VICE-ROYALTY RECEIVES.

A GALA SCENE IN THE OLD LEGISLATIVE CHAMBER.

His Excellency the Governor-General and Lady Stanley shake Hands with Toronto's Best Citizens—Names of Those Present—A Dinner at the Queen's.

His Excellency the Governor-General and Lady Stanley are in town, paying the second visit to the Queen City, and of course raise much interest wherever they appear. They reached here by the C. P. R. yesterday morning in their private car, being accompanied by Captain and Mrs. Colville and Capt. McMahon, A.D.C. The train, due at 8 o'clock, did not arrive till 8.45, but this delay caused anxiety to no one excepting Deputy Chief Stuart and a force of policemen and Lieut.-Col. Grasett, a recently appointed A. D. C. who is proud of his new honors. Taking carriages the party drove to the Queen's Hotel, which will be their head quarters until their departure on Saturday. The morning was quietly spent, a few official calls being made by the Lieutenant-Governor, Col. Gzowski, A.D.C., and Hon. Oliver Mowat.

THEIR EXCELLENCIES ARRIVE

A Gay Spectacle in the Dizzy Old Parliament Buildings.

In the afternoon the first important event of the visit took place when, according to announcement, Their Excellencies held a levee in the Legislative Chamber in the Parliament Buildings, where they received between five and six hundred citizens. In all its history the dizzy old chamber never presented such a gay and brilliant appearance as it did yesterday between the hours of the reception, 4 to 6.30. The members' desks had all been removed, and on the three platforms, from which the members were wont to fire hot words at each other were rows of leather-cushioned arm chairs which were later occupied by the grand dames of the city and their escorts. In the centre of the floor where reverence used to be done to the mace stood a pyramid of waving palms surrounded by choice exotics from the Central Prison grounds. The dais, in front of which a small platform had been built, was flanked by other rare flowers. In the Speaker's rooms, reserved for the Vice-Regal party, new carpets had been laid and choice flowers from the city's conservatories spread about, while the general reception room, which had been set apart for the accommodation of cabinet ministers and judges, had their wives, had been decorated with flowers from the Government House conservatories. Everywhere that the public might be expected to go there had been dusting and furbishing.

Gathering of the Clans.

Attendants were numerous, and at every door and turn there was someone to tell one where to go or where not to go. The officers of the city and other corps began to arrive at 3.30 and after putting on the finishing touches in Major Delamere's office assembled on the "floor of the House." But the small portion of the general public which had come early were obliged to wait in the corridors, while the ministers and judges with their ladies gathered in the reception room. In front of the building Deputy Chief Stuart and Inspector Stephen were in charge of a dozen stalwart policemen.

At 3.30 Col. Gzowski, A.D.C. to the Queen, who by right of his rank always occupies a prominent place on these occasions, emerged from the building, and entering his well-appointed carriage drove to the Queen's for Their Excellencies. Soon came a carriage containing Mrs. Colville and Capt. McMahon. Next followed Col. Gzowski's carriage, in which were seated Their Excellencies and the martial looking colonel. The Q.O. Infantry School, which formed a guard of honor under command of Capt. Macdougall and Lieuts. Cartwright and Kortwright, presented arms and gave general salute while the band played "God Save the Queen." Entering by a side door the vice-regal party remained a few moments in the Speaker's room and then were escorted to the dais in the assembly chamber. Their Excellencies took their positions on the lower step, Col. Gzowski standing at their right. The Governor-General wore a black Prince Albert with the decoration and sash of the G.C.B. Lady Stanley threw off a richly mink lined mantle, trimmed with sable, disclosing a dress of brown velvet; she wore a bonnet to match and on her breast shone the Jubilee medal. Mrs. Colville was attired in a neat costume of mouse-colored velvet with bonnet to match; she wore a boa and muff of lynx and a mantle of ruby cloth.

The Officers in Attendance.

Surrounding the pyramid of flowers and forming a brilliant circle resplendent in scarlet and gold, green and silver, shining helmets and waving plumes, were these officers:

The Reception of the Callers.

Shortly after 4 o'clock the reception began, Capt. Colville made the presentations, who on the extra A. D. C.'s, who greatly assisted in the work of having matters run smoothly, were Lieut.-Col. Dawson of the Royal Grenadiers and Lieut.-Col. Smith of the 43rd Batt., Ottawa. Capt. H. V. Greene of the Queen's Own Rifles and Lieut. Cecil Gibson of the Royal Grenadiers did efficient service in directing the guests to seats after having been presented. For two and a half hours their Excellencies stood there shaking hands with ladies and gentlemen, the former turning out in strong numbers. From 4.30 till 5.30 was the busy time, there being a continuous string of callers, but everything was so nicely managed that there was no confusion. The band of the Queen's Own Rifles under the leadership of Mr. Bayley was stationed in the gallery and played these numbers:

Overture	"Le Meacrier de St Wazar"
Valse	"La Beaunaise"
Gavotte	"Semi-dieu"
Selection	"Attila"
Valse	"Gaudeter"
Gavotte	"Golden star"
Overture	"Pique Dame"
