CORNER-STONE OF NEW TEMPLE LAID BY MASONS OF LONDON

Past Grand Master Malone, of Toronto, in the Absence of Grand Master White, Who Was Ill, Performed the Impressive Ceremony—A Big Turnout of Brethren Last Night

Past Grand Master M. V. Bro. E. T. Malone, of Toronto, acting in the place of Grand Master M. W. Bro. Aubrey White, also of Toronto, who was unable to be present because of illness, officiated at the laying of the corner-stone at the new Masonic Temple on Queen's avenue, opposite the public library, last evening, the impressive ceremony being witnessed by over 700 members of the craft, from lodges of this city and outside points, and also a great number of friends of the A., F. and A. M.

Marched to New Temple.

The different lodges of the city formed at the Masonic Temple on Richmond street and, headed by the First Hussars band, proceeded to the new edifice where under ideal weather conditions the ceremony was carried out. Many prominent Masons were in attendance from outside points, including Rt. Wor. Bro. Fred Guest, of St. Thomas; Rt. Wor. Bro. R. L. Gunn, grand secretary, of Hamilton; and Rt. Wor. Bro. L. Riggs, of Toronto.

The new temple, which is being erected at a cost of $40,000 on a site worth $20,000, is one of the finest structures of the kind obtainable. The main floor provides an auditorium capable of seating 1,200 people, while in the upper portion the different lodges will be accommodated, and in the basement a dining room will be located. The temple is not alone for the use of the Masons, but is also intended as a convention hall for the city of London.

The Corner-Stone.

The stone, it was explained, is located on the corner of the building between the north and the east, being indicative of the passing of the members of the craft from the darkness of night to the light of day. Those taking part in the ceremony applied the plumb, the level, the square and other tools required by the ritual, after which the past grand master completed the service of pouring upon the cube wine from the cornucopia, or horn of plenty, betokening good fellowship and brotherly spirit, and oil to emphasize the fact that Masons are duty bound to assist to the best of their ability and relieve the sufferings of afflicted brethren or their families.

Order of Procession.

The order of the procession between the present building and the new temple was as follows: First Hussars Band; tyler, R. Bonney; director of ceremonies, Archie Simmie; all master Masons, to the number of 700; grand tyler, John Robinson; grand pursuivant, William Wilson; grand director of ceremonies, J. W. Metherall; grand stewards, Jas. E. Keenleyside; Masons—grand organist, A. G. Smythe; assistant grand organist, E. W. G. Quantz; assistant grand director of ceremonies, Finlay Marshall; assistant grand secretary; architect, William G. Murray; grand superintendent of works, H. C. Simpson; grand registrar, Samuel Baker; grand secretary, G. L. Gunn; grand treasurer, A. B. Greer; grand chaplain, Rev Principal Waller; cornucopia with horn, B. F. Brighton; ewer with wine, F. Thompson; ewer with oil, L. Davies; Corinthian column, F. Palmer; Doric column, C. A. Whitwam; grand junior deacon, D. A. Graham; grand junior warden, T. G. Davis; grand senior warden, T. Rowe; twenty-four past grand lodge officers; deputy grand master, E. W. M. Flock; standard-bearers, James Tancock, Ed. Stratfold; grand sword-bearer, W. A. Young; grand senior deacon, J. B. McKillop; past grand master, A. T. Malone; grand stewards, W. Hayman and F. Gidley.

The Officers.

The officers of Masonic Hall, Limited, are: President, C. W. McGuire; vice-president, John Graham; secretary-treasurer, Jared Vining; directors, J. B. McKillop, Benj. Noble, F. Marshall, A. B. Greer, J. E. Keyes, J. W. Metherall, Hugh McPherson, E. W. G. Quantz, William Spittal, S. F. Glass, J. H. Wilson and Dr. R. W. Shaw.

The D. G. M.'s Address.

Ladies and Gentlemen.—I am present here today with the brethren of the craft, under instructions received this morning from the Most Worshipful Grand Master, whose illness, which we greatly deplore, has rendered it impossible to fulfill the engagement which he entered into with the London brethren to perform this important Masonic function. I regret his absence for several reasons, but particularly so as the London brethren have been looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to his visit, and no member of the grand lodge is more capable of gracing the occasion with not only honor to himself, but credit to the craft than Most Worshipful Brother White. He is not only an ideal ruler of the craft, but is well versed in Masonic history, literature and events, and is fortunately capable of expressing himself in eloquent terms.

"I received a telephone message from him at 10 o'clock this morning, to the effect that his physician had vetoed the trip to London, that he must cancel all engagements, and leave for Muskoka and remain there until the meeting of the grand lodge. To my knowledge he has been obliged to forego participation in a couple of important functions. He requested me to attend here today, so as not to disappoint the London brethren, to inform them of his anxiety on their behalf of his inability to be present, and of his best wishes, for not only the prosperity of this commendable venture, in erecting a home in this city for the craftsmen, but also for the prosperity of the craft in general, and to assure them that he has unbounded confidence in them to carry on the good work of Masonry in this prosperous city of Western Ontario.

"It was with considerable trepidation that I accepted the mission, not that my love for Masonry and the London brethren has diminished, but I felt that a function like this requires the presence of grand lodge representative, who had been given plenty of time to prepare for the occasion, so as to fittingly represent the eloquent head of the craft, and not insult the intelligence of the community by coming unprepared. I have been, therefore, forced to collect a few straggling ideas prior to leaving for London, and under the circumstances I know that the brethren at all events will be charitable enough to overlook any shortcomings on my part. I appreciate the honor, as none greater could have been conferred upon me. It is an honor to represent the head of the craft on occasions like this. It is also a pleasure to me to again meet with my London brethren for whom I entertain very friendly feelings. In the past I have had the honor of being entertained by the brethren. Years ago I made a candid admission in your opera house that my advancement in Masonry toward the great east was due considerably to the kindness of the London brethren.

Mutual Friendship.

"I feel that I still have a warm place in their affection, and can assure them that I cherish the friendships I formed in the past, and trust that I may not only renew my acquaintances with the old friends, but that I may become acquainted with brethren whom I have not had the pleasure to meet, and that strong ties of brotherly love and friendship will continue to bind us to the end of the chapter.

"I have had the pleasure of inspecting the plans of this building, through the kindness of the talented architect in charge, Mr. Murray, who is not only a skilled architect (but also a skilled workman among the craft in this district). I am delighted with everything I have seen, and it is with pleasure I have noted during some recent business visits, your substantial buildings, the advantages which your city presents for industrial and other large enterprises, and above all the hospitality of your people. It is plain to see that the city is prospering and growing. I can safely predict such an increase in wealth and population that larger and more magnificent structures will in a very few years adorn this city.

"No more acceptable a task could have been intrusted to a member of the craft. Our fraternity is identified with all that tends to promote prosperity and happiness. We impress upon all our members the necessity of becoming educated, thinking men, of giving their children that education which will make them useful men and women instead of ignorant beings whose existence is destructive to the best interests of the community. In our lodges we recognize neither birth nor wealth; all stand on a level of equality, and the high positions are for those only who display the intelligence necessary to entitle them to rule over intelligent men. Our doors are closed to ignorant men, and as there is no royal road to learning, so all the power of gold cannot gain admittance to a Masonic lodge. During my term of rule, I refused permission for the admission of a man whose financial standing was beyond question, but who was unable to write his own name.

A Splendid Structure.

"I resisted all entreaties, as ignorance cannot be tolerated in our lodges. I can congratulate the brethren of London upon their enterprise in erecting a home for the craft that will not only redound credit upon the craft, but will be an ornament among the splendid structures which are erected in this prosperous city, and wherein will be taught those lessons of brotherly love and benevolence which characterize craft work, and there will be sent forth from its doors, educated, intelligent men to take leading places in every walk of life, and who will from the lessons taught them in the lodge room, be the better equipped to fulfill their duties in the state in municipal affairs, in business, and in every task which they undertake; men who will be known as honorable men, and whose dealings will be carried on in an honest, straightforward manner, who will not close their eyes and ears to the cries of those who are in want, and by whose conduct in life the craft will be judged, and the citizens of London will then be enabled to thank God that Masonry has taken deep root in the city of London.

"I desire also to express my appreciation for the attendance of the ladies, and I would like to say a few words to them, who have so graced this function with their presence. I wish I could lay bare the secrets of the craft to you; although as representative of the grand master today, I am intrusted with great power, still there is a line drawn over which neither the grand master or I can step. I propose, however, to confide some of the secrets to you this evening, be the penalty ever so great. I wish you to give me your best attention and forget no part of the information which I will impart to you.

"Masonry is a helping hand to every woman that is akin by any close relationship to any of its members. It is a flaming sword of protection around any woman who has a right to call upon its help. Holy motherhood, helpless widowhood, devoted wifehood, loving sisterhood and dependent childhood are the special wards of our order. Every strong right arm is sworn to be raised in defence if some craven should assail her, or some libertine attempt to sully her fair name. Let other women say aught they please against Masonry, but let every Mason's wife, mother, widow, daughter or sister entertain for the order the highest respect and profoundest reverence, for the order has the highest respect and profoundest reverence for you, counting no task too heavy, nor any sacrifice too great to relieve your burden and defend your unspotted name. Masonry is a woman's fair angel, protecting her virtue and granting her aid."

A Benefit and Advantage.

"Therefore do not begrudge the fair and reasonable time demanded from your male relations. The work they are engaged in is for your benefit and advantage. You will no doubt appreciate the language of an eminent clergyman when speaking to a large gathering of Masons and their wives and families. He said: 'Women, women, when your husbands and sons are at a Masonic Lodge they couldn't be at any better place on earth. There was a loud applause from the male side of the house. When the hurricane had subsided, with singular emphasis he added, 'If they are there.' Loud applause from the opposition.

"In discussing Masonry I cannot do better than give you the words of a talented brother: 'Founded upon charity in its broad and spiritual sense, and apart from its practical good in contributing to the relief of distressed Masons, their widows and orphans, and in founding institutions to further this great object is has still a higher mission in battering down the barriers between sects and peoples and nations, and in teaching that all men constitute one great household whose head and father is God.'

"Our teaching is of a symbolical character. The symbolism of the corner-stone and the ceremonies attendant upon the laying of same is full of significance to us. As it is the particular stone on which the entire structure rests, it must be perfectly square on its surfaces, and in its solid contents a cube. The square is a symbol of morality, and the cube of truth. In its situation it lies between north, the place of darkness, and the east, the place of light, and hence symbolizes the Masonic progress from darkness to light, from ignorance to knowledge. Its permanence and durability, which last long after the building has fallen into decay, is intended to remind the Mason that when this earthly house of his tabernacle shall have passed away he has under him a sure foundation of eternal life, a cornerstone of immortality.

"The examination of the stone with the implements of operative Masons, and the application of the elements of consecration, is also full of meaning to us, and which the lateness of the hour will prevent me from explaining.

To Judge Masonry.

"I desire here to publicly testify before those who are not of our order, that we desire you to judge us by our work and conduct. You will find attached to us men in every honorable calling and walk in life—statesmen, judges, merchant princes, honest and honorable men of every trade and calling, from the King on the throne down to the humblest subject, owes us allegiance. Among our leaders and teachers are the leading ministers of the gospel in the country. Our ancient landmarks, our sublime ceremonies, our profound symbols and allegories all inculcate religious doctrine and teach religious truth. Masonry is in all its forms thoroughly tinctured with true devotional spirit. Our lodges are opened with prayer. We invoke the blessing of God upon all our work. We require of all who knock at our doors and ask for admission into our order a trusting belief in the existence of the superintending care of God. We teach them to bow with humility and reverence at the mention of his holy name. God's holy law lies wide open on our altars constantly. Such, my friends, is a short account of our order, that also teaches its members their duty to the country of their birth or adoption, and particularly that

"He serves his country best
Who lives pure life and doeth righteous deeds,
And walks straight paths, however others stray,
And leaves his sons an uttermost bequest,

A strainless record which all men may read.

"We will now proceed with the ceremony."

Cured of Piles After 20 Years

Many people have got the impression that piles can only be cured by a surgical operation, with all the attendant suffering, risk and expense. There is an easier way; by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. No risk, no danger and little expense is attached to this treatment, and results are highly satisfactory.

Mr. John M. Bates, gardener, St Laurent, Que., writes: "I had piles for twenty years, and tried all kinds of ointments and medicines, but they did me no good. It was getting worse and suffering more from the dreadful itching all the time. I used three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and today I am perfectly cured. There has not been a sign of the old trouble for six months, and it leaves me in perfect health today, whereas I was in agony for about twenty years. I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as a positive cure for piles."

Blind May Hear Light

London, June 24.—Dr. Fournier d'Albe, a lecturer on physics at Birmingham University, will demonstrate tomorrow at the optical convention at South Kensington an instrument called the optophone, which is designed to enable those who are totally blind to locate and estimate light by means of the ear. The instrument is based on the property of selenium of changing its resistance when it is illuminated. This change is made to cause a current which, when interrupted by a special contrivance and transmitted through telephone receivers fitted to the head, gives an audible sound varying in loudness with the intensity of the light. The blind are enabled to locate lamps in windows and other high lights and to trace the outlines of large, well-defined objects. The instrument makes the moonlight distinctly audible and sunlight a roaring noise.

MONTREAL PRINTERS WANT HIGHER SCALE

Negotiations Are In Progress and President Lynch Will Attend.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, June 24.—Negotiations are in progress between the local typographical unions and the printers and publishers of the city for a revision of the scale of wages which has prevailed for the past five years. The scale of compositors on day work is now $16 a week, and an increase to $20 is asked. An addition to the overtime rate has also been requested, so the net increase is over 25 per cent. The employing printers, according to one of the largest of them, feel that the new rate is unduly high. They have insisted that a preliminary to negotiations must be an agrement to arbitrate any points not settled by the negotiations must be an agreement to arbitrate this condition, but are in communication with Mr. Lynch, the president of the International Union, who is expected in Montreal in a few days.

CANADA A GIANT SAYS SIR WILFRID

Delivers Patriotic Oration Before St. Jean Baptiste Society.

[Canadian Press.]

Quebec, June 24.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier was the principal speaker at the banquet of the St. Jean Baptiste Society last night at St. Sauveur, Que.

Responding to the toast of Canada, he said he was glad that being no more absorbed with official duties he could now come and celebrate the French-Canadian national day amongst his old Quebec friends. He pointed out that not only the Province of Quebec, but the whole of Canadians should be claimed by the French-Canadians as their country.

He had been proud to say and he was proud to repeat, that Canada was now a nation. To the critics who pretend that this is not so, that it has not been changed for twenty years, that our organic laws remain what they were then, he said that the laws did not make up a people, but the people made the laws.

"Canada," he said, "feels in its veins the strength of a young giant."

Sir Wilfrid claimed a great future for Northern Canada, which was going to be developed by the new Transcontinental, and where there could be found a place for new provinces as rich as the present ones.

He paid a tribute of loyalty to the royal family of England, which he considered were doing honor not only to monarchy but to humanity.

He hoped that when he left this world his eyes would close on a country of liberty and toleranee.

Sir Wilfrid concluded by saying that there was as much dignity in recognizing one's duties as in affirming one's rights.

Mr. Armand Lavergne responded to the toast of the Province of Quebec, and urged his compatriots to turn their eyes towards their fellow-citizens of the West, who were suffering from the violation of the rights that all classes enjoy in Quebec, and to help them. He reviewed his Nationalist declarations.

SUFFRAGETTES APPEAL TO QUEEN MARY

Her Majesty Asked to Stop the Forcible Feeding Horrors.

London, June 24. — The suffragettes who are not in jail thronged the lobby of the House of Commons today during the time Home Secretary McKenna was making a statement as to their actions in jail and the discussion on his statement, and solicited signatures to a petition to Queen Mary "to stop the hunger strike and forcible feeding horrors." They were not impressed by Mr. McKenna's suggestion that the trouble could be ended by the prisoners eating.

One of the suffragettes released with Mrs. Pankhurst because their health has been broken by voluntary starvation, tells how Emily Davidson, who is serving six months in Holloway jail for setting fire to a postal letter-box, threw herself down two flight of stairs last week as a protest agains pump feeding. She cracked her head and smashed her teeth, but her condition is not very serious and she is still being fed with a pump.

Mrs. Pethick-Lawrence was also released from the Holloway jail this afternoon.

Miss Annie Kenney, who has been directing the Women's Social and Political Union during the imprisonment of the suffragette leaders, announces that Mrs. Pankhurst was released because she was found last night to be at the point of death. All attempts to forcibly feed her had failed.

Reginald McKenna, home secretary, admits that Mrs. Pankhurst's heart was too weak to permit of forced feeding.
