ESTERHAZY'S TURN NEXT

Two of Three Who Know the Truth Are Dead.

His Ruin Has Been Determined Upon—He is in London in the Guise of an Italian Count—Will Publish a Book Throwing Light Upon the Unhappy Dreyfus' Story.

London, Sept. 22.—The Daily News this morning says that Comte Esterhazy has been sojourning in London in the guise of an Italian count. He speaks Italian fluently. A representative of The Daily Mail caught him at Charing Cross as he was about to start for Paris. In the course of the interview, Comte Esterhazy said he had constantly passed the detectives detailed to watch him while in Paris in his present disguise, and that nobody had recognized him.

"But," he added, "I mistrust even this. I told General Pelleux, after the suicide of Col. Henry, that it would be impossible to stop things, and that the movement would be formidable. The Generals lost their heads. I wrote to M. Cavaignac a long letter—tres documente—acquainting him with the salient points of the affair. He refused to see me. My ruin had been determined upon; I was thrown overboard and have nothing left but to go away and await developments."

Comte Esterhazy proceeded to declare that he had vainly tried to convince General Pelleux that the Henry document was a forgery, but that General Pelleux had declined to listen to him.

"There were," said Comte Esterhazy, "but three persons who knew the truth of the matter—Sandherr, Henry and myself. The first two are dead and I alone hold the secret."

Comte Esterhazy complained bitterly of the treatment of himself and Madame Payas, who is in prison in Paris. He declared that the juge d'instruction had Madame Payas brought from the St. Lazare Prison and offered her her liberty if she would reveal all she knew about the generals.

After reference to other phases of the affair, Comte Esterhazy said: "I intend to publish a book that will throw light upon the unhappy Dreyfus story. Cavaignac made a mistake in pursuing me, because he struck at the same time his relation, Col. Du Paty du Clam. I may mention that I had already declined a pension offered me by the General Billot."

Just as he was taking the train, he said in a sharp, nervous tone, without pausing for breath: "I don't know whether I shall make use of the documents in my possession. It will be dependent upon the march of events."

THE SITUATION GRAVE.

Conflict Between Civil and Military Authorities Becoming Acute.

Paris, Sept. 22.—The situation here is generally admitted to be grave by both press and people. The conflict between the civil and military authorities is becoming acute. The sudden and unexpected action of General Zurlinden, the military governor of Paris, in prosecuting Col. Picquart on the charge of forgery, and using forged documents, assumes a grave aspect on account of the circumstances attending this intervention of the military authorities in a civil court. At the present moment, when the political atmosphere is surcharged with dangerous electricity, generated by the Dreyfus affair, the General, who has just quitted the Cabinet, defying civil authority, takes without consulting his successor or the Premier, an important step. In ordinary circumstances, the military governor is empowered to act independently, but now that the Dreyfus question has become a great, national matter, every proceeding in the affair has state importance. General Zurlinder's ignoring this obvious fact is very significant. He comes forward as the defender of the army, the prosecutor of its supposed culminators, and the resolute opponent of a revision of the case. From this to an appeal to the public in the line of the establishment of a dictatorship there is no wide step.

HONEYMOON DISTURBED.

Young Couple From Michigan Followed to London, Ont., and the Groom Arrested.

London, Ont., Sept. 22.—On Saturday a young couple registered at the Grigg House as Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Smith, Almont, Mich. They were well-dressed, good-looking and spent all their time in one another's society, and it was evident they were on their wedding tour. Yesterday afternoon Smith was taken to Port Huron in the custody of Detective Ryder of London and Sheriff Demorest of Lapeer County, Michigan, with the serious charges of burglary and forgery hanging over him. His weeping bride of a week accompanied him. Smith denies all knowledge of the crimes imputed to him, and says he is prepared to prove his innocence. He is a telegraph operator, and is well and favorably known in Almont and Lapeer. He is but 24 years of age. Mrs. Smith, who is completely prostrated by the arrest of her husband, is the daughter of a wealthy farmer, who owns 200 acres of land near Almont. The affair is likely to create a considerable sensation in Almont.

Dr. James McArthur had so far recovered from his attack of typhoid fever yesterday as to be able to take a drive.

THE CRIMINAL COURT.

A Number of True Bills Returned—Theft From a Store.

At the Sessions yesterday true bills were returned against Eli R. Connor of Whitchurch, for forcible entry into the home of G. W. Connor on Aug. 9, against the T. Eaton Co., for applying false trade descriptions to goods; against George Kendrick, Sampson Kane and Frederick Myles, for housebreaking at the home of Rebecca Olson, Vaughan Township on Aug. 9; against James Taylor, Scarboro, for assault on Alfred and Charles Coathup on Aug. 11, two cases; against Frederick Fitting, on charges of theft from James Leask and G.T.R.; and against James Curry of York County for assaulting William McNeeley and Walter Hahan on June 5. A second indictment for housebreaking against Kendrick, Kane and Myles was thrown out.

Mrs. Maria Jones was arraigned and pleaded guilty to the theft of several articles from the T. Eaton Co. Mr. Du Vernet for the prisoner outlined the circumstances of the case. He said that Mrs. Jones had come to visit the Exhibition, and while here had lost $8 that she had received from neighbors to buy goods. After losing the money, she had written to her son to send her the amount and before the deter arrived she was arrested. Her son was present in court and promised to take care of the prisoner in future. She was allowed out on suspended sentence. The jury could not agree in the case of Larry McCann, accused of assaulting County Constable Tomlinson of North Toronto, on July 28, and he was bound over to appear at the next Session. The alleged assault took place when the officer attempted to arrest a gang of young men who were having a high time on a North Toronto common.

Fred Hunter was found guilty of wounding George Boyane on Aug. 27. The evidence showed that the two men were not on speaking terms for over a year. On the night in question Hunter went to Boyane's home at 19 McFarlane-street, and struck him with some blunt instrument below the eye, inflicting a deep cut. The injuries are still visible on the complainant's face.

Barrister J. F. Faulds applied to the crown for particulars of the witnesses in the case of Margaret Daly, charged with procuring her neice, Bessie Donnell, for immoral purposes. Only two witnesses were called in the Police Court, and the crown proposes to call several neighbors who are expected to give important evidence. The case was set for Monday to give the defence an opportunity to get their statements.

WHERE STEAMERS TIE UP.

Vessels Come and Go—Traffic Has Quieted Down.

The Macassa, from Hamilton, brought down a big cargo of fruit and vegetables.

The Ocean arrived from Montreal last night with a cargo of general merchandise. She will clear for Hamilton this morning.

The steamer Empress of India, which intended running between Charlotte and Picton, has been tied up for the winter at the latter place.

The steamer Lake Michigan pulled in from Hamilton. She took a big load of freight to Montreal and other eastern ports.

The steamers Chicora and Corona of the Niagara Line will single up next Thursday, the latter boat going off the route. The Chicora will make one trip a day, arriving in the city at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and leaving an hour later.

The schooner Oliver Mowat arrived with 524 tons of coal for Elias Rogers, from Oswego.

The arrivals yesterday were Chicora and Corona from Lewiston, Lakeside from St. Catharines, Macassa from Hamilton, and Lake Michigan from Hamilton.

The A. J. Tymon will commence in a few days to carry freight to and from Oakville and other points.

The steamer Niagara of the Matthews Line arrived with a big load of lumber from Manitoulin Island.

The steamer Garden City, which had such a successful season plying between Toronto and eastern towns, will be thoroughly renovated for next season, and made as comfortable as possible for the large crowds she will undoubtedly carry.

The Lakeside is doing a splendid trade between St. Catharines and the city, in the matter of freight, fruit and heavy material being her cargoes.

Customs Officers John McQuaig and George Monroe will single up by the end of the week. By that time one man will be able to handle the amount of business.

Lloydtown Harvest Home.

Lloydtown, Sept. 22.—(Special.)—A very pretty harvest home service was held in the Church of St. Mary Magdalene here yesterday afternoon, when an appropriate sermon from the words "Harvest is come." was given by Rev. Prof. Dyson Hague of Wycliffe College, Toronto. The reverend gentleman spoke of the perfection of God's laws, and the potentiality of all His handiwork, and the church was most appropriately decorated with fruits and grain. In the evening high tea was served in the drill-shed, where turkeys, geese, fowl and the genuine pumpkin pie made up an excellent bill of fare. A musical program was rendered, in which Theodore Donner of Orangeville, Miss Winters and Mr. Van Winkle took part, and addresses were given by Revs. Hand, Watt and Little.

Celestials in Court.

Celestials predominated over the usual court habitues yesterday, when the case of Yung Choy, a Chinaman arrested in Brampton for stealing $150 from Lee Yen of 305 King-street west, was called. It has been Yen's ambition to get over into Uncle Sam's domains, now that the war is over, and it is said that he found a friend to assist him in Choy. Yen, it is alleged, advanced the $150 to Choy, who disappeared, and was not heard of until he turned up in Brampton.

Cucumbers and melons are "forbidden fruit" to many persons so constituted that the least indulgence is followed by attacks of cholera, dysentery, griping, etc. Those persons are not aware that they can indulge to their heart's content if they have on hand a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellog's Dysentery Cordial, a medicine that will give immediate relief and is a sure cure for the worst cases. ed

He Had Five Wives.

Henry O'Brien, the bigamist, was given five years in the Kingston Penitentiary when he pleaded guilty in the Police Court yesterday. The prisoner admitted having three wives, two of whom were in court, but were not asked to give evidence. Inspector Archabold placed the number at six.

Murphy Abusive, Sent Down.

On Wednesday night Thomas Murphy abused Frederick Tanner, when he was refused alms after telling a hard luck story. Murphy was arraigned before Magistrate Denison yesterday, and sent to the Central Prison for six months.

A Brutal Assailant.

John J. Thompson will spend the next four months in the Central Prison for the brutal assault he committed on Mr. James Davies of the well-known brewery firm Tuesday night last.

One of the greatest blessings to parents is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. It effectually dispels worms and gives health in a marvelous manner to the little one. ed

IS TEMPERANCE A CRIME?

Childish Arguments Advanced in Favor of Prohibition.

Some of Mr. Spence's Alleged Arguments Considered—Where is He To Get His Revenue From?—Whiskey Exists Because There is a Demand For It—The Weekly Sun on Prohibition.

Of all the childish arguments that have been advanced in favor of prohibition that which appeared in The Globe yesterday morning is about the worst. Moderate people look upon the personal liberty feature of this campaign as the one of most importance, but just to show how utterly the prohibitionist fails to realize the meaning of true personal liberty The Globe's "correspondent" says that the man who values personal liberty is opposed to all laws that restrain him from doing just what he might desire under any circumstances, for instance, the liberty to murder, bribe, fire buildings and spread contagious diseases. Could any argument be more ridiculous? Imagine placing the temperate man who thinks he has a right to a glass of ale when he wants it in the same class as the murderer, the briber and the incendiary! But, then this is a very fair sample of prohibition "argument."

Some of Mr. Spence's Arguments.

F. S. Spence argues that the whiskey manufacturers and sellers are wringing $40,000,000 out of the people every year. What nonsense! The distilleries, breweries and hotels exist because there is a demand for whiskey, wines and ale. They could not exist unless the demand existed and they will cease to exist the minute the demand ceases. To speak of wringing $40,000,000 out of the people every year is a poor compliment to the character of the Canadian people, who are not so easily "wrung" as Mr. Spence imagines. They know what they want, they get it and they hope always to enjoy personal liberty.

Mr. Spence will perhaps argue that the whiskey sellers wring the $40,000,000 out of "the unfortunate slaves of strong drink." As a matter of fact nine-tenths of the whiskey, ale and wine sold is consumed by moderate drinkers, who use it but do not abuse it. But they have no rights—according to Mr. Spence.

The Revenue Question.

The same gentleman says that even under prohibition a considerable amount of revenue would be raised from liquor made and sold for "permitted purposes." Will Mr. Spence please inform a benighted public how much revenue is raised now from liquor used for other purposes than beverage? Is one per cent. of the total revenue raised from liquor collected on spirits sold for purposes other than a beverage? And yet the prohibition legislation which Mr. Spence and his friends are fighting for is framed for the express purpose of prohibiting the manufacture, importation or sale of spirits, wine, beer, ale, cider and all other alcoholic liquors, as beverages. Now, if Mr. Spence's brand of prohibition is going to allow "a considerable revenue to be raised from liquor manufactured and sold for "permitted purposes"—and among "permitted purposes" he, no doubt, includes the medicinal use of liquor—it is not the kind of prohibition that many of his friends think it is. Mr. Spence appears to realize that under prohibition this country would be full of people who would require liquor for their health, or at least who could easily find a doctor who would prescribe a little good whiskey, as a tonic and stimulant but of course not as a beverage. The question of how many teaspoonfuls make a beverage will have to be left to Mr. Spence and his friends, for they intend to run the whole show. Arguing along this line, Mr. Spence has of course come to the conclusion that "a considerable revenue would be raised from liquor manufactured and sold for "permitted purposes." He no doubt realizes that many of the best physicians regularly prescribe whiskey and wine and that a good many more, perhaps not quite so prominent, would do so if prohibition were enforced. Many new diseases have been discovered in the past decade, but new and very fashionable ailments would come into existence very shortly after a prohibitory law was enforced; ailments which could only be treated successfully with good whiskey or wine, either for internal or external use—principally, no doubt, internal. Should there be only one physician in the district who prescribed whiskey, wine or beer, he would have a big practice, the drug store would do a big business and Mr. Spence would raise a lot of revenue.

And, indeed, if this is the way Mr. Spence looks at it he is not far astray, but the strong prohibitionists won't be pleased to hear that Mr. Spence proposes, even under prohibition, to raise a large revenue from liquor for permitted purposes.

Is Temperance a Crime?

The Farmers' Sun hits the nail on the head when it says:

"If the use of liquor were a crime, the general sense of the community would support the execution of the law. But for a definition of crime we must look to the conscience of mankind. The conscience of the enormous majority of mankind still pronounces that the temperate use and consequently the sale of spirituous liquors is not a crime. Liquor is used in moderation by thousands and tens of thousands of the most upright and estimable of mankind. Mr. Gladstone is cited as having spoken emphatically in favor of sobriety; but by sobriety he certainly meant temperate use, of which he was himself a daily example. For Christians it would seem impossible to call the temperate use of liquor a crime. The founder of Christianity not only drank wine, bringing on himself thereby the reproach of fanatics or hypocrites as a winebibber, but made wine forever an element in the most solemn ordinance of his religion. Not only so, but he spoke of himself, at the Last Supper, to his beloved disciples, as looking forward to drinking "the fruit of the vine new in the Kingdom of God." So faithful a follower of Christ as John Wesley habitually drank wine, and in opposition to a teetotaller called it "one of the noblest cordials in nature," condemning teetotalism as a "whim."

"The source of some crime, chiefly of a violent kind, liquor unquestionably is. The source of all crime, or anything like all, it certainly is not. The sources of crime, as well as those of poverty, which is likewise said to be traceable to drink, are in reality very various, and incapable of being extinguished by a single measure of any kind. Spain, which is notoriously temperate, is by no means free from crime; nor is Turkey, where strong drink is forbidden by Islam. Neither in Maine nor in Kansas does it appear that ordinary crime has been annihilated or even diminished by prohibition, while special kinds of crime have been called into existence by the violation or evasion of the prohibition law. Scotland, on the other hand, which consumes a good deal of whiskey, and Germany, which consumes a good deal of beer, are neither criminal nor poor. Crime has sensibly declined in England, where there is no prohibitory law.

BRAIN FAG.

A well-known editor tells how Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cured him of this nineteenth century nerve trouble.

"Brain Fag" is a new disease. Our forefathers did not have it. To them the terrible strain on the nervous forces that falls to the lot of business, professional or literary men of the present day was unknown.

Nervous prostration is the goal to which more than fifty per cent. of the brain workers are hurrying. How can it be avoided? How can this new disease be cured? We will allow Mr. J. W. Hey, the genial and able editor and publisher of the Ailsa Craig Banner to answer. He says, "I was suffering from nervousness and impoverishment of the blood and commenced the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, believing from what I had heard and read of them that they were an excellent remedy. My faith in them was rewarded very speedily. They vitalized my blood, strengthened my nerves and restored me to perfect health. I do not consider they have an equal for nervousness, brain fag or nervous prostration produced by overwork."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills always do good. They cure palpitation, faint and dizzy spells, nervousness, sleeplessness, anæmia, after effects of grippe, weakness, debility, etc. Sold by druggists at 50c. a box or three boxes for $1.25. T. Milburn & Co., Toronto, Ont.

A Pretty Weding.

Last night a pleasing and pretty event took place at the residence of Professor Shuttleworth, 220 Sherbournestreet. It was the occasion of the marriage of Mr. Shuttleworth's youngest daughter, Miss Florence, to Mr. John McRobie, son of Rev. John McRobie of Petrolea. The ceremony was performed by the father of the groom, assisted by Rev. Dr. Thomas, after which a reception was held. Miss Gertrude Shuttleworth, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and Miss Maude Gagen also assisted, while Mr. W. J. Clarke of Petrolea and Dr. C. B. Shuttleworth, a brother of the bride, stood up with the groom.

The bride looked charming, costumed in a dress of white brocaded duchess satin with mousseline de soie and pearl trimmings. The maid of honor, Miss Gertrude Shuttleworth, wore a dress of blue taffeta silk, with mousseline de soie ruchings and her companion, Miss Gagen, wore a gown of yellow taffeta, with mousseline de soie ruchings. The bride's traveling dress was a handsome costume of blue broadcloth, lined with cherry silk.

After the newly-married couple had received the good wishes of their friends, they were driven to the Union Station, where they boarded the train for Buffalo and will take a tour through the Western States. After their return they will take up residence in Petrolea and will receive after Oct. 10.

"A DIRTY BUSINESS"

Is What Rev. Mr. Graham Calls the Liquor Traffic.

The Meeting at Agnes-street Church Wednesday—Joseph Tait Retorts—An Interrupter Hustled Rudely and Arrested, But Released.

A fair audience attended Agnes-street Methodist Church Wednesday to hear prominent speakers express their views on the prohibition question. The chair was occupied by Mr. Murdoch Macdonald, and speeches were delivered by Rev. J. W. Graham, Rev. Dr. D. McDavish, Joseph Tait and ex-President J. S. Robertson. During Mr. Tait's address some one in the audience cried out: "You are talking at random!" to which the speaker retorted: "A person has to speak at random sometimes to people when they cannot understand a question in any other way."

The Rev. Mr. Graham, while describing the street scenes and dives of Buale during his address, said that adultery and drunkenness go together, and that the liquor business was "a miserably dirty business."

An interrupter of the meeting was unceremoniously thrust into the street by advocators of prohibition and brotherly love. Though Mr. John Leith, who lives at 54 Terauley-street, may not have chosen the proper place and time to express his views on the plebiscite, the manner of his expulsion 5 was a trifle rude. He oered, when ordered to leave the meeting, despite which fact three men rushed him down to the door, from which they violently threw him to the sidewalk. Here he was arrested by P.C. Flynn and taken to No. 2 Station, but as no charge could be laid against him he was released.

London Market Lifeless.

New York, Sept. 22.—The Evening Post's financial cable from London says:

The stock markets here remain lifeless. They opened dull to-day, on the rise in the discount rate of the Bank of England from 2½ to 3 per cent. The rise surprised the market, the advance not being expected till next week. The movement, however, is justified by the bank figures, and the fact that the bank is now obtaining control of the market is shown by borrowings by the market from the banking department commenced to-day, the bank charging 3 per cent. for four days. Bankers and discount houses raised money rates in sympathy with the bank rate, the London market now being 2⅝ per cent.

Americans alone were good during a great part of the day, but they fell away at the close, chiefly on French selling. The feature was a sharp relapse in Union Pacific, whose dividend is anxiously awaited.

Argentines were easier on unsatisfactory cables concerning the boundary question, but I am informed in the best quarters that large buying orders came from Buenos Ayres to-day. Brazils were better on improvement in exchange.

Spanish fours were very strong. Negotiations are reported with Rothschild for a fresh Spanish loan of about £5,000,000. If so, it will be on the security of the Almada quicksilver mines. Kaffirs were easier.

Details of the gold movement for the week show the sale of 472,000 in bar gold, and of 294,000 in American coin, the export of 100,000 to New York and of 100,000 to Egypt, of 10,000 to South America, of 15,000 to Santos, and of 20,000 pounds to Batavia, and of the receipt of 30,000 from Australia.

The Paris and Berlin markets were steady, but business in Berlin was checked by dear money.

A large bank in Hamburg is said to have lost £250,000 in consequence of advances made on forged securities.
