HANNA STILL SILENT CONCERNING AWARD

TORONTO, Feb. 3.—President D. B. Hanna of the Canadian National Railways, who returned to Toronto today, still declines to discuss the award of the recent board of conciliation which found against his "no politics" order and recommended reinstatement of James Higgins of Toronto, and other C. N. R. employees who lost their positions because of it. Mr. Hanna wished more time to peruse the reports.

"I find," he said, "that there are three reports brought in, and not two, as I rather inferred from press notices. There is an unanimous report, a majority report, and a minority report.

"So far as the discharged men are concerned, the situation remains unchanged. The situation is as it has been, and the three men discharged are still out."

TORY LEADER ASSAILS JUDGES

Ferguson Terms Latchford Statement False—Drury Objects.

Toronto, Feb. 3.—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Conservative leader in Ontario before the orders of the day were called in the Legislature this afternoon, spoke to a question of privilege with reference to an article in the Farmers Sun, which he characterized as "a glaring falsehood," without a shadow of foundation," took occasion to attack Justices W. R. Riddell and Frank Latchford, the royal commissioners who are conducting an inquiry into timber returns made to the late Hearst Government. The article in the Sun to which Mr. Ferguson took exception was headed, he said, as follows: "Hon. G. Howard Ferguson gives away 5,000 square miles by letter." Mr. Ferguson said the article under the heading was "very largely a tissue of falsehoods."

The Sun article, Mr. Ferguson said, stated that three letters had been taken from the files of the department of lands, forests and mines, and later returned. These letters contained Hon. Mr. Ferguson's promise to give away 5,000 square miles of forest to the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Company. "Again, I say, this is the vilest kind of slander," declared the former minister of lands, forests and mines. "There were no letters removed from the files of the department, and no letter contained a promise to give any territory to any company."

Provincial Election.

Mr. Ferguson mentioned that after the last provincial general election a letter written to Mr. Meade was inadvertently carried away with his private files. When his secretary discovered this he returned the letter to the department with an explanation as to its temporary removal.

"Ordinarily it would be difficult for one to understand how such gross misstatements of facts could be made," said Mr. Ferguson. "In the present instance, however, it can readily be accounted for from the comment and conduct of the commissioners conducting this so-called inquiry, which undoubtedly were made to inflame the public mind for political purposes.

Terms Remark False.

"Here is a sample: Mr. Justice Latchford, without waiting or looking to the merits or getting particulars of this matter, says: 'The grant of 5,500 square miles of timber limit just on the eve of election is a matter that should be promptly investigated.' I say the statement of Mr. Justice Latchford is false in every particular and he can have only one motive in uttering it."

Premier Drury objected to a member impugning motives to the judges on the floor of the House. He said Hon. Mr. Ferguson would have the opportunity of making his objections to the commission.

The Speaker upheld the premier's objection, and Mr. Ferguson said he would have more to say on the matter at a later date.

Early in his speech Hon. Mr. Ferguson said the Farmers' Sun was the mouthpiece of the government. Premier Drury shook his head as if to negative this assertion, and some farmer members cried "No."

TURK NATIONALIST LEADER NOT TO DEAL WITH ALLIED POWERS

Crosby; vice-chief ranger, G. H. Daniels; recording secretary, C. Swarts; financial secretary, Charles Buck; chaplain, A. Mans; treasurer G. Maycock; senior woodward, J. MacArthur; junior woodward, O. Miller; senior beadle, J. A. Creaser; junior beadle, H. W. Nott.

At the close of the ceremonies all enjoyed card-playing for a while, then tables were set and all sat down to supper and spent a pleasant hour.

W. H. Kipp's funeral was largely attended, the procession from the house to the cemetery being over a mile in length. The bearers were G. Davidson, Adam Barker, William Reed, G. Daniels, Richard Duce, Albert Lawrence.

U. S. OFFICERS END METEORIC CAREER OF GERMAN ROGUE

Fools Berlin and Paris, But Tries Dope Selling On Americans.

EVEN DODGED ARMY

Poses as a Baron, Makes Impression on Foch, Gets Red Cross Money.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—Another picturesque career of a rascal, which reads as if it might have sprung from the imagination of a novelist, has just come to light here through the arrest of Robert Oertel. Although only 26 years old, Oertel put over schemes which fairly take one's breath.

In the first place, to escape further service in the army, he pretended that he was insane. He played this part so well that he was sent to a military hospital, from which he deserted, accompanied by a nurse. Next he wrote to the registrars of several towns for copies of birth certificates of well-known persons, among them a number of German and foreign personages of political and social prominence. These names he adopted as he might be prompted by circumstances, but his favorite alias was Baron von Egloffstein.

By using this name he made friends with French and Belgian officers after the armistice. Some of these newly-made friends took him to the French general headquarters, where he was received by Marshal Foch. The French military chief was so well impressed with the young "baron" that he wrote a letter to the French General Dupont, then in Berlin, recommending that certain French prisoners be placed under the care of Von Egloffstein. This worked so well that he received a diplomatic pass and two motor cars, and was employed on the exchange of prisoners to and from Rumania, being sent to Bucharest. Soon he was made a delegate to the Red Cross there, and was intrusted with large sums of money.

His next venture was to visit General Mackensen, at that time a prisoner in Hungary, and was intrusted with confidential powers by the Czecho-Slovakian Government. But finally the "baron" got a little careless, and attempted to carry out a cocaine deal.

It was American army officials who burst his bubble in Bingerbruck by discovering that his passport was false. Although his companion, the nurse, was allowed to go free, the Americans turned the "baron" over to the Berlin police.

—From News of the World.

WAR IS REALITY YET TO BRIDES

Thousands Wedded During Days of Excitement Return to Homes Sadder, Wiser.

DETROIT, Feb. 3.—In the lives of womankind the war is by no means over, according to Virginia May Murray, general secretary of the Travelers' Aid Society of New Yorw City, who is in Detroit to organive a policewoman's annex to the Detroit police department.

Scores of war brides who came over shortly after their soldier sweethearts came back and were married with full panoply of uniform and in the hectic days of rejoicing are now passing through the port of New York on their way back to their hinterland, sadder and wiser, and most of them with tiny babies in their arms, Miss Murray says. And Miss Murray ought to know, because her department cleared 8,006 women and children during December.

Many Girls Disillusioned.

"Immigration cases constitute a good proportion of our work," Miss Murray said, "though of course our organization acts as a general clearing house for all other social organizations. But no girl is allowed to enter the country without the exercise of a great deal of judicial red tape.

"An astonishing number of girls came over to marry soldiers in the early days after the war. Large numbers of these girls went clear across the country to marry ranch boys whom they met during the war. Many girls, of course, chic little French girls, with their dresses to their shoe tops, and you can imagine, can't you, what a chilly reception some of them met with the homefolks in little inland towns or out on desolate ranches, where their pretty art of looking fashionable could no longer be practiced. It is easy to see that there must have been many disillusionments in their lives, and that accounts for the large number who are going back to their own home.

"A large number of unmarried mothers have also been brought to this country, and that adds to the problems which confront our organization. The money to bring them over, is of course, forwarded by the men responsible, and in the majority of cases the men—most of them soldiers—come to New York to meet them. The reunion usually takes place in our headquarters and often they are touching, indeed."

Men Are Sometimes "Stung."

But if the young men sometimes seem to be having the best of every thing in this world, Miss Murray's story gives a different aspect to the commonly understood conclusion.

"The gullibility of men who correspond with girls in foreign countries and then send them money to come over here is one of the things that few people realize," Miss Murray continued. "Most of these men are actuated by the high motive of wishing to rescue these girls from unhappy surroundings, and they, after an exchange of pictures, will advance, not only passage money, but good round sums besides. Then after the girl arrives she is just as likely as not to change her mind and will absolutely refuse to marry the man, and he has absolutely no recourse in the matter of getting back his money.

"Girls who are admitted must, of course, be cared for by some society, else they are deported. But if they can secure positions so that they do not become public charges, we have nothing more to do with their cases. Often these girls fall in love with someone on the way over, so they jauntily jilt the waiting lover and marry their newest flame. In these cases we are able to make them pay back some of the money that has been advanced, but there is, strictly speaking, no legal redress in a case like this."

New York also has the problem of looking after stagestruck girls from other sections of the county. Ninety runaway girls were looked after by the Travelers' Aid during December. The allure of the movie seems not to be losing its hold at all, Miss Murray says, and no end of trouble is caused the society by the disappointments that overtake these girls when they find they are not going to be screened immediately.

Miss Murray expects to spend a year in Detroit putting Detroit policewomen properly on the map. Her experience has been along broad lines, which fit her especially for this line of work. She was chief probation officer in Columbus, Ohio, at one time, and later had charge of Inwood House, New York, where delinquent girls are sentenced by the courts.

During the war she was supervisor of the section on women and girls of the war department commission on training camps, with ten southern states in her territory where she supervised dance halls and looked after the women who followed in the wake of the army. She has been general secretary of the Travelers' Aid Society in New York since 1919.

PARIS ACTOR QUIT IN GERMAN AIR RAID

Armand Bernard Sued for Refusing to Continue Play.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Even an experienced actor, it seems, ought to be excused for feeling a bit nervous during an air raid, but Mme. Cora Laparcerie, well-known actress and manager of the Renaissance Theatre, does not agree with this. In fact, she has brought an action for 5,000 francs damages against Armand Bernard, a Paris actor, because he refused to keep on playing during a performance in March of 1918, when the Germans began an air raid over the city.

Mme. Laparcerie, it seems, had made a special feature in her advertisements of the assertion no gothas or zeppelins would be allowed to interrupt a performance in her theatre.

But on the night in question, when the air raid warnings were heard in the theatre, M. Bernard, it is charged, suddenly remembered that he had an old affliction of the heart which made excitement bad for him. He explained this gingerly to the audience and left the stage, a thing which the feminine manager declares he had no right to do, in view of her advertisements.
