet hot corn, smoking hot, right out of the boiling pot?" is remembered by many a New Yorker with a really sentimental pang, never more poignant than when his successor, often unkempt and not immaculate of hand, stolidly offers, with no glorification of song, an ear of yellow corn buttered with a paint brush.

A brand-new chant of wares was heard this winter at Atlantic City mellifluously intoned by a Jack Johnson lounging in the doorway of an empty shop and holding caressingly some yellow jonquils. "Flowers, flowers—all perfectly lovely—and beautiful—and sweet." And, O, the lusciousness of the l's!

But more than any of these, because of its sonority, its unction of delivery and its insidious charm, is remembered the call of a man who sold clusters of flowers, peacock feathers and other fillers for the vases that surmounted the marble mantelpieces in the era coincident with haircloth furniture and plush albums. With measured step he made his way through the streets, scanning the windows on each side, while with brief intervals between he cadenced his offerings. He started on a note of sure declaration, continued with a rising inflection of worth and ended with climatic finality: 'The imported bouquet! The aromatic bouquet! The everlasting bouquet!"—New York Sun.

FRENCH HERO FROM NEW BRUNSWICK

Paul Rouston Gives His Life for Native Country—An Example to Others

Intelligence of the death of Paul Rouston, of Lyons, France, reached Fredericton yesterday. The news was conveyed in a letter from Mr. Rouston's sister, Madame Binachon, Paris. The young man died a hero's death while fighting with the French army in the Vosges. Mr. Rouston came to New Brunswick about a year ago and purchased a farm at Secord's Siding. The transaction was closed on August 1, 1914, and two or three days later he left for France to join the colors. Some days after his departure, came notification to Mr. Houston, ordering him to report for active service. By that time the young Frenchman had reached England. On September 9th, a little over a month after his departure and on the first day at the front, he was killed while defending his native land.

To those who knew Mr. Rouston, the confirmation of what had long been anticipated, came as a great shock. He was a young man of fine character, always cheerful, and a splendid companion. That he was a patriot and a brave man his action in hurrying to his country's aid establishes. He will be a distinct loss to the community in which he had decided to make his home, and the heart-felt sympathy of his New Brunswick friends is extended to his bereaved sister. Mr. Rouston set an example to young men of Canada who are being presently called by their King and their Country. For him no call was needed but the call of duty.

Provincial War Notes

Gunner Joseph Wilson, the only Fredericton boy with the 9th Battery in France is now at No. 9 Stationary Hospital, France, recovering from his wounds. In a letter received by his wife he stated that he would go back to the front in a short time.

Gunner Ralph Estey, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Estey, of Fredericton, is at one of the signalling schools in England to take a course in field telegraphy. He is a member of the 2nd Division Ammunition Column, mobilized in Fredericton, and now at Otterpool Camp, England, and came from Lowell, Mass., to answer the call of his country.

Private Frank Estev, a brother of Gunner Estey, who is with the Canadian Engineers, has just returned to the front after a furlough in England.

After the recruiting meeting held in Woodstock Wednesday, many expressed their willingness to sign for overseas service, and the following five signed the roll. Henry Lindsay, Charles Adams, Alfred Adams, John Watts and Charles Wilkinson. Mayor Sutton presided and in his remarks stated that since the war began the town has recruited over 400 men, 150 of whom were in the 55th Battalion. Lieut. Brooks, Hon. W. P. Jones and T. C. L. Ketchum were the speakers. It was pointed out that twenty men had reported for service since the recruiting officer had left Woodstock, and they had gone back home, and Lieut. Brooks promised that a recruiting officer would again be on duty.

Private Lee L. A. King, who left Fredericton with one of the drafts from the 71st Regiment last summer and went to England with the 12th Battalion, is now in France with the First Motor Machine Gun Battery, of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. His brother, Lauchlan King, who left home fifteen years ago and had not been heard from since then has turned up in British Columbia.

Mrs. J. L. N. Tait, of Moncton, has been notified that her brother, Sergeant David Smith, has been killed while fighting in France.

Sergeant Smith was a member of the Gordon Highlanders, and his home was in Scotland. He was unmarried. No particulars as to where he was killed have yet been received.

Dr. Howe A. Jones, who has been practicing his profession in Salisbury during the past five or six years, will leave for Halifax in the course of a week or two to take a two months' military course before joining a medical corps for overseas service.

Fred W. Eddleston received a letter today from Sergt. A. Waldron, whose home is on Castle street, and who went to England with the 26th Battalion. He wrote on July 30 that he was in the military hospital at Shorncliffe recovering from an operation for an abscess under his chin, and he expected to be back in camp in a few days. THE "BLACK BOX" CONCLUDES TONIGHT

Tonight and tomorrow wil mark the final presentations of E. Phillips Oppenheim's wonderful mystery "The Black Box." In concluding the story the well-known author has performed a most artistic and astounding feat of story-writing. Even the closest observer since the story began will find plenty of surprises absolutely new and some of them quite startling. Therefore it would be a shame to miss this grand wind-up as nearly all of the preceding fourteen chapters have been contingent upon this final episode for their true meanings and hidden secrets. Another feature in today's programme is Lubin's story entitled "He Who Bears Malice." The comedy element is of the Essanay kind. The Oxford Four conclude their engagement this week. Next week vaudeville's violin queen, Rae Eleanor Ball will return to St. John for a series of exquisite musicales.

Stay away from 14 Charlotte street if you are not interested in buying goods cheaper than elsewhere.

CHAIN GERMANS TO THEIR GUNS

Interesting Letter From Brother in British Lines to Fort Fairfield Man

Fort Fairfield, Me., Aug. 12—John Henderson of this town has just received a very interesting letter from his brother, Jim Henderson, now in the British army, Flanders, France. Mr. Henderson is well known to many Maine people and his letter will be of interest. It was dated July 9, and reads as follows:—

Dear John—I have nothing to grumble about, only the flies here are terrible. They are a terrible plague, and as the hot weather is right on us now, we have to be very careful, or else disease would get the upper hand of us, so we are taking as much precaution as possible. Of course, the cause of it is the dead bodies, lying about, that have never been properly buried. We bury all our own, but the Germans are not so strict about theirs, and even when they do bury them, some of them they don't bury properly.

Of course you read of the great battle of Neuve Chapelle. Well, I was in it, and that place is in our possession now, in fact, that is the area where my battery is at present hammering away in co-operation with the French army and no doubt in time we will bring them to their knees.

Have Stood Shock.

Of course the French were not prepared for war when it broke out, and what was our paltry little army of about 200,000 to the German army of about 5,000,000 trained men; but there, we have stood the shock, and no doubt our casualties have been very heavy, but I can assure you we have got them by the whiskers now and they know it, for every day we are getting stronger and they are getting weaker, and if we could only finish the Dardanelles we would soon put the close hitch on the whole affair here, but I tell you this is a big war.

In fact the biggest affair that ever was, and the like will never happen again, and what's more, they use the most cruel methods to try to win but all to no purpose as the British army is composed of different stuff from what they thought it was and well they know it. Really, when the war started our men all looked so young and boyish, but today tells a different story. You look at the British army today and you see an army of old and determined warriors, young in years but old in experience and in every face you see the look of determination which seems to say: "We will see it through to the bitter end."

What with their gas, their burning liquid, their huge 17-inch guns which make holes sixty feet long and thirty feet deep. After they have finished they find the British army still there ready to bombard, and their infantry ready to attack and when they have said the last word we will still have the boys ready for any emergency. That is where the volunteers tell against the conscript Thank God, although we are fighting and suffering and losing our nearest and dearest, it is of our own free will and we have the satisfaction of knowing that for every one of our lads who goes under, they (the Germans) lose about four of theirs.

Chained to Guns.

We have captured ground and taken prisoners and found men of their artillery chained to their guns, and that will never be required to do to a British soldier, because, give the British infantryman his rifle and his little bit of glittering steel at the end of it, and the artillery man his gun, and we will face the world. Of course Britain has taken on a big job. We are helping Russia and France with ammunition and equipment, and we are manning and equipping Belgium. We are fighting in East Africa, West Africa, helping Serbia, fighting in Egypt and Turkey and occupying thirty-one miles in Flanders, France, and now we will win, must win, as we are getting stronger every day in spite of Germany's treacherous methods, and submarine nightmares among women and children.

I never thought when I was in America that I ever would be a sergeant major in a battery of artillery, but strange things happen sometimes as has been in my case. My last letter, which I sent you has been returned to me with ten cents to pay marked on the envelope Am sorry, but there are no stamps here, in fact, nothing here, everything is in ruins and we live under the ground like a lot of moles and while I am writing this letter, the Germans are shelling for all they are worth, but you wait until they are finished and we will give it back to them with compound interest, as my men are all at their guns ready, so while you are sleeping we are dealing out death for all we are worth and receiving the same, of course, as we don't expect to get it all our own way.

EIGHTY PER CENT OF CANADA'S TROOPS ARE SINGLE MEN

Ottawa, Aug. 13—That a large proportion of British soldiers were married men has been one of the strongest arguments in Great Britain for conscription. It was pointed out today on investigation of separation allowance figures in the Militia Department pay sheets, however, that such is not the case in Canada. The percentage of married men in the Canadian forces today is 20 per cent., or one-fifth of the whole total.

Canada is paying out to her soldiers in the Dominion, in England in at the front $125,000 per day or about $45,000,000 per year, and this sum, of course, is rapidly increasing. Twenty-five thousand checks for separation allowance are being issued per month, a total of $15,000,000 per year being paid to the wives and families of married soldiers and about $12,000,000 of assigned money is being paid over. This has necessitated a very large increase in the staff of the Militia Department and day and night work on their part. Soldiers in many cases neglect to ask for separation allowance or assign their pay and this leads to delays which have made the paymaster-general's branch the most abused division in the whole civil service. In several cases, too, soldiers have asigned their pay to sisters or others than their wives and complaints have immediately followed.

London, Aug. 13—In its report of the Zeppelin raid on the eastern coast, the Daily Express says:

"The death of Flight Sub.-Lieut. Reginald Lord was doubly tragic, for within half an hour of the time he died he was dancing with the girl whom he was to have married Miss Violet Beaver, daughter of Lieut.-Col. Beaver, C. M. G., Scots Guards, who is now at the front.

"Miss Beaver recently went to stay with friends, and on Monday night she and Lieut. Lord took part in a dance at a hotel. While the dance was in progress the alarm of a Zeppelin raid was given, and Lord hurried off to the aerodrome. The dance was stopped and the guests waited for the outcome of the raid.

"Half an hour later Lord was killed. It is understood that in descending to the ground in pitch darkness his machine turned a double somersault and crashed to the earth.

"Lord suffered a fracture of the base of the skull and other injuries. He was taken to a hospital, and Miss Beaver was sent for, but although she reached the hospital a few minutes later, Lord had lost consciousness when she arrived. She stayed at his bedside until he died."

AFTER MASHERS' SCALPS

Magistrate Ritchie said this morning that there are a few young men who so far forget themselves that they made a practice of accosting young girls in King Square when band concerts are being rendered.

"No man, young or old, can speak to any lady," he said, "when they do not know them. If they do so they leave themselves liable to a heavy fine or imprisonment."

The police, he said, have received instructions to arrest any men doing so, and he would assure them that he would give them the full penalty if they were brought before him. He said he did not expect them to be dull, but only wanted them to act as gentlemen.

One man arrested on a drunkenness charge and also for interfering with pedestrians was remanded.

MANY ATTEND FUNERAL OF MISS KATHLEEN McGRATH

Intense sympathy for the sad death of Miss Kathleen McGrath was exemplified this morning by the largely attended funeral. Hundreds followed the hearse from the home of the deceased's parents, 16 Golding street, to the Cathedral, and afterwards on the way to the cemetery.

The body was removed from the home to the church at 8.45 o'clock and high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock by Rev. Miles P. Howland, assisted by Rev. F. A. Bourgeois, D.D., deacon, and Rev. Hector Bellivue, subdeacon. His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc gave the final absolution. The church was crowded with people and the service was intensely solemn and mournful.

The pall-bearers were: Urban Kelly, Harold Kane, James McManus, Frank McShane, George Calahan and Joseph Brosnan. The floral tributes were beautiful and numerous, including set pieces and cut flowers. Interment was made in the new Catholic cemetery.

AMHERST TO GIVE $10,000

(Amherst News, Thursday.)

As we go to press, seven thousand dollars are in sight for the Canadian Patriotic Fund, and the slogan of the workers on our streets today is to make it $10,000 before eight o'clock this evening. Marshlands Club last evening, starting the ball rolling in right royal shape by a contribution of $500. Alexander Lodge, A. F. and A. M., was on hand with a contribution of $100. Subscriptions totalling $400 was raised by the employes of the Amherst Boot and Shoe factory, and the canvassers throughout the town today met a ready and generous response from the citizens of the town. It was found that in many instances the Fund was still misunderstood, and the collectors therefore had to spend considerable time in explaining its details to those whom they called upon. Hence the canvass will not be completed for some days, but the other sections of Cumberland may be assured that Amherst will make the Patriotic Fund at least ten thousand dollars.
