The last issue of the Rosthern Enterprise contains a special supplement dealing with the history and resources of the Rosthern district. It is well gotten up, bright and typographically reflects great credit on The Enterprise.

Local men have taken over the business of the Western School Supply Co., Limited, and will capitalize the new company at $40,000, selling 4,000 shares at $10 each. W. McBain and J. A. Goth are prominent members of the new company being formed.

The marriage took place at St. Paul's church on Friday morning of Allan Carlton Duggan and Lametta Annetta Johnstone, members of the Stoddart Stock Co., Rev. G. C. Hill officiating. The marriage was to have taken place on the stage Thursday night, but owing to the difficulty in finding a minister willing to conduct the ceremony under such circumstances it had to be postponed.

A special brief commercial course of study, adapted to farmers' sons others who do not intend to follow commercial life has been prepared by the Regina Federal Business College. Some of the features of this special course are penmanship, letter writing and also a drill in the use of the English language for those who require it. For this practical course a beautiful diploma is issued. December 1st is a good time to enter for any desired course either in day or evening sessions. 2t

An entertainment and social in aid of the school library fund was held in the Foxleigh school district last Friday evening. The sum of $63.00 was realized. Bidding for the refreshments was the feature of the evening. Each of the ladies brought a well filled basket and to decide who was to eat it with them the ladies were assembled at one end of the room and a sheet placed across. One at a time they stepped up behind the sheet and as they did so their shadow was thrown on the sheet. The auctioneer then auctioned of the shadows. The prices ranged from $1.50 to $10.

One hour a day withdrawn from frivolous pursuits, and profitably employed, would enable any man of ordinary capacity to master a complete science. In an hour a day a boy or girl could read twenty pages, or eighteen large volumes a year. An hour a day might make all the difference between bare existence and useful happy living. An hour a day might make an unknown man a famous one, a useful one, benefactor to his race. Consider then the mighty possibilities of two, four, yea six hours a day that are on the average thrown away by some of our young men and women in a desire for fun and diversion.—Ex.

A magazine writer in a recent article claims that there is no profit in fifteen bushel crop of wheat at 65 cents a bushel. A farmer south of town has the past few days proved that whether there is profit or not in wheat raising there is at least excitement. This farmer obtained his seed from last spring, had a lien on the crop, but this lien did not appear to make the grain stay quiet in the granary even with the door locked. A threshers' lien got in on the ground floor and the wheat began to move in wagons towards town and was met by the majesty of the law—bailiff form. The puzzle who owns the wheat is not yet fully settled.—Carlyle Herald.

WHAT FARMERS WANT.—The progressive farmer now-a-days is the one that keeps himself posted on the latest devices and practical knowledge of experts to make farm work easy, and at the same time get the best results. The agricultural columns of the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal are admittedly the best in this country for the Canadian farmer. No purely agricultural paper costing twice the money furnishes the farmer today with as good information as the Family Herald and Weekly Star and at the same time gets a weekly newspaper without a peer and a magazine equal to any of the best English or American publications. A weekly newspaper, magazine and agricultural paper—all three combined—for one dollar a year is what one gets in the Family Herald and Weekly Star, and no farmers' home in Canada can afford to be without it. Send one dollar for 1909 and you will find it more than fills the bill.

Men are at work digging a reservoir beside the town well. It is the intention of the council to build a cement reservoir at this place, into which water from the town well will be pumped by the windmill. This reservoir is being constructed for the convenience of the public, and it is expected that it will be equipped with a small pump from which citizens can get water.—Oxbow Herald.
