FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES.

Three Cases Heard at Osgoode Hall -- Judgment Reserved in Molsons Bank vs. Cooper.

Osgoode Hall, Nov. 14. 1895.

At the non-jury sittings in Burns v. Kennedy judgment was given for plaintiff for $1458.14, with costs, against the separate estate of the defendant. Wallace Nesbitt and R. McKay for plaintiff; D. Macdonald for defendant.

Blevins v. Newlove was then called. It is an action to set aside a conveyance and assignment of mortgage as fraudulent. The plaintiff says that his judgment for $300 and $242 costs obtained in October, 1894, remains unsatisfied, while the defendant Wood enjoys the benefits of the property and security in question, and he asks that defendant Newlove be declared a trustee of the land and mortgage. The defendant Wood says he made the conveyances complained of for valuable consideration early in 1893, in good faith and when perfectly solvent and further alleges that the plaintiff has not now and never had any claim against him. Newlove claims to own both land and mortgage, as having purchased them in good faith for valuable consideration. A. C. Macdonell for plaintiff; J. J. Maclennan for defendants. The learned Chief Justice found that at the date of transfer to Newlove he was aware that defendant was in debt, and such debts are still unpaid, and that Newlove took the land and mortgage not by purchase, but merely as security for a debt unascertained at the time, and gave judgment for the plaintiffs, as asked, with costs.

Garrow v. Storey, the next case, was still another case of fraudulent conveyance, but the plaintiff in the case says that his judgment is not satisfied, because defendant conveyed to his wife, co-defendant, Emily Storey, who then exchanged the land for other land, and plaintiff asks that the land received in exchange be made available for his claim. The defendants deny every allegation made by plaintiff. S. W. Burns for plaintiff; C. C. Robinson for defendants. Owing to the inability of defendant Emily Storey to attend, owing to illness, the case was adjourned sine die. Costs of day reserved.

In Lennox v. Ross, the fraudulent conveyance again asked the attention of the court. The plaintiff is assignee for benefit of creditors of defendant Richard Ross, and says that on 25th and 30th days of January respectively, Richard conveyed to his wife, co-defendant, Ellen Ross certain parcels of land; that on March 15, 1895, Richard assigned under R.S.O., ch. 124; that when Richard conveyed he was insolvent, and all the plaintiff desires besides costs is that the land may be sold and proceeds distributed among Richard's creditors. The defendants deny every allegation made by plaintiff. C. C. Robinson for plaintiff; S.W. Burns for defendant. The case was not concluded when the court rose.

In Cornell and City of Toronto judgment was reserved by the Court of Appeal.

Molsons Bank v. Cooper.—The defendants kept an account with plaintiffs, who advanced them $145,000 upon a number of promissory notes for round amounts made by them direct to the plaintiffs. According to agreement with plaintiffs, defendants deposited a number of small notes belonging to them, which they had taken from their customers, and when defendants became insolvent and made an assignment plaintiffs sued them on those of their own notes which were overdue, and recovered judgment for about $80,000. When all the other direct notes became due, plaintiffs sued defendants for their balance, and the question is whether, in the action for the balance of the direct notes, the plaintiffs are bound to credit the moneys received from the collateral notes upon the balance of the direct notes, or hold such money in a separate account until they are paid enough money to extinguish their entire claim, taking into account the money realized from the collaterals. The defendants insist that the plaintiffs are bound to credit the moneys received from the collaterals upon the balance of the direct notes sued on in the present action, as they have elected not to apply them upon those embraced in the $80,000 judgment.

At the trial Rose, J., found in favor of plaintiffs, but the Queen's Bench Divisional Court, consisting of Falconbridge and Street, J J., reversed his judgment, and this appeal is taken by plaintiffs. Shepley, Q.C., for plaintiffs; Foy, Q.C., and J. S. Denison for defendants. Judgment reserved.

The following are peremptory lists for Friday, Nov. 15th: Appeals in judge's chambers at 11 a.m.: Spears v. Harnden, Payne v. Coughill.

Non-jury sittings before Armour, C.J., at 10 a.m.: Garrow v. Storey (to be concluded), Dibb v. Dibb, Wanless v. Lancashire, etc., Co., Hall v. Pearson, Hallamore v. Campbell, Jackson v. Wardlow, Elliott v. Rogers.

Court of Appeal at 11 a.m.: Staebler v. Zimmerman, County of York v. Sunnyside Boating Co., Argles v. McMath.

The services of an ad hoc judge have been secured for Nov. 25th for the hearing of the appeal in Attorney-General for Ontario v. Page.

Christmas in England.

There are always a good many people desiring to arrive in England in time to enjoy the festivities of the old land. In these days of fast lines and magnificent steamers the question arises, Which of the latter would be the most suitable to take?

To persons, however, wishing to take the last steamer from America which will land them in England safely before Christmas, the Cunard line steamer Etruria should be the one selected, sailing on Saturday, Dec. 14.

This ship will be due in Liverpool on Dec. 21, thereby allowing a margin of some three or four days before the holiday. Tickets and all information can be had from A. F. Webster, sole Toronto agent, N.E. corner King and Yonge-streets.

East Toronto.

The Toronto Street Railway Company is suing Constable B. Booth of East Toronto and lessee of the waiting room at the Gerrard-street terminus of the Scarboro line for alleged arrears of rent amounting to $36. The defendant claims that he has paid a part of this and says that Mr. J. Curran to whom he sub-let the room has yet to pay him. The case comes off at Woburn next week.

The Aberdeen Curling Club of East Toronto has been invited to take part in the great bonspiel of the Northwest, to commence at Duluth on the 13th of January.

Henry A. King & Co., 12 King-street east, received the following despatch from Chicago to-day:

We had a quiet and inactive market today, only fluctuating ⅛c. Early Liverpool cables came quiet, with poor demand. Primary receipts are still large, with no signs of decreasing, 1,080,000 bush, against 665,000 bush same day last year. Northwest receipts, 1109 cars, against 884 cars same day a year ago. Export business was light. There is no feature to the market, except lug the price. The market would advance on lighter primary receipts or a better export demand.

Corn quiet. It lost its advance of yesterday. Primary receipts, 250,000 bush, against 225,000 bush same day a year ago.

Provisions opened firmer, but sold down on combined large receipts and the selling of packers.

McIntyre & Wardwell (John J. Dixon) received the following despatch to-day from Schwartz, Dupee & Co., Chicago:

An early report from New York says that consols were ½ point off, and an advance in Dec. wheat at St. Louis of 1⅛c caused an improvement here from the opening prices of ⅝c and 1½c per bush. The advance, however, receiving no good support, either for local or outside account, was soon lost, and the market closed tame at the lowest price of the day. Exports were equal to 336,000 bush, of which Pacific coast shipments show up liberally. The total clearances for the week will be small. Good rains yesterday and to-day in most of the territory west of the Mississippi River. Minneapolis reports some decrease in the receipts of wheat at country stations. The market shows but little indication of much existing short interest. Outside buying is for account of the short interest.

Provision quite active, and lost all of yesterday's improvement under free offerings by packers and some liquidation in Dec. pork. There was a little outside trade in. Yesterday's local sellers did most of the buying. The closing was heavy at the low prices of the day, and the outlook is discouraging there.
