☞ OFFICE—Queen Street, Fredericton, opposite Post Office.

The Brayley House was entirely destroyed by fire, which broke out shortly before 3 o'clock Sunday morning. It apparently originated in the rear of the lower flat of the building, for when first discovered, smoke was seen coming up through the floors of the second flat. The firemen who had responded promptly to the alarm, found great difficulty in handling the fire. The building was a mass of flames inside, and being a frame case1 one, it was dangerous to approach. Before the flames were subdued, nothing was left of the fine Hotel, but a smoking mass of ruins. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips saved comparatively little of their clothing or furniture, and the guests of the hotel were unfortunate. Among the latter Prof. Bellivreau of the Normal School, was the greatest sufferer. He lost a valuable library and all his clothing. Escape by the front door was entirely cut off before the inmates of the Hotel were aroused, and they got out by the rear. Mr. J. H. Barry was compelled to make his exit by jumping from his window to the roof of the kitchen. Mr. Phillips had $1,750 insurance on his furniture in the Imperial, John Black Agent. The building itself was insured for $4,800 in Mr. Morrisons and the Messrs. Richards' offices. It was built in 1866, for J. W. Brayley, but for a number of years has been owned by John Fenny of Halifax.

One of the stores on the ground flat was occupied by Elijah Clarke, boot and shoe dealer. A portion of his stock is saved, but his loss is considerable. He is covered by insurance in Mr. Morrison's offices. The building below the Brayley, owned and occupied by J. R. Parker, tailor, was slightly damaged by fire and water.

Mr. Howie claims that a lot of his ready-made clothing was stolen during the fire, but the Chief Engineer, who was personally in charge of the firemen in Mr. Howie's building, and who placed Corp. Carney, of the Military School, on guard at the door, when first entering the building, the latter remaining at his post until after six o'clock, assures us that it was impossible for any goods to have been taken out of the building during the fire. Mr. Howie's loss is covered by insurance in the Messrs. Richards' offices.

Ald. Moore, Chairman of the Fire Committee, was of great assistance at the fire Sunday morning, aiding the firemen by suggestions and acts.

Mr. Howie,s building was on fire again at 1 o'clock this morning, the origin of which is a mystery. The flames were extinguished, however, before much damage was done.

There was an exciting row in one of the corridors of the House of Commons at Ottawa last Friday afternoon, when Mr. Landry, M. P., for Montmagny, Quebec, cow hided Charles Langelier, a French journalist, for making changes in his paper, Le Courier de Quebec, against his Landry's) character. Langelier admitted having struck him with a cowhide point Landry written followed up, until Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs, and Hon. Mr. Chapleau Secretary of State, rushed from their seats in the House to quell the row. Trudel, Chief of Quebec Harbor Police, who is a friend of Langelier, stood by urging the latter on, calling upon those present not to interfere, as Langelier, who is a more powerful man than Landry, deserved all he was getting. The Sergeant-at-Arms was then sent for by the Speaker, Senators and members, Senators and spectators, who had assembled to see the fun, Langelier states that he had done so or struck Landry, a fellow member of Parliament, within the precincts of the House, he could have been arrested and held in custody according to old English practice until Parliament prorogued. Langelier is a larger man, it is stated that his opponent under any circumstances would be too much for him. Those who witnessed the affray describe it as extremely ludicrous. Landry was subsequently fined $20 in the police court for the assault.

Humphreys' Veterinary System.

No well-informed person denies that the ownership of animals involves the obligation of their proper nursing and care when sick. It is generally admitted that the common mode of the treatment is cruel as well as wasteful in life and suffering. But before you condemn us show us a better system. Now this is precisely what we propose to do. "HUMPHREYS' HOMEOPATHIC VETERINARY SPECIFICS have been in use twenty-five years, and the testimony of the respectable horse and stock owners of the country is in their favor. The medicines are entirely satisfactory. The results are almost among every possible disease among domestic animals, and can be given without the slightest trouble. They are not poisonous nor destructive of health, but cure in far less time than any other remedies. The system of treatment is free from intricacy or difficulty, one that tells the owner just what to do and how to do it, and while safe and satisfactory in results, it secures the animal from all cruelty and unkindness. Moreover it affords the best chance for their recovery and renewed usefulness." We think we are acting in the interest and for the benefit of our animal friends, who can not speak for themselves, when we cordially indorse HUMPHREYS' HOMEOPATHIC VETERINARY SPECIFICS.

The Shooting of Major Vince.

A most Peculiar Accident.

The Woodstock Press furnishes the following particulars of the accidental shooting of Major Vince, already referred to in the FARMER:—

"For some time the affair was clouded in mystery, and many conjectures were formed and rumors floated. Nothing of a suspicious nature was seen in the vicinity, and no cause whatever could be assigned for the shooting until Tuesday, when the following facts were made public: F. H. J. Dibblee has a silver plating shop on Regent street, the front of which is directly in range with Richmond street, and about 100 yards from where Mr. Vince was walking when wounded. That day a self-cocking revolver had been left with Mr. Dibblee for sale. Just about the time of the arrival of the train, as Mr. Dibblee was preparing to go home, he noticed the revolver lying on the workbench, and thoughtlessly took it. He had not the lock before he left the shop. He had not the slightest suspicion of there being any load in it. He found the lock would only half-cock, and turning the muzzle towards the light, in range of Queen street, he looked in the barrel, which was but a short distance from his face, and again tried to cock, so close to his head that the powder scorch his nose. He discharged, which elevation and he felt sure he had not fired bullet out near the eaves of the building. Mr. Dibblee did not hear of the shooting, nor hearing the circumstances, if, at once connected the injury received in the accidental discharge of the revolver in his shop. He examined the revolver and found a pane of glass broken in the window near where the accident occurred. Mr. Dibblee at once went to Mr. Vince and related what had happened in his shop.

The Sentinel says that developments show that Major Vince had even a more narrow escape than was at first supposed. Mrs. Vince found that the bullet had not only passed through his husband's hair, but had also passed through his clothing, striking against a thick pocket book in his breast pocket where it was found. Had it fallen in a pocket where it was dropped into his pocket book it would in all probability have proved fatal. It is needless to say, adds the Sentinel that Mr. Dibblee feels very deeply the circumstance.
