A YOUTHFUL CRIMINAL.

Sensational Paris has Another Tragedy to Talk About.

PARIS, Sept. 22.—A curious instance of juvenile depravity was brought to light in the course of a trial in the Police Court to-day. A young boy, who had been reared out of charity by a shopkeeper on the Boulevard Voltaire, pinched the till to the amount of 500 francs and eloped with a young girl of 14 years, the youthful lover being hardly 15. They lost no time but set up housekeeping on their spoils and were getting along swimmingly, when another lover, aged 13, appeared on the scene. Having discovered that his mistress was unfaithful to him, the till-tapper drew out a long knife and stabbed the unfortunate girl three times, inflicting a mortal wound. The girl is at the hospital in a critical condition, and her assailant, who has been convicted of larceny, was remanded to await her death or recovery.

Supper in New Zealand.

From The Pittsburg Dispatch.

Soon came "huppa," or supper, which several of the women had cooked in a large pot. A large tin dish was laid on the ground and the contents of the pot poured into it, consisting of jacketless potatoes and cockles. Tea with sugar, but no milk, was served in tin cups from a large tin can. The natives used their fingers only, but they gave me a knife, fork and tin plate. After supplying me bountifully they crowded around their dish, and it seemed a race who could devour the most in the least time. What quantities they ate! It was a wonder to me how they found room for it all. They plunged their claws into the dish, grabbed a steaming potato or a handful of juicy cockles, and swallowed them as quickly as they could. It took but a few minutes to finish the dishful. Then everybody smoked. All used clay pipes. Even the pickaninnies enjoyed "the weed."

Mr. Gladstone's Pocket-Money.

This is the latest story about Mr. Gladstone, which is given by the London correspondent of a Manchester evening paper: Chatting the other night with the keeper of a second-hand bookstall in one of the streets leading out of Holborn, the following interesting little story came out: Mr. Gladstone is a frequent purchaser at this bookstall, but he never has any money with him. Mrs. Gladstone will not let him carry any about with him, because he spends it so recklessly, buying everything that takes his fancy, so long as the loss cash hold out. The shopkeeper in question, however, gives the right honourable gentleman a note of his purchases and the money is always punctually sent next day.—London Society.

Overcome by the Shock.

From Texas Siftings.

While Judge Cowing in the New York Court of General Sessions was giving his charge to the jury in a burglary case one of the jurymen fainted. His Honor had just said impressively:

"Gentlemen of the jury, in arriving at a verdict you must take the testimony of the witnesses for the defence into consideration and give them full weight."

At the words "must give them full weight" the juryman swooned away. He was a coal dealer.

The Wood-Carving Industry.

From The New York Telegram.

Berlin has gradually become the headquarters of the carved-wood industry, supplanting Switzerland. Six hundred artists in wood-carving, the same number of turners, and 700 carpenters are engaged in manufacturing such articles as cigar cases, newspaper and picture frames, napkin-rings, etc. The value of the annual export of these articles is 5,000,000 marks, and this is exclusive of the costly carved-wood furniture, the manufacture and export of which is likewise assuming large proportions.

Look Out For Earthquakes.

WALKER IS SHAKING THINGS.

Now what care I what people say,
Howe'er the pinched ones frown,
I'm running this to suit myself,
And rates must tumble down;
Earthquakes! Well, I believe you, son,
You'll think things go to smash,
But from the old the new will rise,
The healer, sir, is cash.
Not loads of money on the spot
In the old-time dealer's pan,
But just enough to save the kit
On this new installment plan;
Like it! Well, look around and see,
What man would not? Now speak!
To make a palace of his home
And pay for it by the week!
You see that happy, pushing throng?
Shove 'em, they'll never wince.
They've found how easy 'tis to live,
They weren't hard to convince;
Such pretty carpets, pictures, plates,
Lace curtains, too, by Jove,
The downiest pillows, bolsters, quilts,
And parlor oven stove,
Fairs, Exhibitions, and autumn shows,
They call the folks together,
But down to Walker's store they slide,
The lot, when they smell cool weather;
Such comfort to sit in a sheltered nook,
Near the faces you love to scan,
To feel that your blessings dared all
From Walker's Installment Plan.
Go out and price things, that's the way to prove it. Investigate and you will smile clear around the back of your neck to think how things have tumbled, and that you had your pick of the prettiest stock of furniture, carpets, stoves, pictures, curtains and dishes ever seen at Fair time. Look out for shocks. He is heeled.

THANKS.

We deem it a duty and it is a pleasure to return our heartfelt thanks to our patrons, friends and the public generally for the kind patronage extended to us during the Exhibition, which far exceeded our most sanguine expectations. We appreciate fully that the superior merits of the DOMINION PIANOS AND ORGANS could alone command the partiality shown us and this increased evidence of the enviable reputation these instruments maintain at home and abroad.
