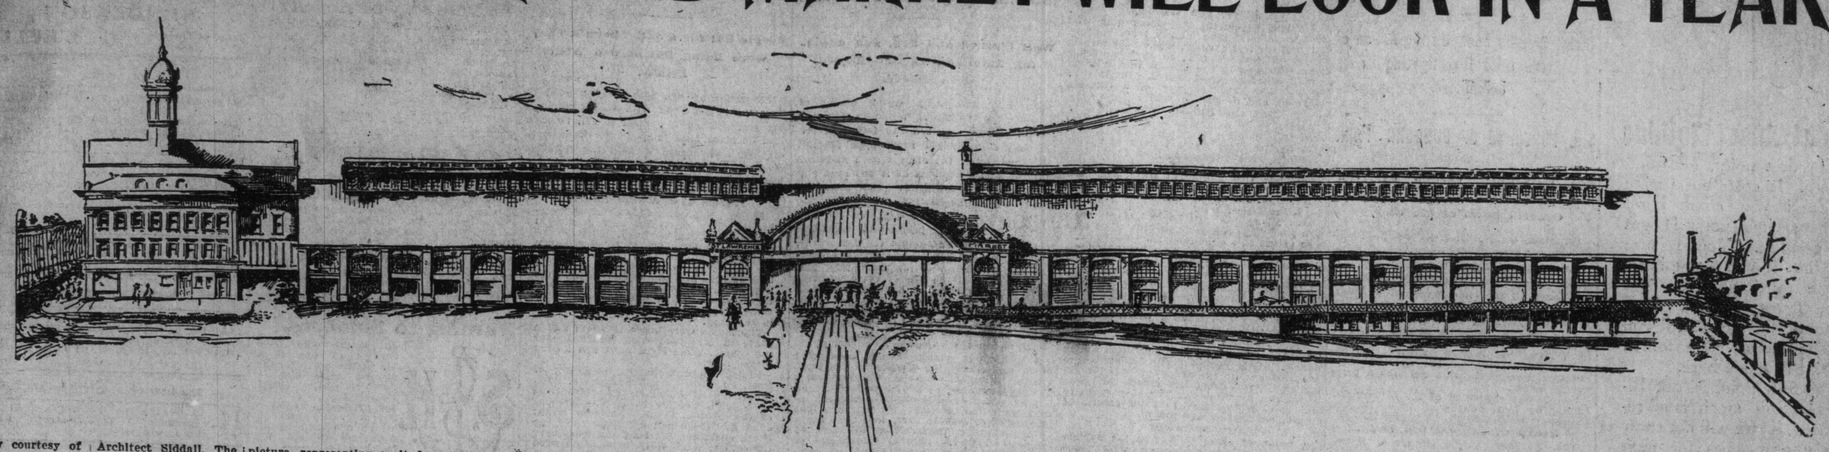
The Senate Reading Room S. SENATE FO

HOW THE IMPROVED MARKET WILL LOOK IN A YEAR.



By courtesy of Architect Siddall, The World is enabled herewith to reproduce an exact facsimile of the plans upon which the enlargement and improvement of St. Lawrence Market is to be based. The above picture shows exactly how the new market is to look when completed, for it is to be completed, since the contracts have now been all signed. Nothing now stands in the way, and work will proceed at once.

To be Completed in a Year.

A year from now it is calculated to have it finished. A careful look at the above picture, representing as it does a building which is to stretch from East King-street to the Esplanade, must excite wonder that it can all be done for a sum scarcely exceeding $150,000. No wonder Architects Sheard and Lennox were sceptical. No wonder a glance at that long steel roof, at those brick piers and a recollection that the old City Hall would have to be largely torn down and disposed of, and that piling and excavations at the south end are necessitated, have caused dubious smiles.

The Esplanade Frontage.

To the extreme left is St. Lawrence Hall and the King-street frontage. Private establishments flanking upon it have prevented any alteration in this end, but it is the only part which will not be changed. To the extreme right is the Esplanade, with freight cars lying along the G.T.R. tracks. The long building under the one roof is the new market as extended. Immediately south of St. Lawrence Hall and stretching to Front-street, is the area now occupied by the butchers, but which under the new order of things it is proposed to set apart for the farmers.

Farmers Under Cover.

A projecting roof much after the fashion of the present one will enable the farmer vendors of produce to drive their rigs under cover.

Then again, immediately south is shown Front-street, roofed with a canopy of steel, the whole width of the market roof. Under its shade and shelter market patrons may alight from trolley cars, so that business may be transacted without any inconveniences of weather.

The Butchers' Market.

South of Front-street is to be the butchers' market, with underneath the cold storge plant, although this latter accessory is not provided for in the plans. Space is left, however, and the detail as to whether cold storage is to be a municipal or a private enterprise will be settled in due course.

The Fruit Market.

South of the butchers and continuing on a level with Front-street, will be the general market for fruiterers, etc. The Front-street level is indicated by the platform which the illustration shows to surround the southern half. It is 16 feet wide, and will be used by butchers and other wagons owned by tenants of the new market. It will provide an ample roadway for its purpose.

Cold Storage.

Underneath, and for about a third of the distance from Front-street, is the cold storage space, and thence down to the Esplanade the basement underlying the fruiterers' market is the produce exchange.

A view of the south end would indicate an arcade running from the Esplanade up the centre of the market. Here it is proposed to run spur lines of the railways, which, with necessary hoists provided, would facilitate shipments. The radial railways are looked for to run along Front-street, and thus with its contiguity to the docks the market is to be admirably located to accommodate all kinds of traffic.

The building when complete will be more of less of a shell. Butcher stalls, it is agreed, shall be of portable and uniform steel frames, and shall be provided by the lessees, the city to purchase at the termination of each lease. Steel shutters are to cover the windows, and these, too, are yet to be contracted for.

The aldermen were disquieted because they and the public had not been enabled to see the plans. There they are.

MONTREAL PEOPLE RUN FOR THEIR CASH.

Hochelaga Bank Solid as a Rock, But the Scare Had Got Started.

PAID OUT MONEY ALL DAY.

Senator Forget Allayed Much of the Excitement by Depositing Just $170,000.

ARCHBISHOP TAKES A HAND IN

And Reassures Depositors—Large Available Assets Belong to This Bank to Pay All.

Montreal, Aug. 1.—(Special.)—This has not been anything like a Black Friday in financial circles, but things have had a very panicky aspect all day. As soon as it became known that the Jacques Cartier Bank had closed its doors, a run began on the Hochelaga Bank, one of the best managed and soundest institutions in the Province of Quebec. However, the directors were on hand bright and early and the money was paid out to the timid depositors quite as fast as it was asked for. The run was quite lively all the forenoon and it started in again at a rapid pace at 2, but it had pretty well fizzled out when the hour of closing arrived.

All Demands Will Be Met.

Should the run be resumed to-morrow morning, all demands will be met quite as easily as to-day. The deposits amount to four millions and it is estimated that the directors have at least $2,500,000 at their immediate disposition.

Senator Forget's Act.

When the run was at its height, Senator Forget came in and deposited $170,000, which seemed to satisfy those standing near.

The Archbishop's Circular.

His Grace the Archbishop also issued the following:

Archbishop's Palace, Montreal, Aug. 1, 1899.—Following an interview which I have had with several important men of Montreal, and at their request I think it my duty to make an appeal to all who have money in our banks not to allow themselves to be panic-stricken by the disasters of the last few days. I speak now in the interests of the whole people. A run on our banks at the present moment can have but the most deplorable consequences, for these institutions themselves, for the depositors, and for the whole country. I entreat the public to remain calm. The Archbishop will set them the example. The panic will go by, and our banks, I have not the least doubt, will honor all their obligations.

(Signed) Paul,
Archbishop of Montreal.

Available Assets.

The following sums are amongst the Hochelaga Bank's available assets: Specie, $171,811.46; Dominion notes, $621,225; notes and cheques of other banks, $402,277.34; due by other banks in Canada, $44,894.27; due by other banks in foreign countries, $262,578.73; Dominion of Canada Debentures, $427,290.17; Province of Quebec debentures, $253,059.44.

The Jacques Cartier.

There is no further news of the Jacques Cartier Bank, except that a meeting of the shareholders and depositors will be held in a few days.

SURRENDER OF SANTIAGO.

Generals Toral and Pareja Before the Military Court at the Spanish Capital.

MANY SOLDIERS DIED OF HUNGER.

Garrison Ran Out of Food, and There Was a Lack of Medicines in the Hospitals.

Madrid, Aug. 1.—The second session of the court martial of Generals Toral and Pareja, who are charged with surrendering Santiago de Cuba to the Americans without having exhausted all means of defence, took place to-day. Gen. Pareja, in his defence, said the garrison of the city of Santiago de Cuba lacked food, many of the soldiers having died of hunger. Previously, however, he added, the troops fought bravely and many officers and men were killed. In addition, the hospitals lacked medicines. The General read several telegrams exchanged between the authorities at Washington and Major-General Shafter, the latter showing himself confident of forcing the surrender of Santiago.

Santiago Was Defenceless.

General Toral made a similar defence. He said Santiago was defenceless and that it was impossible to hold out longer. He read a telegram sent him by Capt.-Gen. Blanco, who, after consulting with the authorities at Madrid, approved of the capitulation.

Another Spanish officer testified that when he entered Santiago he found three-quarters of the troops sick.

Gen. Rubi gave testimony to the effect that further resistance would have been equivalent to the death of the remainder of the troops.

Col. Ordonnez testified that he was blockaded, and therefore did not take part in the conference when it was decided to surrender. But, he said, he believed all means of resistance had been exhausted, though, perhaps, the capitulation might have been avoided by an attempt to break through the enemy's lines, causing much bloodshed. But, he added, the spirit of the troops was weakened when they lost all hope of outside help.

Those Exclusive Hats at Dineens'.

All the best diamonds are not in one jewelry store, nor are all the best hats in one hat store. Dineens graciously acknowledge in all their advertising that there is one, and only one, rival—a King-street store—which shows the distinction with Dineens' of importing fine hats direct from the makers. But even this distinguished competitor of Dineens' cannot offer either the genuine American Dunlap hats, nor the celebrated English Henry Heath hats, which are both reserved, among other famous qualities, exclusively for Dineens' trade. Other hat stores, which are merely the rival retail agencies of rival hat jobbers, are in the habit of putting on some mighty amusing pretensions, but—most people seem to understand that genuine qualities and correct styles are more likely to be had at the lowest prices, at a house which imports all hats from the makers direct.

Tory, Grit and Workingman Denounce Proposed Grant to Rainy River Road.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

Is What the Prospective Candidates in Winnipeg Demand in the Interest of the People,

ANDREWS, MARTIN AND PUTTEE

In Like Terms Object to Handing Over the Only Remaining Outlet to a Private Corporation.

Winnipeg, Aug. 1.—(Special.)—An evening paper publishes interviews to-night with prospective candidates for the Dominion bye-election here, all of whom, Tory, Grit and Labor, denounce the subsidies proposed at Ottawa to the Ontario and Rainy River Railway. Mayor Andrews, mentioned as the possible Conservative standard bearer, said: "I consider it a very unfortunate thing for Manitoba that what appears to be the only remaining outlet to the east should have passed into the hands of a private corporation, especially when the sentiment of the people was so strongly set in favor of a road to be owned and operated by the Government. I have not learned all the particulars, and cannot express any decided opinion upon the matter in detail, but as the newspaper accounts have not said that the grants were made in consideration of a material reduction in rates, I infer that there is not such a provision in the contract. I do not think, so far as can be learned as to the control of rates, that these amount to anything as a safeguard for the people. Being strongly opposed to the granting of franchises, especially when coupled with grants of public money, I cannot see any possible excuse at the present day for giving away the route to a private corporation, unless some provision for acquisition by the Government is made, safeguarded by proper regulations against over-bonding. As far as it would appear, there is no reason to believe that they will at some time acquire the line."

"Do you know any provision for keeping the road from acquiring another one?"

"I never heard of one, and I don't believe any such provision can be successfully carried out, and I believe that my opinion is the one held by the Minister of Railways. I consider this is a question distinct from and above party politics. I believe the people of Canada are tired furnishing the money to build railways to be given over to private corporations, as the day will soon come when the great question for Canada will be how to get rid of our railway bondage. I do not know whether this charter contains any provision for repurchase by the Government, on an arbitration basis, but presume that no Government would at this day give a bonus to a railway company without such a provision."

What the Labor Man Says.

A. W. Putte, labor candidate of Winnipeg, said: "I stand strictly by the principle of Government construction and ownership of railways and strongly condemn the continued giving away of bonuses, either land or money, to private corporations, which only means that they will ultimately come under control of the C.P.R."

Mr. Martin the Same.

Edward D. Martin, president of the Liberal association, and independent Liberal candidate, expresses himself in like manner to Messrs. Andrew and Puttee. People of all shades of politics are simply dumfounded at the enormous bonus propositions. In general the Liberal members of the local Legislature join with the rest of the community in a general denunciation.

The Northern Pacific authorities are annoyed at the restrictions placed upon the railway by the committee at Ottawa in regard to the crossing at Portage la Prairie. The N. P. R. claim that to favor the Canadian Pacific, the Ottawa committee by making provisions regarding certain sidings, are going beyond their jurisdiction.

IS IT MURDER OR SUICIDE?

The Aged Mother of John Keith, 33 Burnfield Avenue, Found in Davenport Road Unconscious.

SOME TRACES OF CARBOLIC ACID.

It is Said She Had Money, but None Was Found on Her—She Will Die.

Lying at the home of John C. Keith, 33 Burnfield-avenue, is his aged mother at the point of death. Yesterday morning she left his house in a cheerful manner and shortly after noon returned on a stretcher, unconscious. The physicians now in attendance are doubtful of her recovery.

Came to See Her Son.

Mrs. Keith, who is 60 years of age, came in from the country on Monday night to visit her son. She went to his place and remained there for the night. About 8 o'clock yesterday morning she said she would take a walk down to the east end where another of her sons reside. That was the last seen of her until she was found lying on the sidewalk near the top of Davenport-road. A woman passing along noticed the apparently lifeless form on the sidewalk and went for assistance.

Dr. A. J. Harrington of 845 Bathurst-street was hurriedly sent for. On his arrival there was a small crowd around the prostrate woman. The physician found her in a perilous condition and thought it advisable to remove her to a hospital. He telephoned for the police ambulance, but as Davenport-road is out of the city limits the men at the station refused to send the wagon. Even on being acquainted with the serious nature of the case the authorities would not consent.

A Good Woman Helps.

Miss Jardine of Bracondale, whose home is on Davenport-road, sent her carriage and coachman to the aid of the unfortunate woman.

In the meantime the physician was trying to find out who the woman was. There was nothing on her person which would show her identity and she was unable to speak for herself. When the search had almost been abandoned, her parasol was found on the road near where she had fallen. On the parasol was a piece of paper bearing the address of her son, John Keith. She was taken there. Mrs. John Keith recognized the old lady as her husband's mother.

Carbolic Acid Discovered.

Dr. Harrington worked with the woman all day, but was unsuccessful in reviving her. A stomach pump was brought into use and a large quantity of carbolic acid was discovered.

How Mrs. Keith came to swallow the poison is the question which is puzzling her relatives. They will not think of suicide. They are of the opinion that she has met with foul play and had been lured away to a lonely quarter of the city. When she was last seen she carried a big parcel, but it was missing when she was found.

Men Who Talked.

A man who was present when she was taken to her son's home says he saw Mrs. Keith about 10 o'clock yesterday morning in company with a man, and a storekeeper says he changed a $10 bill for Mrs. Keith. When found she had no money. The chances are that Mrs. Keith will never regain her senses and she may be the only person who can solve the mystery.

IT IS A LIVE QUESTION NOW.

Mr. J. P. Whitney Talks to The World of the Proposal to Abolish University Residence.

WHAT A POSSIBLE REMEDY IS

Cut at Least Some of the Strands of the "Painter" of Government Control.

The World took advantage of Mr. J. P. Whitney's presence in the city yesterday to interview him on the important letter of Mr. John King, treating of the abolition of University residence. The leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature was seen last evening by a World representative at the Grosvenor House, to whom Mr. Whitney cordially granted an interview.

His Personal Feeling.

Asked if he had read the article headed "Hands Off the University," Mr. Whitney replied:

"Yes, I read the letter of Mr. John King in to-day's issue of The World in regard to the abolition of residence at University College. It is quite natural that Mr. King and all other graduates of the University should feel and express a lively interest in everything connected with that institution. I know nothing of the reasons which actuated those in whom the power rests to abolish residence. My own personal feeling is strongly in favor of residence, for the reasons given by Mr. King, and also for other reasons."

Residence is Desirable.

"Then, you consider University residence desirable?" queried the reporter.

"Not being a University man myself," said Mr. Whitney, "I should hesitate, perhaps, to express any very positive opinion. However, the information I have acquired from all sources leads me to the conviction that residence, properly managed, is a very desirable adjunct to a collegiate course."

Graduates and the Government.

"Do you regard the action of the authorities as inimical to the University?"

"I cannot," answered Mr. Whitney, "express the opinion that those in authority are wrong in proposing the abolition of it, without having all the facts before me. It is reasonable to suppose that the graduates of the University, as a class, would take enough interest in the question to urge their view upon the Government, and also bring the subject to the notice of the public."

Important Public Question.

"You evidently attach much importance to the question, Mr. Whitney?"

"No doubt all parties concerned have the interest of the University at heart, although they may differ as to the best methods to pursue. There is no doubt that Mr. King is right in regarding the question of supporting the Provincial University as a live question, a serious question, and an important public question."

Remedy Suggested.

The last question asked by the reporter was: "What remedy would you suggest for the present unsatisfactory state of affairs?" Mr. Whitney replied:

"I am strongly inclined to believe, with Mr. King, that under present circumstances the condition of the University does not attract the sympathies and bounty of our rich men. Of course, I may be mistaken as to this, but I have a very strong conviction that I am right, and that the first remedy to be applied will be to cut at least some of the strands of what Mr. King aptly terms the 'painter' of Government control."

Went Over to the Senate and the Job Was a Sure Thing—Railway Subsidies To-day.

Ottawa, August 1.—(Special.)—There was an air of expectancy and a light flutter of excitement about the House this morning with respect to the vacant Speakership, but it soon became known that Deputy-Speaker Brodeur had declined to be a candidate for the position and that it had been offered to and been accepted by Mr. Thomas Bain, M.P. for South Wentworth, and the general opinion was that a better selection could not be made. When the hour for the meeting of the House drew near the galleries of the chamber began to be filled up with visitors and members, and by the opening hour there was a larger attendance both on the floor and in the galleries than there has been for many weeks. By the time the nomination for Speaker took place there were 130 members in their places, which is more than twice as many as have been in the House at the same time for a month past.

Promptly at 3 o'clock the sergeant-at-arms entered bearing the mace, which he placed on the hooks under the clerk's table, as when the House is in committee. Almost at the same moment the clerk of the House, Sir John Bourinot, took his seat at the clerk's table and five minutes later Sir Wilfrid Laurier entered and immediately rose and announced that His Excellency had been informed of the death of Speaker Edgar and gave permission to the House to elect a new Speaker. He then proposed Mr. Bain in the terms reported below, the nomination being received with cheers on both sides of the House. The motion was seconded by Hon. Mr. Fielding, who was about to speak, but noticing that Sir Charles Tupper was rising, he gracefully gave way to the leader of the Opposition. Sir Charles in a few
