Poetry.

THE THREE CALLERS

Morn calleth fondly to a fair boy, straying
'Mid golden meadows, rich with clover dew;
She calls—but still he thinks of nought, save playing,
And so she smiles and waves him an adieu!
Whilst he, still merry with his flowery store,
Deems not that Morn, sweet Morn, returns no more.

Noon cometh, but the boy, to manhood growing,
Heeds not the time, he sees but one sweet form,
One young fair face, from bower of jasmine glowing,
And all his loving heart with bliss is warm;
So Noon, unnoticed seeks the western shore,
And man forgets that Noon returns no more.

Night tappeth gently at a casement gleaming
With a thin fire-light, flick'ring faint and low,
By which a grey-hair'd man is sadly dreaming
O'er pleasures gone, as all life's pleasures go;
Night calls him to her, and he leaves his door,
Silent and dark—and he returns no more.

THE TOILETTE OF A BAKHARA SHEIK'S WIFE.—The lady sat on an angerab (bedstead) surrounded by a number of young and beautiful negro girls, upon each of which a particular duty was incumbent. The one fanned away the flies with a handful of the most beautiful ostrich feathers, whilst the others arranged her hair, an occupation requiring several hours for its performance, for it is no easy task to open all the various matted curls with a single pointed wooden peg. A third slave washed her feet, a fourth ground sulpher to a fine powder between two stones. Another slave held a gourd, filled with merissa, in her hand, to offer her mistress a cooling draught whenever she might demand it; while another girl held a cup containing more than one pound of melted butter, which was poured over the lady's head as soon as the hair was undone. All the butter that dropped off her hair on to her back was rubbed in over her whole body by an additional attendant. In conclusion, her head was powdered with the fine flower of sulpher, which was strewn by handfuls over her greasy hair, where every single grain remained adherent. A massive golden ring was now inserted in her nostrils, and two bracelets of ivory, about two inches in breadth, were put upon her arms. On her forehead three pieces of amber about the size of a gold coin, were hung, and round her neck, several strings of bead, formed of Bohemian glass. A piece of cotton stuff was wound round her loins, the one end of which was thrown gracefully over her right shoulder, and thus the toilette of this black princess was completed. She now admired herself once more in the mirror, represented by half a gourd filled with water.—Pallme's Kordofan.

A DEVOUT MIND.—John Smith, of Newcastle, a middle-aged ship-wright, now in the service of Messrs. Hawks, Crawshay, and Sons, was last week at work on the High Level Bridge, when he fell from a height of 120 feet, and was caught in his descent by the head of a large projecting nail entering his fustain trowsers at the leg; he hung suspended midway nearly two hours, before he could be relieved. Next day it was suggested to him that he should preserve his trowsers and the nail as memorials of his deliverance from death. "Nay," devoutly replied the worthy shipwright (who has been many years a member of the Wesleyan body) "I never thought either of my trowsers or nail while I was hanging in the air. It was the hand of God that held me up. I thought so at that moment, and I think so now."

There have been many definitions of a gentleman, but the prettiest and most poetic is that given by a girl in New York. "A gentleman," said she, "is a human being combining a woman's tenderness with a man's courage."

"My son," said an affectionate mother to her son (who resided at a distance, and expected in a short time to be married), "you are getting very thin." "Yes, mother," he replied, "I am, and when I come next, I think you may see my rib."

Horse and Cattle Medicines.

Don't permit your Horses or cattle to die, when the means of cure are within the reach of all!
The undersigned has spent several years in the study of Veterinary practice in "London and Edinboro'," he has also availed himself of the researches of Leibig, and other celebrated men, who have contributed so much towards a judicious treatment of animals; the principles of our practice consists of the rejection of general bleeding and the total rejection of all medicines that experience has shown is be of a dangerous tendancy. These remedies are in harmony with the vital principle, and when given according to the directions which accompany each article they are capable of exciting and increasing the natural functions, without diminishing or destroying their power, hence are safe in the hands of every one.

TRIUMPHANT SUCCESS OF
Buchan's Hungarian Balsam of Life,
THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY FOR
Colds, Coughs, Asthma, and Consumption.

THE most celebrated and infallible remedy for Colds, Coughs, Asthma, and every form of Pulmonary Consumption, is the HUNGARIAN BALSAM OF LIFE, discovered by that eminent medical chemist, Dr. Buchan, of London, England, and extensively known as the "Great Eastern Remedy."
It has been tested for upwards of seven years in Great Britain and on the continent of Europe where it is universally considered the great, and only remedy for this awful malady, and now introduced to the public under the immediate superintendence of the inventor. Within three years it has been distributed from Maine to Florida, and from Canada to Wisconsin, and its effects are every where alike ASTONISHING and TRIUMPHANT.
As a preventive medicine, and an antidote to the consumptive tendencies of the climate, it is invaluable. As a remedy for severe and obstinate coughs, Inflammation of the Lungs, croup, &c. it is unrivaled. But the Proprietor is to confident of the merit of this great remedy, in the worst forms of consumption, that he prefers to have it used both on DYING INVALID, rather than by persons afflicted with some simple and less dangerous disorder of the throat and lungs:—this may seem strong language, but it is the result of experience in thousands of cases, sustained by the most intelligent and unimpeachable testimony. It is not pronounced in a full ble remedy in all cases, but it is THE MOST INFALLIBLE remedy known to the civilized world. It is the preventive of hereditary consumption—it is the best defender against the influences of climate—it is the best remedy for incipient consumption—and it is the great and only remedy for that fearful softening in the lungs—inflammation of the membrane, and tuberculous decay, which are the last effects of that erroneously supposed to be beyond the reach of medical aid;—the agent or proprietors of other and farther beyond the reach of hope.
Such is not the case with the Hungarian Balsam It is always salutary in its effects—never injurious It is not an opiate—it is not a tonic—it is not a mere expectorant. It is not intended to lull the invalid into a fatal security. It is a great remedy, a grand healing and curative compound; the great and only remedy which medical science and skill has yet produced for the treatment of this hitherto unconquerable malady. It is in fact the best remedy in the world!
[From the John Bull, newspaper, London.]
There is certainly some mysterious and occult virtue in the famous "Hungarian Balsam of Life which the medical faculty are unable to discover or Dr. Buchan would not be permitted for so many years to enjoy the magnificent monopoly of the treatment and cure of Consumption in Great Britain. No satisfactory analysis of this famous compound has ever, to our knowledge, been offered to the public.
