WINTER CEREMONIAL OF MOCHA SHRINERS A JOYOUS OCCASION

Capt. J. L. Richmond Elected Illustrious Potentate.

FIFTY-FIVE INITIATED

Delegates To Imperial Council at Minneapolis Were Chosen.

The Shriners made merry last night, which is about the last word in merry-making. In fact, they made merry all day Wednesday, starting early Wednesday morning, and finishing up early on Thursday morning. More was packed into those 20 hours or so than usually happens, even at one of these functions. Some will have enough fun to last them a very long time, possibly until the next session.

Mocha Temple is noted for its good fellowship and kindly feeling, and under Illustrious Potentate Dr. A. Roy Routledge, Mocha excelled herself. The year has been very prosperous. Nearly 200 new members have been added, and the reputation of the Shrine enhanced. Yesterday no less than 55 candidates were initiated, not the largest class in the history of Mocha, but a very fine number.

New Officers.

The officers elected were as follows:

Past potentate, and acting potentate during Capt. Richmond's absence—Dr. A. Roy Routledge.

Illustrious Potentate—Capt. J. L. Richmond.

Chief Rabban—Dr. Harry R. Abbott.

Assistant Chief Rabban—Major A. E. Somerville.

High Priest and Prophet—John Stevenson, Stratford.

Oriental Guide—A. J. McGuffin, London.

Recorder—W. H. Abbott, re-elected.

Treasurer—Lieut.-Col. A. A. Campbell, re-elected.

First Ceremonial Master—M. H. Penhale, St. Thomas.

Second Ceremonial Master—A. Carrothers.

Marshal—Capt. J. Fred Reid, Windsor.

Captain of the Guard—Dr. G. A. Routledge.

Cabled Potentate.

The other officers will be appointed by the potentate later. A cablegram was sent to Capt. Richmond, notifying him of his appointment, and another to Major Somerville.

Harry Milligan, a Shriner, was present, and was given a royal welcome. The heroes belonging to the Shrine who have been killed or wounded in battle were remembered suitably.

The delegates to the imperial council at Minneapolis next summer, were appointed as follows: Dr. A. Roy Routledge and H. C. McBride, London, T. H. MacLaren, Galt, and A. W. Burch, Chatham.

At 4 o'clock, the Mocha Temple patrol under Capt. Darch, and the band under Noble Thos. Fawkes, paraded to the C. P. R. to meet the special bearing the Detroit and Grand Rapids contingents. The latter was headed by Illustrious Noble L. A. Cornelius, representative of the Imperial Council, and the Moslem Temple of Detroit by Illustrious Potentate Arthur Fisher. There was a warm welcome extended to the visitors, and they were paraded to the Masonic Temple.

Dr. Claris Too.

Later Dr. John Claris, a former Londoner, and a good fellow, Fred O. Murray, and Past Potentate Martin Blecher, Buffalo, arrived, and they were given a rousing welcome. They are regular attendants at Mocha, and were splendidly greeted.

In the evening, there was a parade through the streets, several hundred Shriners taking part. It was most impressive.

The evening session saw the fun. The candidates were taken over the hottest of hot sands, and otherwise made sure that they belonged.

A vaudeville performance wound up the session. It was a good one.

HORSE OF T. E. WILSON WINNER IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—The Auld shorthorn bull from Ontario carried off the senior championship at the International Livestock Show today.

Canada was again first in the senior heifer class, Auld winning with Britannia.

Owing to the death of Lord Gleniffer and Fyvie Baron during the year, it was decided to put Clydesdale stallions, five and over, and stallions four and over, in the same class.

Graham Bros. of Clairmont, Ont., showed two high quality stallions, and no less than three others had been imported by them. They won third with Alert, a Baron's Pride horse of quality. First went to Baron Ascot, imported by the Grahams and now owned by T. E. Wilson of Waukegan, Ill. Second place went to Glencapie, another Graham importation and shown by the Conyngham Bros.

T. E. Wilson was born at London, Ontario.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

At the annual meeting of the officers and pupils of the Egerton Street Baptist Church the following officers were re-elected for 1917: Superintendent, Richard Saunders; assistant superintendent, Frank Mayne; secretary, George Pearce.

STRANGE CONTRAST SEEN IN LLOYD GEORGE'S NEW HONORS BROUGHT BY WAR

His First Political Prominence Came Through His Bitter Attacks on Pro-War Party During South African Campaign, While Premiership Comes as His Reward for More Vigorous War Policy.

In strange contrast to Lloyd George's leadership in the prosecution of the present war is the fact that his first political prominence came through his attacks on the pro-war party during the South African campaign of 1899-1900. He carried his opposition to that war so far that he even refused to vote for the supplies necessary to maintain the army. His disparagement of the British cause was so unpopular, however, that he put his life in jeopardy by expounding his views. At Birmingham, for one instance, his life was sought by a riotous mob, which the police were unable to handle, and Lloyd George was able to escape from their hands only by disguising himself in a policeman's uniform. In later years he was the object of physical violence on the part of the suffragettes, who hurled missiles at him on several occasions, and who, in February, 1913, destroyed his country house with dynamite.

Lloyd George was born in Manchester, England, January 17, 1863, but his parents were Welsh, and throughout his life, Lloyd George, whose bringing up was in Wales, was a champion of Welsh nationalism, and had such a grip on the affections of his admirers in that country that they called him sometimes "The Prince of Wales." The son of a schoolmaster, who died while Lloyd George was an infant, the future chancellor knew the extremes of poverty as a youth. He hardly tasted fresh meat, and his greatest luxury in those days, he said once in a public speech, was an egg, which he had to halve with his brother on Sundays. He received only a limited education, but obtained an apprenticeship with a firm of lawyers, and finally succeeded in establishing his own little practice in Wales.

Church Fight Started Career.

He gained his local reputation by defending the right of Non-Conformists—he himself was a Baptists—to burial in the Anglican parish churchyards, without the usual rites of the Church of England. A law establishing this right had been passed, but an irreconcilable vicar of a little church in Wales, outraged by the passage of the law, had refused to allow the burial of a Non-Conformist quarryman beside the body of a daughter. He forced the burial of the body in a plot set aside for the burial of suicides. Lloyd George's leadership was enlisted by the indignant Non-Conformists of the village, and he led them in a raid on the graveyard, where they removed the body from the suicide plot and placed it, as they wished, beside the grave of the quarryman's daughter. The enraged vicar instituted trespass proceedings in which he was sustained by court after court to which Lloyd George carried an appeal, until the court of last resort upheld Lloyd George and the Non-Conformists.

Brought First Election.

This fight against clerical arrogance and especially the vigorous way in which the young lawyer carried it on, made Lloyd George famous throughout Wales, and at the next by-election in the district of Carnarvon Burgs, he was elected to Parliament—in his 27th year. It was this district which returned him regularly to Parliament at every election thereafter.

In the House of Commons the young Welshman soon became one of the most prominent guerilla fighters, conspicuous for his audacity and pungency of utterances, and his capacity for obstruction while the Conservatives were in office. With the overthrow of the Conservatives, and the beginning of the Liberal regime under Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman in 1905, Lloyd George entered the cabinet at a bound. He was made president of the board of trade, where he justified his appointment by the successful handling of a threatened railway strike, which would have paralyzed the whole kingdom. Lloyd George exercised such vigorous tactics that he forced the railway magnates into arbitration.

His First War Budget.

When Mr. Asquith became premier in 1908, he appointed Lloyd George to the chancellorship of the exchequer, which was applauded generally in financial circles. However, when the time came for the presentation of the budget in 1909-10, when the Government faced a deficit of some $75,000,000, Lloyd George convulsed the country by introducing drastic reforms in taxation which put new burdens on the moneyed classes. He called it a "war budget" against poverty, which, he hoped, "would become as remote to the people of the country as the wolves which once invested the forest." It was this remarkable finance bill with its heavy super-taxes and with the capture of part of the unearned increment of land that precipitated the war on the veto power of the House of Lords—an institution which Lloyd George declared should be thrown "in the scrap heap."

Great Social Benefits.

Among other battles which make Lloyd George stand out as a supreme advocate of the people, was his struggle for the establishment of state insurance and old age pensions, modeled after the German systems. These great social benefits called forth much hostile criticism, and predictions that they would prove a failure. The organization of the insurance scheme had barely been perfected when the unusual conditions brought about by the European war caused a partial break-down of the system, and critics then again came to the fore with the assertion that it would never work satisfactorily. However, it stood as the chief item in the program of the Liberal Asquith ministry, and was distinctly a Lloyd George cause.

The force of Lloyd George's personality is particularly remarkable because he is a little man, not only short but slim, with a small mustache and white face, though his eyes are as eloquent as his voice. His manner is cheerful, frank and democratic, and he is one of the most approachable men who ever held public office in England. Although little in favor among the aristocracy, it is said he is one of King George's favorites, liked by the sovereign more than any other minister.

ALDERMEN ABSENT AND MANY BYLAWS HAD TO STAND OVER

No Quorum at Meeting of the Council Last Night.

GAS FRANCHISE TONIGHT

Paving Plant and Other Matters To Be Considered Also.

The city council started to hold a session last evening, but it was called off owing to the lack of a quorum. There will be another session on Thursday evening, when an attempt will be made to pass a number of bylaws.

When the meeting was called to order, there were nine members present, and Ald. Palmer objected to the wording of the bylaw relative to the vote on the question of purchasing and operating a paving plant. He thought the bylaw did not conform to the original motion and asked that it be changed.

"The bylaw is all right," said Ald. Wilson.

After some further discussion, in which Ald. Palmer urged that there was a change, he finally withdrew, leaving eight members, or one less than enough to make a quorum.

"We will wait," said Mayor Stevenson.

"It looks as if we were the victims of a practical joke, or something of the kind," said Ald. Ashplant. "We had better swallow it with as good grace as possible."

However, they waited until 8 o'clock, and as no alderman came to complete the quorum, the council adjourned.

"If the paving plant bylaw does not carry tomorrow night, not a bylaw will go," said Ald. Wilson.

Among the other bylaws to come up tonight will be the City Gas Company's natural gas franchise, the hydro development bylaw, and one or two minor bylaws.

DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM FROM OLD MASTERS AT WOMEN'S RECITAL

Artistic Work of Those Taking Part Won Applause.

FAIRY OPERA MADE HIT

Quartets From Hansel and Gretel, With Explanatory Address, Pleased.

There was a large attendance yesterday afternoon at the fortnightly recital of the Woman's Music Club, to hear the delightful program of compositions of "old masters," arranged by Mrs. Lyster and Miss Raymond.

Miss Lola Stevens, soprano, was heard for the first time by the club, giving the numbers she was to have presented at the opening concert, but was prevented from doing owing to illness.

So captivated was her audience by her first number, "Dove Sono," from "Marriage of Figaro" (Mozart), that an encore was insisted upon.

Miss Stevens is the possessor of a clear, sweet, pleasing and most flexible voice, under splendid control. Her singing has a marked intellectual quality, as well as an artistic finish.

True Interpretation.

A group of songs included "Se tu Mami,' given a sprightly interpretation In marked contrast immediately following was Scarlatti's "O, Cessate Di Peagarme" in which the voice of the singer took on a new, consistent quality of sympathy to express the sadness. She concluded her part in the program with the popular Purcell composition "Nymphs and Shepherds," in which, in the English tongue, her distinct enunciation was especially appreciated.

Miss Ruth B. Kennedy, the young pianist, who won quite an ovation the opening night of the season, was again heard, this time in the Beethoven "Moonlight Sonata," in which her unusual talent was once more revealed.

The opening movement, played with nice singing tone, was given a satisfyingly dreamy interpretation, the third movement had a masculine strength and force.

A rare treat was the duo, the Weber "Concertstuck," played brilliantly, in a most musicianly manner, and perfectly together, by Mrs. A. N. Lyster and Miss Minnie Raymond.

Charming Novelty.

A charming novelty of the afternoon was the offering from Humperdinck's fairy opera "Hansel and Gretel," "The Little Sandman" and "Dream Pantomime arranged for violin, 'cello, piano and organ.

The trio, Miss Florence Egglestone, violinist; Gladstone Paul, 'cellist; F. G. Killmaster, pianist, have delighted the club on former occasions with their finished work. The quartet, formed by the addition of Miss Raymond, organist, proved an equally acceptable musical unit.

An illuminating little sketch of the fairy opera, "Hansel and Gretel," read by Miss Helen Ivey before the presentation of the quartet, added to the interest.

Miss Raymond performed the duties of accompanist.

The next recital of the club was announced to be held on Wednesday, December 20. For this Mrs. Charles E. Wheeler and Mrs. MacFarlane hav arranged a program of "Christmas Music."

SAYS CITY CAN GET GAS MORE CHEAPLY THAN PRESENT OFFER

Sarnia Only Pays 12 Cents, After Piping 75 Miles.

FIELDS ARE DYING OUT

Chatham Man Asks London Council Not To Be in Hurry.

H. L. Brackin of Chatham, representing the Vacuum Gas and Oil Company, prospecting the fields in the vicinity of Chatham, addressed the eight members of the council last evening for some time on natural gas, and asked that the council delay a vote on the franchise to the City Gas Company a sufficient length of time to permit his company to continue drilling. He was confident enough gas would be furnished London, at a much cheaper price than that asked by the City Gas Company, in a short time. He proposed to sell it to the city direct, the utilities commission to distribute it.

"We have two wells now with a capacity of from one to two million feet of gas a day," he said. "We do not consider this enough to warrant us bringing it to London, but we have from 15,000 to 20,000 acres of land under lease, and we are drilling or about to drill eight more wells, for which the contracts have been let."

After Pure Gas.

"We will furnish you the kind of gas you want, pure gas, not the kind we are forced to use in Chatham. We simply want an opportunity to present a proposition to you. London is our only market. Three years ago you turned down the Tilbury gas, and properly so. Our company went prospecting, looking to London as our only field. We have struck some gas. We want you to give no franchise that will prevent us coming here when we get the gas.

"Why should London be asked to pay 27½ cents per 1,000 feet, when Sarnia, Windsor and other cities an equal distance get it for 12 cents There is not a manufacturer in London can pay 25 cents and make it profitable. Sarnia pays 12 cents per 1,000 feet for the same gas you are offered, after piping it 75 miles. The Dominion Sugar Company of Chatham has contracted for 5,000,000 feet a day at 10 cents.

Fields Dying Out.

"The company offering gas to you cannot supply the cities where they have the franchise. Hamilton cannot get enough gas. The fields are dying out, and pressure plants have been installed to keep the pressure up.

"We will invest $100,000 in wells and plant if you will give us a chance to get into this field. We will contract to sell direct to the city at the limits. Let the utilities commission distribute it. I am not putting a spoke in the other fellow's wheel. I simply want you to do nothing to prevent us from getting a chance to sell our product in our only market. If they get into the field we will not, that's all."

"It will pay us to wait twelve months for a vote," said Ald. Ashplant.

Mr. Brackin said he would pay for a special election, if necessary. He would not want more than a month to get a proposition ready.
