HAMILTON NEWS

A SOP TO THE SCHOOL BOARD

Government Offers Another $1000 for Collegiate Institute and Says, "Now Keep Quiet."

MATTER SENT TO COMMITTEE.

Boy Bicyclist Nearly Killed—Percy McMillan's Death—General News.

Hamilton, June 13.—(Special.)—At the meeting of the Board of Education this evening a letter was read from Hon. R. Harcourt, Minister of Education, offering to the board an additional grant of $1000 to the present $3000 towards the cost of the Collegiate Institute. The reason given was that Mr. Harcourt deemed it of great importance that the teachers of the province, in training, should continue to have the advantages of observing and teaching in Public Schools, as well as in High Schools. It was also to be understood that if the offer was accepted there was to be no complaining of the past. The Minister also stipulated that the offer was not to be considered with the taking over of the School of Domestic Science or the introduction of manual training.

Mr. Lazier moved that the communication be referred to the Special Committee appointed to attend to the matter. Mr. Brennen, however, was in a hurry, and moved that the offer be accepted at once. A number objected, and Mr. Brennen withdrew his motion and the matter goes to the committee.

The masters of the Collegiate Institute applied for increases of salaries, and W. W. Charters, a head master of one of the schools, also asked for an increase.

Boy Cyclist Badly Hurt.

Everett Carroll, a 10-year-old son of J. T. Carroll, manager of the Hamilton Brass Foundry, was nearly killed on King-street early this evening, while riding a bicycle. He was run down by one of Morton & Sons' delivery wagons, driven by Ed. Stock. He was taken home in the ambulance and Dr. McCabe is in attendance.

Percy McMillan's Death.

The adjourned inquest on the death of Percy McMillan, Hughson-street, the lad who was drowned off Brown's dock on Monday afternoon, was continued to-night by Coroner McNichol. Nothing new came out. The evidence showed that his mother and brother were fishing on the wharf. Deceased went to the other end to get a string of fish, and was not seen again alive. There were 40 fish in the string, and the weight, it is supposed, caused him to lose his balance. There was $50 life insurance on the boy, and the company wanted an inquest, as there was nothing to justify a suspicion of foul play. The jury's verdict was that death was accidental, and that no blame could be attached to any person.

A Toronto Thief.

Detective Campbell to-day arrested a young man who was trying to sell silverware. The prisoner had some spoons, forks and napkin rings in his possession. He gave his name and address as E. D. Farnham, Toronto. On his way to the cells he admitted to the officer that he broke into a house on Spadina-avenue, Toronto, on Tuesday night and stole the stuff found on him, also some other articles. One of the spoons was marked "E. G. D. F." The Toronto police have been notified.

The Calder Business.

At the sale of the John Calder business in Toronto yesterday, the purchasers of the stock, etc., valued at $159,190, were Coppley, Noyes and Randall, for 58 cents on the dollar. John Calder ran up his bids to 59 cents, but his backer declined to go that length.

Coppley & Co. are now considering the advisability of removing their business to Hamilton, and they offer stock in their company to Hamilton people.

On the other hand, John Calder says he will organize another company, to be known as the John Calder Clothing Company. He says he has the support of a number of prominent business men.

At the Sessions.

There was a peculiar and sudden ending to a case at the General Sessions. John Russell sued Robert Pottruff, a Saltfleet farmer, for $200, which, he claimed, was due him as wages. When the case was called and Russell got into the witness box he swore right off the reel that Pattruff owed him nothing. The case came to a quick stop.

The Grand Trunk Railway Company has been indicted on the charge of maintaining over the line at the Burlington Heights a bridge entirely insufficient for the road traffic. In connection with the case, W. H. Biggar of Belleville, acting for the company, applied to Judge Snider to have the case transferred to the Railway Committee of the Privy Council, as it was already down for the committee's consideration.

F. Mackelcan, K. C., for the city, objected on the ground that the public interest demanded that the case be heard here and at once.

Judge Snider decided that he would hear the case. It will be taken up at the opening of the court to-morrow morning.

Police Points.

Patrick McAuliffe, MacNab-street, was sent to jail for a week for stealing a coat from R. O. McKay.

James McCauley of Toronto, a one-legged man, was fined $5 or 20 days on a charge of trespassing on the G.T.R. last night.

Minor Mention.

The funeral of Percy McMillan, who was drowned last Monday in the bay, took place this afternoon.

A city coin collector has offered Chief Smith $3 for his famous brass spade guinea. He won't sell, being desirous of the coin counting as a family heirloom.

The slander suit brought by Miss Lavinia H. Taylor against her cousin, James A. Taylor, has been amicably settled.

One of the great dangers of adopting cures and all sorts of new ideas in general circulation is that such things are largely experimental, the effect of them being by no means definitely known. For example, for years, and just because some one started the idea, everybody has been brushing his or her hair with an energy worthy of a better cause, the idea being either to acquire a crop of hair, to keep that which nature has meted out to us, or to prevent, if possible, that horror of both men and women, baldness. Now, if you please, a new theory has cropped up in reference to the hair, and, after we have brushed and pounded our scalps nightly till it is a wonder there is a hair left, along comes a specialist and says that brushing the hair is very bad for it! The energetic or frequent use of the hair brush is denounced, and the use of the comb with smooth, blunt teeth, instead, is advocated. The brush, hitherto deemed blessed, is now characterized as "harmful," and if it is used at all it must be of the softest possible description! Does not this incline one to sally forth in search of the misguided individual who first started the brushing idea and belabor him with his own brush? But to what purpose? It was as much our faults in being misled as his in misleading us. How many unfortunate men may not now account for the paucity of hair on their pates thru a too energetic and too frequent application of the brush, and how many women may not now trace their scant locks to a too slavish devotion to the hair brush? Women, however, have a way of remedying any scantiness of locks by removable "switches," and such like things that are obtainable at the hair dressers, but, alas, for our brother man! There is no disguising his lack of thatch—when it goes, it goes for good, and he must grin and bear it. I fancy there is a deal of sense in leaving the hair alone and simply keeping it clean by means of warm soft water and good castile soap, and drying it out of doors in the sun. If you come to think of it, the fisher women in the Old Land, who have such magnificent heaps of hair, never put a brush—a brush is a luxury with such people—near their heads. It is simply combed out and braided, and when they wash it, as they do frequently, you can see them on the greens or on the sands drying their luxuriant and often glorious hair in the sun. Here we have too many theories and fads about the hair—we treat and coddle and coax it as if it were some unusual freak of nature, that might depart from our heads at any moment! It is like our bodies—if it is kept strictly clean and given plenty of sun and air, there is absolutely no reason why the hair should not be healthy and luxuriant as nature intended it to be.

The problem of storing books when one has not room for a bookcase, nor enough to fill one if she had, sometimes perplexes the "hall-bedroom" young woman with a few cherished volumes. A simple and inexpensive, yet tasteful hanging cabinet, may be made by a carpenter from these directions at the minimum cost of a dollar or two. The length of the cabinet should be three feet and the height eighteen inches, and it should have a middle shelf an inch or two narrower than the top and bottom, which should be about eight inches wide. No back is necessary, as the cabinet hangs close to the wall. A strip of ordinary moulding should finish the top. This gives two inner shelves and the top. The side boards should come a little below the bottom, and be finished with a curve sloping downwards to the back. Here the carpenter's work may end, and the young woman's begin. She buys a stain of a color that harmonizes with her other belongings, and stains the wood. Just below the moulding she puts brass fastenings for a slender rod, on which to hang a silken curtain. Above the moulding she fastens screws with ringed tops thru which another brass rod slides to make a railing around the top shelf. Four flat rings are screwed on the back for the heavy picture wire, and one at each side to attach to the wall for security. A piece of dark burlap may be tacked on the back of the cabinet if desired. A little dark-green silk curtain with brass rings is effective, and on the top, behind the little brass rail, a plate or two and a bit of pottery make effective decoration.

OLD LACE.

Fold upon fold,
Yellow as gold,
Woven by delicate fingers of old,
Here in its place
Grandmother's lace
Lies like a dream of her maidenhood's grace.

Fragrance of rose
Out of it flows,
Leaves of the past that its meshes inclose;
Sweets of old days,
Lavender sprays,
All that a maid in her treasure chest lays.

Fair as her head,
Thread over thread,
Sleeps the old lace that she wore when she wed,
Beautiful day!—
But fold it away,
Grandmother's lace, and the rose, and the spray!

—James Buckham, in June "New" Lippincott.

"Six-Footer" writes me as follows: Pardon me for taking an interest in things feminine, but, as your contributions have attracted my notice for a long time past, you will not be surprised if I extend commendation to you re your dissertation on young girls' "trunking." I must refer to my sisters—they always stored away—I never could ascertain what—but they evidently were living in hope, and, you bet, their fond hopes were realized, for four have married exceedingly well, and a fifth—shall I tell it?—is engaged. I am out of the running myself—a doomed bachelor—[Some of the nicest men are bachelors, Six-Footer—let that console you]—but fellows somehow or other find out that the girls are saving in small things, and, probably, wouldn't spend their incomes too freely, and, as a result, the "trunkers" are very seldom shelved. Remember that my brothers-in-law will testify that I never gave my sisters away in regard to their stored articles! Why should your lady friend hope her daughters will never marry? I think that quite a horrible sentiment. I hope my sisters are not exceptions—they certainly have been "happy ever after." Let the girls marry—not rashly. Where incomes are meagre, let mothers try and assist. "Trunk" by all means, always "practising what you preach." Thus Six-Footer, after a few kindly meant admonitions, not to mention a rebuke about a certain article, coupled with the friendliest wishes, writes—for which a thousand thanks.

Wedding gowns are the order of the day, with both white satin and white crepe de chine for first choice. Where the figure permits, the model most lauded is the princess. For a June wedding, there is a beauty in white satin, open in front and bordered down the sides, as well as around the hem, with an insetting of lace. The front tablier is of white mousseline de sole plisse, with entre deux of lace lengthwise. The bolero is of all-over lace, and fastens on the left, being quite short in the back. It is draped underneath with a scarf of tulle, laid half under the bolero, which is one-half low in the neck. A high neck mousseline chemiset, inset with lace, finishes the satin corsage. The sleeves are long, with elbow puffs of mousseline, the lower part being a gauntlet of satin, inset with lace to match the skirt trimming. The lace used is a Milan point. There is a long maline veil, with orange blossoms tucked in under the aigret shafts of tulle on the left side. There is a bouquet of the same at the left side of the corsage. The four bridesmaids are to wear gowns of white point d'esprit, the skirts inset with long bands of lace from point to hem. The underskirts are of white taffeta glace, with white net drop skirts. The bottom of each skirt has a broad transparent lace to match, with several side pleatings of point d'esprit upon the extreme waved edge of the drop skirt, which falls below this lace border just enough to soften the line. The round, full bodice of each frock opens into two rings in front, held together with pearl clasps. This opening is filled with mousseline de sole plisse. The edges of these circular openings are ruched with point d'esprit. High mousseline chemisets are inset with lace. White glace silk sashes, ruched with point d'esprit on the bottom, in the three rows, hang very long in the back, and the belts are draped high. The flat-crown hats, with double wreaths of pink roses and black velvet bows stretched across the back, will look extremely well.

Kovensky was 24 years of age and unmarried.

ALEX. HALL GRAND MASTER

Grand Lodge of Loyal Orange Young Britons Concluded Its Labors Yesterday.

ROUSING BANQUET HELD AT NIGHT

Next Meeting Will Be Held at Russell—Other Officers Elected—Big Membership.

The twentieth annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Loyal Orange Young Britons, which opened in Victoria Hall on Wednesday, was concluded yesterday afternoon. The meeting was the most successful in the history of the order. The most important matter discussed was the proposed establishment of a benefit fund in connection with the association, following the suggestion of the retiring grand master in his annual report. The members favored the project and a large committee was appointed to report at the next annual meeting.

The order has rapidly increased in membership, some 4000 being now on the list. The financial condition was also reported to be highly satisfactory. During the past year about ten new lodges have been instituted. The sum of $25 was voted towards the True Blue Orphanage at Picton and a similar amount to the memorial to be erected to Bro. Hull of Billing's Bridge, who was killed in South Africa.

Alexander Hall, Grand Master.

Russell was selected as the place of next meeting, which will be held June 12 and 13, 1902.

The following officers were elected: Grand Master, Alexander Hall, Toronto (acclamation); Deputy Grand Master, S. Crooks, Ottawa; second Deputy Grand Master, James Mitchell, Hamilton; chaplain, J. M. Thompson, Fergus; secretary, H. Reilly, Ottawa; treasurer, W. J. Kissock, Ottawa; lecturer, A. H. Graham, Russell; director of ceremonies, John Montgomery, Gorrie; deputy secretary, A. W. G. Carscadden, Russell; deputy treasurer, Richard Peachey, Collingwood; deputy lecturers, T. Paterson, Hamilton; Richard A. Spotton, Fordwich. The newly-elected officers were installed by county master Harry Lovelock. Grand Master Hall, after being installed, thanked the members for the honor accorded him in unanimously giving him the chief office.

In the evening the visiting delegates were tendered a banquet in Victoria Hall. It was attended by nearly 100 prominent members of the order. County Master Harry Lovelock presided and proposed the toast of "The King." "In Loving Remembrance of King William the III" was duly honored, and "Canada, Our Home" was responded to by Rev. William Walsh and Ald. W. W. Hodgson. Ald. Bell, Cox, Urquhart and Granham replied to "The Mayor and Corporation," and Mr. Frank Lloyd, county treasurer, proposed "The Loyal Orange Association." This was eloquently responded to by E. F. Clarke, M.P., and John McMillan. Other toasts were: "The Loyal Orange Young Britons" by Grand Master Alex. Hall. Past Grand Master John M. Thompson. "Our Guests" by W. H. Reilly and James Mitchell; "The Ladies" by Bro. Joseph Lang, and "The Press" by G. M. Alex. Hall.

Grand Master Alex. Hall is a native of Woodstock, Ont., but has spent nearly all of his life in Toronto. He is well-known in Orange circles, being a member of McKinley, L.O.L., No. 275 and of L.O.Y.B., No. 40. In both lodges he has held various offices, and also has acted on many important committees in connection with the order. Mr. Hall is also a member of Typographical Union No. 91, and for seven years has held the position of Warden of Christ Church. He is a fluent speaker, has a splendid delivery and is well up in all matters pertaining to the Orange order.

WORLD Y.M.C.A. CONVENTION

Had a Felicitous Message From the German Emperor By Way of Washington

AND SENT A FITTING RESPONSE.

"Father" Clark of the Christian Endeavorers Received an Ovation.

Boston, June 13.—There was great enthusiasm at the World's Y.M.C.A. convention this morning, this being "Jubilee Day." Four special meetings took place, and between the first and second Governor Crane held a reception at the State House.

The German ambassador at Washington sent the following message, which he had received from Emperor William:

"I ask you to transmit to the Brotherhood of Young Men's Christian Associations of America, assembled for the jubilee convention, my hearty congratulations. With pride the brotherhood may look back on its past life, which promises further to flourish and increase. May this expectation be fulfilled in a rich measure. With satisfaction I see that the German associations active in the same endeavor take part fraternally in this solemn gathering. May the American associations also in the future train for their great Fatherland citizens who are sound in body and soul and of earnest convictions of life, standing on the only immovable foundation of the name of Christ, whose name is above every name. (Signed)

"Wilhelm I. R. (Imperator Rex.)"

The Convention's Reply.

The convention, in reply, sent a message to the Emperor, expressing thanks and saying that the delegates were deeply touched by the reference to the fraternal relations existing between the young men of the German Fatherland and America. "May our alliance, founded on Christ, forever bind the kindly sentiments which now exist between the two lands," was the concluding sentiment of the convention's message.

The Later Proceedings.

The second speaker of the morning was President W. H. P. Faunce, DD., of Brown University, who said that the Y.M.C.A. had enabled the church to express marvelous Christian unity.

At the regular session of the convention, which followed, James Stokes of New York presided. The first speaker was Cephas Brainerd of New York, whose topic was "The Fundamental Principles of the Y.M.C.A." Mr. Brainerd dealt almost exclusively in statistics and a review of the growth of the Y.M.C.A.

Ovation to "Father" Clark.

Rev. F. E. Clark, president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, the next speaker, was given an ovation. It was some minutes before he could proceed with his address.

The event of the afternoon was the reception to Governor Crane, more than 1500 persons attending.

The exercises in the old South meeting house began at 2.30, nearly all the delegates coming directly from the State house. Hon. Franklin W. Smith of Washington presided, while the commemorative sermon was delivered by Rev. Alexander McKenzie, D.D., of Cambridge, Mass., a charter member of the Boston association.

In Mechanics' Hall.

The evening meeting in Mechanics' Hall was given over to the consideration of work in the railroad branch of the association.

Hon. J. McCook of New York presided and spoke of the great influence of this work upon foreign nations. The secretary then read messages from the president and secretary of the Copenhagen association, the University Christian Union of Copenhagen, the president of the World's Young Men's Christian Union at Geneva and the Swedish Minister at Washington, with the replies sent to the various messages received. Leters were also read from a number of railway officials, including Prince Hilkhof, Imperial Minister of Russian Railways.

President Louis Tuttle of the Boston and Maine Railroad made the principal address of the evening.

Cepheus Brainerd of New York and J. G. Cannon, also of New York, also spoke. While a contribution was being taken up, Ira D. Sankey sang.

In Faneuil Hall.

Scarcely had the meeting at the old South Church broken up when an equally large gathering assembled in historic Faneuil Hall, when the delegates listened to speakers from England, Hungary, Switzerland, India and Canada.

Mr. Josiah H. Quincy of Boston presided and Mayor Hart and Lieut.-Governor Bates gave welcoming addresses. Lord Kinnaird of England echoed the appeal made last night, that rooms be set aside in every army post and every navy dock yard to save young men.

Dr. Laranz of Hungary spoke his native tongue, with the aid of an interpreter.

Adolph Hoffman and Lieut.-Col. Charles Fernand reviewed the work in Switzerland.

M. L. Rallia Ram of India told of what the Y.M.C.A. had accomplished in his country.

The leading speaker was Mr. Hubert R. Ames of Montreal, who thanked the American delegates for their assistance in spreading the movement in Canada.

CAGE TENDER FELL TO DEATH.

Joseph Gill, a Yorkshire Man, Fatally Hurt at the Le Roi Mine Yesterday.

Rossland, B. C., June 13.—Joseph Gill, cage tender at the Le Roi mine, was fatally injured this morning. In some unknown manner he fell from the skip, at the 700-foot level and was picked up shortly after on the bulk head, at the 800 foot level. He managed to gasp out in reply to a question as to the manner of the accident the single word "fell" and then lapsed into unconsciousness, from which he did not rally. Gill was taken to the sisters' hospital, where he died four hours later. Deceased was 25 years old, and a Yorkshire man. He was a strong union man, and thoroly familiar with his duties.

More Chinamen for Toronto.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday by the Grand Trunk express from North Bay were a dozen Chinamen, who will take up their residence here. The Celestials came from the Pacific Coast.

At Niagara and Deseronto.

The enthusiasm which is a feature of the military camps at Niagara and Deseronto is this year more pronounced than ever, and the vaccination order is not complained about so much as rumor says. The men are enjoying camp and Shamrock Ale from C. Taylor, 205 Parliament-street, Toronto, is one of the principal home comforts enjoyed by the soldiers. Taylor can sent Shamrock Ale or any high-grade wines and liquors at close prices anywhere in the city or the province. Telephone 585 and prompt attention is promised.

RECIPROCITY WITH ENGLAND.

Boston Chamber of Commerce Petitions President McKinley in That Connection.

Boston, June 13.—A special meeting of the Boston Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday, at which a committee, consisting of Osborne Howes, President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston and Maine Railroad, J. R. Leeson, Samuel B. Capen and Herbert C. Hall, reported at length on the chamber's work in behalf of reciprocity. It was believed, the committee reported, that the president and cabinet were ready to move in the matter, provided such action received the support of public sentiment. A resolution was offered citing that our increased export trade has been the unmistakable cause of a large part of our industrial prosperity; that, in the absence of special trade treaties with foreign nations, we may soon experience a serious decline in export products; that Canada is our nearest and in some respects our best foreign market, and we should lose no time in permanently securing it; that the Boston Chamber of Commerce send to the President the following petition and request chambers of commerce and boards of trade of every American city to forward similar memorials:

To His Excellency the President:

The Boston Chamber of Commerce earnestly petitions that such steps as are necessary be taken to reconvene the United States and British joint commission for the purpose of preparing, on the basis of equivalent concessions, a reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and Canada, which may be brought before congress for its approval at its next session.

Camping Days.

The camping days have come; the days of rest:
Sweet, languorous days of doing—not a thing!—
And doing it the easiest way you know!
Long, drowsy days of loafing in the shade
And dreaming Care's a myth. No sullen grind;
No hiking after news; no waking up
At hours unseemly, when the sleepy sun
Is snoring calmly in the greying east!—
Smite the chill sidewalk with resounding heels,
While still there echoes in your shrinking ear
The 'larm clock's blatant warning. . . .
. . . Days of peace,
When you're compelled to prop your eyelids up;
Wish some inventor would perfect something
To do your breathing for you. Half asleep—
Too downright lazy to be good. . . .
. . . The outing days—
But, ah, the nights! The camp-fire's cheery glow,
The bacon's sizzle, and the wond'rous lies—
The whiskered lies we've told year after year,
And found them always new. The old cob pipe;
The corn dog, smiling at the juicy bone—
His hopeful tail athrash upon the ground,
In pleased anticipation. . . .
. . . Then the moon—
The great white moon, that o'er the mountain's crest
Peeps thru the trees until the sleeper dreams
He sees a sky of branches overhead,
All filigreed with silver. All around
Is nature's hush; while nature's music stills—
The cricket's chirp—the croon of waterfall—
The fox's bark—the melancholy hoot,
Where far away, upon some rocky peak,
There sits and sings the melancholy owl.
. . . The whippoorwill,
With his soft, mournful notes—the camp dog's sigh—
One last faint flicker of the fire; and then—
Sleep and a sweet oblivion!

Why?

The white clouds drift athwart the sky
'Neath sun and shade the meadows lie;
Yet all the day I grieve and sigh,
I wonder why?

The robin lilts from tree hard by,
Nor heeds that stormy winds are high;
Yet night and day I yearn and sigh,
I wonder why?

The larks sing blithely as they fly;
Have they a stronger faith than I?
I only know I doubt and sigh,
I wonder why?

'Tis said that God is ever nigh,
And that He heeds the sparrow's cry;
Then why do I still doubt and sigh?
I wonder why?
