VOICES OF THE PEOPLE.

Forestry.

Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Perhaps, as your journal has taken considerable interest in the forestry movement, you will allow these lines admission to your columns. Some five or six years ago a number of farmers and others, at my request, were good enough to send me a letter describing the state of forestry in their neighborhood. This spring, intending to examine the settled portions of Ontario, I visited several districts of the Province. I found in many places, I am glad to say, gratifying progress made in tree planting. I had meant to devote the whole time to the work, but unfortunately ill health and illness I have been obliged again to rely on the assistance of my Ontario correspondents in order to complete the forestry report. I am now getting out, which will be sent to all who reply. I should, therefore, be very glad if any gentleman in your neighborhood would write me word as to the following points:

Whether, and to what extent, lines of windbreak or ornament are being planted, and how those planted are thriving.

Whether plantations of young trees are being set out, and, if so, how they succeed.

Whether cattle are fenced out from plantations of forest in your neighborhood or not, if it answers.

Any difference in climate, rainfall, depth of snow, etc., you may have observed since the clearing of the country.

What measures, if any, would be likely to improve the existing state of affairs.

I am, truly, R. W. PHIPPS,
251½ Richmond street west,
Nov. 25, 1890. Toronto.

Civic Reform.

Editor of the ADVERTISER:

In your issue of yesterday a conversation with one of your staff on the question of civic reform is reported. Your reporter has stated my views very fairly, but he has done me a great injustice in suggesting that my term of office should be extended to four years, I had no intention of canvassing the merits or demerits of the present system.

I merely intended to have noted the present system of yearly election and many of our best men from entering the civic arena. My ideas generally find favor of centralization, the power of borrowing the city funds being confined to a city responsible to the people, and the effect of obtaining a city charter is nearly to do away with anomalies that exist in the Municipal Act, and to do away with the necessity of appealing to the Legislature for special privileges on every conceivable occasion, as the statute stands. In nearly every year since Confederation bill show—an expensive and cumbrous method of obtaining relief. Excuse rambling you. Truly yours,

D. C. MACDONALD.

THE LIFE-SAVING SERVICE.

Interesting Items in the Report of the United States General Superintendent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The following is an abstract of the annual report of Mr. Kimball, general superintendent of the life-saving service:

The establishment embraced at the close of the fiscal year 233 stations, 176 being on the Atlantic, 46 on the lakes, 10 on the Pacific and 1 at the falls of the Ohio, Louisville, Ky. The number of disasters to documented vessels to the field of station operations during the year was 384. There were on board these vessels 3,197 persons, of whom 3,159 were saved and 38 lost. The number of shipwrecked persons who received succor at the stations was 788, to whom 1,576 days' care of the aggregate was afforded. The total value of the vessels involved in the disasters was $5,266,853, and that of their cargoes $2,289,055, making the total value of property imperilled $7,555,908. The amount $5,451,843 was saved and $665 lost. The number of vessels saved was 76.

In addition to the foregoing, there were 146 the year 145 casualties to smaller craft such as sailboats, rowboats, etc., on which there were 229 persons, of whom 288 were saved and 10 lost. The property involved in these instances is estimated at $71, of which $59,102 was saved and $12 lost. In addition to persons saved from vessels there were 27 others rescued from fallen from wharves, piers, etc., who would have perished without the aid of the life-saving crews.

The crews saved without outside assistance 17 vessels, valued with their cargoes at $1,020, and assisted other efforts in 34 vessels, valued with their cargoes at $2,210, making the aggregate number of vessels which they saved and assisted to save during the year 251, involving $2,167,230 property.

Prairie Buffalo, Now Almost Extinct.

The traveler, tourist, and rancher who have wander over the boundless prairies of the Northwest, have continually before them reminders of a noble, and almost extinct animal—the buffalo. Horns, skulls, bones of all kinds present themselves at every step.

The the great colonizer, has been the destroyer of this grand monarch of the prairie; and to-day the buffalo is almost an object, as would be the finding of a Indian Lion roaming over the prairies. The march of civilization and the rise up of towns and villages on these prairies where once roamed the buffalo, the great civilizer and conqueror, has been able to deal with, or vanquish totally, some of the dread foes which formerly menace, not only the farmer and rancher, but the business man and almost every other profession and occupation, we refer to sickness and disease. Malaria in various forms is to-day found in the prairie towns with heaven's pure and bright sky, as well as in the crowded cities of the East.

Business, with all its attendant evils and troubles, is found in many homes, and is the cause of great anxiety and thought to a husband and wife.

Young men and women in the race of life, working and constantly to acquire riches and cattle, are unconsciously, but in many cases, bringing upon themselves nerve troubles, such as sleeplessness, dizziness, headaches and nervous prostration, that must end seriously, if not attended to in time.

The great remedy for the West, is the one that has restored to new life thousands of sufferers in the East; it is Paine's Celery Compound, the greatest nerve strengthener and builder ever offered to an enlightened public.

Paine's Celery Compound is now accepted by physicians as the remedy of excellence for all nervous complaints. Dyspeptic, and all who are troubled with kidney or liver complaints, it stands at the head of every known preparation.

Dr. Julian J. Chisholm, of Baltimore, has been inspecting the Babylonish cylinders in the British Museum, and has found from the intaglios cut on them that the street dress of a society lady and presumptive leader of fashion in the year 2300 B. C. had a tight-fitting waist and sleeves, and a flounced or accordion-pleated clinging skirt, such as hangs in all women's wardrobes today. Moreover, the hat was high, and a general slenderness and length of line was visibly sought, the Babylonian Worth having anticipated his French successors by nearly 4,000 years.
