Bronchitis Cured.

Messrs. T. Milburn & Co., Toronto, Ont.:

Dear Sirs,—I have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil for my children when they had bronchitis, and always with great success. I also use it for sore throat, and can say there is nothing to equal it as a sure cure. MRS. JAMES O'BRIEN, Huntsville, Ont.

By a curious coincidence the number of lives lost at sea during 1896 in British merchant ships is returned as exactly 1,897.

The great lung healer is found in that excellent medicine sold as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membranes of the throat and air passages, and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain, or soreness of the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

A bill "to protect the children of the state from the baneful influence of wrong instruction" is before the South Carolina Legislature.

LIFE SAVED.—Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me good."

GOLF.

NEW BALLS BETTER THAN OLD.

Golf says: In the test which Dr. Obach kindly made for me, four old balls were tried and one new one, all of the same brand. I should think I had played at least two rounds with each of the old balls, but they were not dented nor hacked or knocked out of shape. The result of the trial was that the new ball bounded to 56, while the four old balls bounded to 51, 52 and 58 respectively. These results were the means of 30 tests for each ball, and taken with two different apparatuses. It is evident, therefore, that balls by being played will lose some 5 to 9 per cent of their original elasticity, and that the belief, common to all players, that a ball loses life after being played for some time is justified by fact.

The Cycle says: Members of the feathered world have proved apt pupils in cycling, and there are at least two cockatoos whose command of the bicycle is as perfect as it is wonderful. One belongs to the Bellonis, the owners of a very talented family of birds, and, besides ordinary riding, it gives an aerial performance, riding a tight wire. The other clever cockatoo was trained by Mlle. Irma Orbasono, and rides a tricycle. These birds use their beaks for the purpose of steering their machines, and pedal with their claws.

A FORMER U. S. CONSUL

Mr. Wm. Washington—Sketch of a Popular Young American, Well-Known Here.

Many in London remember Wm. Washington, the popular young United States consul in this city about ten years ago. The Washington Star recently published an interesting sketch of Mr. Washington, who is a direct descendant of the father of his country. After describing his early life, the Star says: "Mr. Washington was appointed by President Cleveland, early in his first term, to the position of United States consul at London, Ont. He was the youngest man ever appointed to a consular office, having just passed his 21st birthday, yet filled it with unusual brilliancy, if one may judge from the fact that seven times during his term of service he received 'special commendation' from the department of state. When General Harrison became president, Mr. Washington established himself in New York, and has been remarkably successful, being now president of the Hydraulic Construction Company. He has invented a number of valuable appliances in this direction and the Mercantile and Financial Times said of his system of hydraulic caisson sinking: 'Mr. Washington has given to the world one of the great inventions of the age, and one whose destiny must be to revolutionize existing methods.' Mr. Washington is not wholly devoted to business, however, but finds time for politics, and is deeply interested also in philanthropic work, having been one of the famous tenement house commission of New York, appointed by Gov. Flower. It was he who first suggested to that commission the feasibility of constructing parks on all city piers, for the benefit of the 'submerged tenth'—an idea that has been carried out successfully in New York, and is under way in many other cities. He is president of the Model Dwellings' Association, organized by a number of the most prominent citizens of New York to aid wage-earners in owning their homes, in addition to holding positions on advisory committees in several other philanthropic associations. Mr. Washington is a brilliant talker, an effective public speaker, and a forcible writer on the subjects that interest him. In the presidential campaign of 1888 he was the author of documents of which nearly three million copies were distributed by the Democratic national convention.

"Personally he bears a striking resemblance, when his mustache is removed, to his distinguished relative, and is exactly the same height, six feet one and one-half. He is also of the same magnificent proportions. The brown velvet costume worn by the president at his second inauguration fits Mr. Washington, who is its present possessor, as if made for him." The accompanying illustration shows him as he appeared at an historical pageant recently given at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, in which he represented the Father of his Country."

A Lively Time at the Sewer Committee's Meeting.

Ald. Cooper Challenges Mr. R. Pritchard's Right to Vote.

The Latter Threatens to Resign—Strange Method of Calling for Sewer Tenders—Only Three Contractors Asked.

A brush between Chairman Cooper and Mr. Pritchard was a feature of the regular meeting of the sewer committee last night, and the dispute arose out of the former's ruling that Mr. Pritchard had no right to vote. Mr. Pritchard and Dr. Campbell were appointed members of the committee by the council this year, as representatives of the board of health, and according to the chairman their duty is merely to give advice.

The members present were Chairman Cooper, Ald. Greenlees, Carrothers, Belton, Douglass, Dreaney, Mr. Pritchard, the mayor, Engineer Graydon, Street Commissioner Ironside and Secretary Bell.

Chairman Cooper reported that as some of the committee thought it advisable to continue the sewer on South street, he had got tenders for the work from the leading sewer contractors in the city.

The mayor asked why they need be in such a hurry about the work.

Ald. Cooper replied that the sewer had to be completed to William street, for the benefit of the ratepayers living on that street.

Ald. Dreaney characterized this as "all bosh." He thought tenders should be called in the usual way.

Ald. Douglass—This is the wrong time of the year to do the work, anyway.

Ald. Cooper—The engineer reports not.

Ald. Greenlees spoke in favor of the tenders being read.

Ald. Dreaney—Who authorized the calling of these tenders?

Ald. Cooper—There was no calling about it. We picked out the three best men and asked their prices.

Ald. Dreaney—If you are going to run that kind of work on this committee I'm not going to stay here.

"It's only a blind sewer, anyway," said Ald. Douglass.

Chairman Cooper explained that it was the only outlet for the William street south connections.

Ald. Dreaney again objected to the chairman's action. "I've been on the council long enough to know better than that," he said.

The mayor moved that the tenders be filed.

Ald. Cooper urged that they be considered.

The mayor advised deferring the matter. The committee might find out that they would not need to complete the sewer to William street.

The chairman said the sewer there was necessary to the completion of the system. A great loss would be caused by delay, as the trench, part of which has been timbered, would have to be filled in.

The engineer, in answer to the mayor, said the sewer at present was completed ten feet beyond the Port Stanley track. It was timbered for 100 feet, and the trench opened nearly to William street. That they would have to go on with it some day there was no doubt, and it could be done now just as cheaply as in August or September. At the chairman's request he had got figures from Oakley & Holmes, Grant and Harding & Leathorn.

Mr. Pritchard raised the question if there was not considerable doubt in the minds of the ratepayers as to the working of the sewer system.

The Chairman—Not the slightest.

Mr. Pritchard said there was.

Ald. Cooper referred to the test that had been made.

The mayor ridiculed the test. He was not just sure what had been done. Was it that the sewer had been filled with water and some apples put in at Richmond street, then the aldermen walked leisurely over to Talbot street to see that the apples had been carried through?

Mr. Pritchard—I would not be willing to put more money in the system until a satisfactory test is made.

Ald. Carrothers wanted to hear the tenders read and discussion as to the advisability of calling tenders in the usual way followed.

Ald. Cooper, before putting the mayor's motion to file the tenders, moved in amendment that they be read.

The vote was taken and the show of hands was a tie, the mayor, Ald. Dreaney and Douglass and Mr. Pritchard voting for the motion, and Ald. Greenlees, Belton and Carrothers and the chairman against.

"Lost," said the chairman.

"Why, that's negatived," said some of the others.

The Chairman—I rule that Mr. Pritchard has no vote here.

Mr. Pritchard—You can rule as you like. I'm going to stay here until removed by forcible means.

The chairman said he had the solicitor's opinion.

Mr. Pritchard—I don't care for you or your solocitor.

The amendment was put and declared carried. The chairman began reading a tender.

"I object," came from Ald. Dreaney and Ald. Douglass.

Ald. Greenlees thought Ald. Douglass should not find fault with Chairman Cooper, as he was only following out what he (Ald. Douglass) did on No. 2 committee.

Ald. Carrothers said that under the circumstances it would be well to advertise for tenders.

Chairman Cooper—It is your own suggestion that they are here. I wouldn't have thought of it if you had not suggested it.

It was then decided to advertise for tenders, to be in next Thursday.

Ald. Douglass referred to the insinuation that Ald. Greenlees had made about the chairman of No. 2 committee doing the same as Chairman Cooper. He strongly resented this, and asked Ald. Greenlees to take it back.

Ald. Greenlees wanted to know who had ordered the work done in the city hall.

The mayor offered an explanation. Most of the council had visited the hall and thought the work should be done.

Ald. Greenlees (good-humoredly)—After that explanation, Ald. Douglass, I take it back.

Mr. Pritchard demanded that the solicitor's opinion as to the speaker's right to vote be read.

The Chairman—I give it to you orally.

Mr. Pritchard (hotly)—I can't accept that. Produce it in writing.

The Chairman (slapping the table)—Order

Mr. Pritchard — Will you produce that?

The chairman ignored this and further interruptions, and proceeded to read a letter from Engineer Chipman.

Mr. Chipman's letter stated that he would be free to come to London for consultation any time after the election. The chairman and engineer will decide when he is wanted, and a time will be appointed for him to meet the council.

Mr. Pritchard reverted to the chairman's ruling concerning himself. "I think the chairman will reverse that decision," said the mayor soothingly.

Ald. Carrothers—Any man who knows municipal law knows that neither Dr. Campbell nor Mr. Pritchard have any right to vote on anything relative to the sewer committee.

Mr. Pritchard—When the council say that I will stay away.

Ald. Carrothers did not wish to be understood as speaking against Mr. Pritchard or Dr. Campbell or last year's committee. He merely stated the law.

The mayor said that if it came up in council he would vote that these gentlemen had the right to vote, or else apologize to them.

"I'll submit to what the council says, but not to a partisan chairman. I wish you good-night," said Mr. Pritchard, rising.

"Sit down! Sit down!" said several aldermen deprecatingly. Mr. Pritchard sat down, and as he did, said he did not purpose being insulted.

Ald. Douglass suggested that eight months be given for the completion of the South street sewer, but the suggestion did not meet with favor. Ald. Carrothers said the council was to blame for not making the present contractor finishing his portion of the work quicker. Adjourned.

Board of Works.

Prior to the meeting of the sewer committee, a brief session of the board of works was held, with Ald. Douglass, chairman. Mr. E. H. Johnston, on behalf of Mr. James Reid, 1,054 Dundas street, asked for damages, because Mr. Reid's property was flooded by water, which came down the asylum hill from the street railway tracks.

Ald. Greenlees thought the matter should be adjusted by the street railway company. A report was asked from the engineer.

Several applications for the position of engineer of the stone crusher were filed. The engineer estimated that the cost of a new engine for the stone crusher would be $800 or $900, and it was decided to call for tenders for a new, and also a second-hand, one. Last year the rental of an engine cost $203, and it was thought that the purchase of an engine would, in the end, be a saving.

The Toronto snow plow which Ald. Cooper thought so highly of, had arrived. It was two years out of date, and the cost of putting it together and the freight totaled $17. Some of the aldermen suggested that they regard the deal as a purchase instead of a loan. The plow will be tried when there is need of it.

Was Wasting Away.

"I could not eat, sleep, walk, or sit down for any length of time. I was always in pain and wasting away. I grew very weak and had a bad cough. I tried many different remedies, but did not get relief. Since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, however, I am able to attend to my business." Minnie Jaques, Oshono, Ont.

MUNYON

The Fame of His Remedies Increases as the Wonderful Cures Become Known.

Druggists "Say We Hear Nothing But Good Reports of Munyon's Remedies—They Make Wonderful Cures."

"What do your customers say of Munyon's medicines after they have tried them?" was asked of one of the leading druggists of the city. "I hear nothing but good results," said he; "and some accounts are really astonishing. I know of one case, a man who has suffered from sciatic rheumatism until his limb was almost paralyzed; he claims to be cured and his limb restored, pain gone, and numbness all gone." Such results as these and thousands of others like them, account for the wonderful sales of these remedies. Munyon's remedies are handy and pleasant to take, and they cure the diseases for which they are prepared.

Cured of Kidney Disease.

Mr. Richard Watts, No. 356 Egerton street, London, Ont., Canada, says: "For twelve months I suffered from Kidney disease, accompanied by pains in the back so severe that I could not go any distance without stopping to rest. It was impossible for me to work, and I was a continual sufferer, trying all the different remedies I heard of in the hope of obtaining relief. In each case I was disappointed. Finally I consulted Munyon's Specialists, who assured me that I could be cured. I began using Munyon's Kidney Cure with little faith. Relief came almost at once. Now, every trace of my trouble has disappeared, and although some time has elapsed I have had no return of the trouble." I desire to say that I called at the Munyon offices voluntarily, and gave this testimonial unsolicited."

Canada's Boom.

All British Eyes Now Directed to Canada.

Significant Change in Public Opinion in England.

The New Liberal Preferential Tariff and Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Visit Has Done Wonders.

Guelph, Feb. 25.—Mr. George B. Ryan, a lealing merchant here, and in other places, has returned from Great Britain, where he was on an extensive purchasing trip. A Mercury representative had a very interesting chat with Mr. Ryan this morning about the place Canada holds in the eyes of the old country people at this time. Mr. Ryan has crossed the ocean 36 times, and, as he is a man who is in the habit of moving about with his eyes open, he is in a position to speak confidently and with some authority concerning the change of sentiment in Great Britain.

EVERYBODY TALKING CANADA.

"Never," said Mr. Ryan, "did I meet so many people making inquiries about this country. Previously, if the conversation drifted towards this country, it was carried on indifferently; now everybody is anxious to hear all about us, and the talk is all in that direction. I remember about fifteen years or so ago, when Australia was the center of observation in the old country and elsewhere, on account of the great gold boom, everything was Australia, the most costly and the finest fabrics were being shipped to that country. Well, it is almost in the same way, now that this country is regarded as a great place for investment. There is also a marked evidence that the people are better posted. They have been reading up and are much more conversant with the condition of affairs in Canada. A few years ago, as is well known, it was ludicrous the extent of their ignorance even regarding the geography of Canada. They look upon us now as brothers and belonging to the same family, treat us in the most cordial way—a marked contrast to the languid indifference which was the rule a couple of years ago. I saw and heard more interest in Canada this trip than in the previous sixteen trips put together. Formerly when we got homesick we used to go out and buy a lot of papers to see if we could read something about Canada, and we were almost invariably disappointed. This year you cannot pick up an English paper without finding in it a column or more concerning this country. Every Canadian goes there just now." While in London he noticed some very tempting apples in a window, and he bought some. The storekeeper was asked where they came from, and he replied: "The county of Maine, Canada." He was assured that Maine was one of the United States, but the apple vendor insisted that the apples came from Canada. "Canada" was all the rage, and the storekeeper was not going to be behind.

THE KLONDIKE.

Klondike is in everybody's mouth. So general is the talk about this gold district that the word "Klondike" is used very extensively in advertising. He related a rather humorous incident in connection with this which took place in London. At one of the swell clubs a resolution was passed to the effect that any man who said Klondike at dinner would be fined 6d. After dinner on the same evening £3 were collected in fines and sent to a poor fund.

LAURIER'S GOOD IMPRESSION.

"It is natural to ask what has brought about all this. A number of things all happening just at the right time has served to give Canada such a lift that she bounded like a shot to the front and now is in a position to sustain all the good opinions that are being formed of her. In the first place, of course, came the Canadian preferential tariff, which touched the sentiment of the British people keenly; to feel that they had been treated by one of their colonies to more favorable terms than were granted their rivals, thrilled the whole nation. That was the great starting point. Then, Sir Wilfrid Laurier made a most marked impression at the jubilee. He represented this country exceedingly well, everybody over there was delighted with him. One business man, a canny Scot, in conversing with me, remarked; 'You have a wonderful man in Laurier, he's a second Disraeli.' To have such a man representing the country in London, when the attention of the whole world was directed to the jubilee, was a great thing. The opportunity might not occur again in a thousand years, but when it did occur we had the right man. I doubt if a million dollars spent in advertising could have done as much for this country. The English people were delighted, too, with his manly speeches in France. Following Sir Wilfrid's appearance came the gold booms, and the fine crops in the Northwest, all of which tended to send Canada up to the top notch in public opinion in the old land."

Mr. Ryan referred to the bound in the price of C. P. R. and G. T. R. stocks. The former had risen from 46 to 77½ inside of eight months, and the latter had more than doubled. These two great roads were to a great extent the pulse of Canada in the old country, and the increase in their earnings was ample evidence to the people that business was reviving here very much. If we had a proper insolvency law it would help British trade greatly.

CANADA AND AUSTRALIA.

Mr. Ryan drew a comparison between Australia and this country. When the former had their boom they were very extravagant, as if they expected it to last forever; now they were heavily in debt. Canadians were getting their innings now, he was firmly convinced, and it would be well for them to take warning, and not abuse their good fortune. He believed there would be a big rush to this country this year, from all indications.

The Russian Government has decided to introduce the French metric system of weights and measures throughout the Muscovite empire, and, by order of the czar, a decree to this effect has been submitted to him for signature.
