THE VOICE OF THE DOCTORS.

IT IS STRONGLY IN FAVOR OF A CONSUMPTION HOSPITAL.

Deputation to the Executive—Mr. Gage Corrects Some Misapprehensions—No Taxation for Maintenance Will Be Required—Some Startling Statistics of Consumption's Fatal Ravages.

The sub-committee of the Executive to whom has been relegated the consideration of Mr. Gage's munificent offer of $25,000 towards the erection of a consumption hospital met yesterday afternoon. Ald. Hallam presided.

The Mayor introduced the following medical deputation, who wished to address the committee: Drs. Cameron, Graham, Temple, Ferguson, Caven, Milner and Cotton.

The chairman stated his appreciation of the proposed gift and his desire that at a very early day practical steps would be taken to supply what was greatly needed in Toronto, a consumption hospital.

Mr. Gage's Statement.

Mr. W. J. Gage corrected an erroneous impression—that the City Council would have to contribute one-half of the cost of the erection of a $50,000 hospital, and after its erection to be at the cost of maintenance. One-half of the $50,000 Mr. Gage felt certain would be privately contributed as soon as the site was obtained. All he was asking of the Council was the grant of an eligible site, and he would prefer High Park.

As to maintenance, with a good business committee of management, they could rely on the generosity of the public in response to appeals such as were made on behalf of the Sick Children's Hospital and other institutions.

Also a Summer Home.

Mr. Gage explained that in his letter to the Mayor he had fixed the sum at $50,000 so that a really creditable-looking home might be built, one that would be no detriment to the park. It had been suggested to him by several medical gentlemen that in connection with the High Park hospital there should be a summer home in Muskoka. Consequent on this suggestion he had corresponded with the Grand Trunk Railway authorities, who had generously stated that free transportation would be given the patients.

Dr. Graham's Endorsation.

The first speaker of the medical deputation was Dr. Graham, who gave particulars of the success of consumption hospitals in Europe. In Germany 20 per cent. of the patients were practically cured. This was very much ahead of the percentage of cures in Canada.

The three primary elements of success in a consumption hospital were pure air, rest and proper food. Fresh air was the most important. It was from the lack of this that the most deadly symptoms often arose. To compass the desideratum of pure air it was imperatively necessary that the proposed hospital be erected in the suburbs of Toronto.

Constituents of City Air.

Smoke, dust and millions of bacteria mingle in the city air. Nutrition should be of the best, and it was the lack of these requisites from the homes of the poor that really consigned the consumptive to death from the beginning of the disease.

On the financial aspect he concurred in Mr. Gage's sanguine expectations. When the hospital was open he thought they could rely upon a city and provincial grant, as to the General Hospital. Then there would surely be a class of paying patients, and he advocated voluntary subscriptions, as in the case of the English hospitals.

Speaking of the urgent need for a consumption hospital Dr. Graham said that one in eleven of the entire population of Ontario fall victims to this disease.

No Charge On the Ratepayers.

Dr. Temple concurred in and supplemented Dr. Graham's remarks. He commented on the unfavorable surroundings of consumptives in city hospitals, their need of isolation and good sanitary surroundings. The general impression that consumption was incurable was an error. The project, he thought, should commend itself favorably to the City Council, as the ratepayers would not be called upon to pay anything for the erection or maintenance of the hospital.

Successful Wherever Tried.

Dr. Ferguson cited the success of similar institutions in the United States and Great Britain. Thousands of lives were annually saved by their operation. A consumptive patient was a positive danger to the health of a household. The premises became infected from the bacteria, especially carpets, curtains and wall paper.

Dr. Irving Cameron said that the ordinary daily allowance to the General Hospital would not be sufficient for maintenance of consumptive patients. This would probably be $1.25 per day. Consumption was one of the most curable diseases when treated in its early stages. He placed the mortality as high as one to seven of the population. If High Park could not be secured as the site, Scarboro Heights was a very desirable location.

More Medical Testimony.

A letter from Dr. Bryce, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, was read, favoring the cottage system of hospital.

Dr. Cotton spoke on similar lines, and Drs. Milner and Caven concurred.

The Chairman said doubtless the council would favorably consider Mr. Gage's generous proposal.

On motion of Dr. Ferguson, it was agreed that the chairman, Mr. Gage and Drs. Graham, Temple and Cameron be a committee to visit the sites suggested, and to report thereon to the council.

'Sir Oliver and the Shrievalty Affair.

Editor World: I am not at all surprised at the revelations of the Leys correspondence. It simply shows that Sir Oliver Mowat is human like any other politician; not much above the common voter, susceptible to the ordinary influences of greed and pelf. The only difference between Sir Oliver and the wicked Tory is, while their actions are extremely alike, Sir Oliver, in common with the other lights of the party of purity, is possessed of a useful and embracing cloak of hypocrisy, worn by him as part of his ordinary apparel and which is much more useful to him than the ornamental sword of his order which he carries at his side.

But this is not what I seek to direct your attention to. It is generally assumed that when Sir Oliver so reluctantly divided the shrievalty of York into that of Toronto and York he simply gave the salary of Sheriff Jarvis to his son and Widdifield, leaving the public in no worse position than they were in before. But this is not the case. What Sir Oliver did was to make two sheriffs where there was only one before. Let me explain by an example: Where John Smith sued Peter Brown and recovered judgment to place writs of execution in Sheriff Jarvis' hands against the goods and lands of Brown cost $6 each, or $12 for both, why one writ would not answer has never been explained. There never was any necessity for the two writs and surely it would have been the willing task of an honest reformer to have put an end to the stupid and expensive practice. But what was the effect of the creation of the two sheriffs to cover the same ground? John Smith has now to pay $24 where he formerly paid $12, and, of course, poor Brown must ultimately repay to Smith interest. This the ordinary mortal, unenlightened by the "evidences of Christianity," regards as disgraceful, Sir Oliver, however, stands by, witnesses this extortion which puts money in his son's pocket, and with uplifted hands says to unfortunate Brown, "May God be with you." How much more commendable had Sir Oliver made his son bursar of the Belleville Asylum and given a similar salary to Sheriff Jarvis' ornamental successor. But this would not have been "reform."

On a par with this is the equally disgraceful division of the office of the Crown Attorney for York, the working of which is both ridiculous and expensive, as witness the case of some "common," not political, thief, whose desire is to be tried by a jury of his country. He is first investigated by the clever Police Court Attorney at the expense to the county of $5, he is then handed over to the cleverer Crown Attorney at the court house, who enquires again into the case at an additional cost of $20 to the county. He in turn calls in a political hack, known as a crown counsel, who also goes over, at more and greater expense, the whole case again and the thief is convicted or acquitted at great expense to the province, but why three such brilliant counsel should be employed to convict one thief the corruption of party politics alone can explain. Had Sir Oliver appointed, one man to do the work of the three it would have been a step in the right direction. It is no excuse to say that one man could not have done the work, because the three gentlemen indicated each practice outside of their public duty, and these crown counsel are all to be found to-day stumping the country in favor of the party that pays them so handsomely.

That Mr. Meredith could put an end to all this I very much doubt, but even if he could not accomplish all this surely he could continue it in its true colors and not under the hypocrite's cloak, and finally a long-suffering public might ultimately be brought to change the system for one having some little ingredient of honesty and common sense. What do you think? ANTI-HUMBUG.

Island Water Supply.

Editor World: Your remarks in this day's issue are pertinent to the question. The writer goes further and says that an engineer who knew anything about hydraulics would be able to give supply without a pumping plant and consequent annual cost. June 18. CIVIS.

Who Is George Stevens?

Mayor Kennedy received a letter from Rev. F. G. J.
