WOMEN TO FIGHT PRICE OF POTATOES

H. C. of L. Gives Birth to Infant Consumers' League of Toronto.

PLAN MASS MEETING

A potato boycott, to last for one month, was the decision of a large delegation of women, which met yesterday in the city council chamber. The "anti-spud" league decided that to combat the high cost of the staple vegetable it would be necesasry not only to refrain from buying potatoes, but also to curtail the American demand as far as possible. And so for one month those Torontonians who are in sympathy with the move will use on the dinner table substitute vegetables, which may be less palatable, but are certainly less expensive.

MRS. A. HUESTIS, Who was elected president of the Consumers' League of Toronto at the city hall yesterday.

The executive of the newly formed Consumers' League are planning the campaign for the reduction of prices and a mammoth mass meeting will probably be held in Massey Hall next week.

For two long hours the women threshed the question, and then the deadlock was broken by Mrs. A. F. Rutter, who said, "We came here with a fixed object and we haven't reached it yet. Are we going to pledge ourselves to refuse to use potatoes for one month?"

And then by a standing vote of all those present the decision, which may be momentous, was reached.

Some 80 women were in the gathering, representing the following societies: Hebrew Maternity Club, W.C.T.U., Daughters of Canada, Daughters of Scotland, Volunteer Corps, St. John's Ambulance, Golden Rule Guild, Deer Park Home and School Club, Liberal Club, Women's Patriotic League, United Voters, Toronto Travel Club, Home and School Council, Girl Guides, Conservative Women's Club, Boys' Home, Carlton Home and School Club, National Council of Women, Toronto Humane Society, Co-operation of Jewish clubs, and Presbyterian Social Service Association.

All went along as merry as a marriage bell until Mrs. Willoughby Cummings moved a resolution approving of daylight saving on the ground that it would help to relieve the potato shortage. A vote was taken, resulting favorably for the motion by 48 to 26. Altho the matter was a side issue, there was considerable warm feeling among the women and the question split a gathering, which had hitherto been characterized by unanimity.

Endorse Local Council.

In opening the meeting, Mrs. F. A. Fish called for the appointment of a chairman and a secretary and Mrs. A. C. Courtice and Mrs. Campbell MacIvor were chosen for the positions.

Mrs. J. H. Seigel started the "potato discussion" by moving the following resolution:

"That this conference endorse the effort of the Toronto Local Council of Women to reduce the price of potatoes and the high cost of living and that an organized campaign of ways and means be inaugurated at once."

Mrs. L. M. Parsons said she had made an exhaustive inquiry into the potato supply and was convinced that Quebec province has large quantities, more than necessary for home consumption and threw out the question, "Where are they going to?"

Mrs. Huestis said that when a doctor administers medicine the patient wishes to know the reason and she wanted to know why the Canadian public is afflicted with the H. C. of L. Mrs. Heustis then moved the resolution declaring the boycott. A second motion, which she brought in late in the meeting providing for the formation of a fair price board, was killed.

Mrs. Stevens moved that a deputation be sent to Ottawa to urge that an embargo be placed on Canadian potatoes, but this motion was also lost.

In the formation of the association, which was later named the Consumers' League of Toronto, Mrs. A. M. Huestis was elected president and Mrs. Campbell MacIvor secretary.

TEMPLE CLUB DINNER.

This club, for which a charter was secured from the Ontario government in October last, held a dinner last night (Friday, 23rd inst.) in their club rooms, near the corner of Queen and Church streets. Bro. Fuery, formerly the popular caterer for the old McConkey restaurant on King street, supervised the excellent repast. A large number of new members were elected, and amongst those who took an active part in the meeting were: Bro. Geo. Guest, Ald. Maxwell, Dr. Herbert Adams, J. C. Gorman, A. Cahoon, G. H. Robert, Geo. McKelvey and others. Bro. F. W. Mervill was in the chair. An invitation for affiliation with the national league of Masonic clubs of the United States was received and accepted. A special evening address has been arranged and it was decided to continue the room club luncheons.

MILADY WANDERS MIDST DELIGHTS

Show of Spring Fashions at Dineen's Entrances the Most Fastidious.

Spring is one of the delights of life to the woman who has her wardrobe ready to meet it. Because weather has not been conducive to the blossoming forth of flowers and debutantes the purchasing of spring costumes has not been as brisk as in other seasons. Now that May is knocking at the door shopping must be done, and before deciding on a purchase, shoppers are invited to visit the showrooms at Dineen's, where a stock of the many things milady may need is ready for her inspection.

As in spring the thoughts of the young man lightly turn to thoughts of love, so those of the woman, young or old, turn to her hat. At Dineen's cases and tables are laden with fashion's latest offerings in chapeaux ranging in price from $5 to $25. Sailors, so popular this season, may be had in lissere straw, plainly tailored or trimmed with French flowers. Satin hats with mounts are among the more simple products of the designer in millinery and the graceful French veil is seen on some of the more chic models. Among the more expensive are creations which are sure to appeal to the woman of exclusive taste.

Taffeta dresses in navy and taupe show variety in design, some with puffs on the hips, others loosely girdled and draped. All have dressy touches and are differently priced at from $35 to $65. A special lot of frocks that offer inducements in price are in serge, crepe and combinations, in colors black, navy, taupe, copen, plum, white, sand and grey. In suits a blue serge, plainly tailored, lined thruout with flowered silk and finished with bone buttons, was noticed as both serviceable and seasonable.

Other suits are finished with braid or embroidery and vestee fronts. Jersey suits are included in the showing. For wear with light dresses there is the long coat, so desirable a part of every woman's outfit. These are in gaberdine, silver-tone, serge and tricotine, in dark and the lighter shades, some lined thruout.

Cool evenings and outdoor sports demand the sweater-coat. Here are variety in shade and knit at prices ranging from $7.50 to $15. Pullovers, regularly priced at $7.50, are now selling at $4.95. These are in all colors. In silk attractive sweater coats, regularly priced at $15, are now marked down to $9.75. A large stock of blouses include the weaves and designs of the year, those in georgette including a range that varies in make and fabrics, prices in keeping, and ranging from $8.50 to $25. In crepe de chine prices range from $7.50 to $18 and in voile large choice is offered and all purses met in the prices which range from $2.95 to $22.50.

In silk hosiery high prices do not exist unless the purchaser seeks a particular brand, for Dineen's show cases have lines which may be had at 49c, reduced from 75c. Other lines are variously marked at from $1.50 to $5.95, the color range including brown, black, white, natural, grey and black with white clocs. Don't forget to give us a call at the old stand. # SOCIETY NEWS

CONDUCTED BY MRS. EDMUND PHILLIPS.

His Excellency Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador to the United States, will shortly pay a visit to Toronto, and during his stay will be the guest of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Lionel Clarke at Government House.

Preparations are already being made for the imperial press conference, to be held in Canada in August. The city will give a dinner for the delegates on the 9th of August, and the press will entertain at luncheon.

The Upper Canada College Rifle Corps gave a dance last night of one hundred in the assembly hall at the college, which was decorated with the college colors, pennants, flags, etc., and an orchestra played during the evening. Major and Mrs. Grant received with Mr. J. Y. W. Brathwaite, captain of the rifle corps, Mrs. Grant wearing a becoming gown of dark blue satin and net, with aquamarine ornaments. Supper was served in the dining-hall, where the decorations were again of blue and white, with flags and palms, the dance lasting from 8 to 12.30 o'clock. Those present included: The officers, non-c's and men of the company, the St. Andrew's College prefects, the St. Margaret's College prefects, the Branksome Hall prefects, the Misses Olis Wilson, Lulu Beggs, Barbara Logie, Dorothy Hunter, Vera Birkett, Ursula Colleran, Laura Stone, Phyllis Elliott, Jessie Mackie, Mary McCormack, Margaret Innes, Blanche Burton, G. Menendez, H. Dennehay, A. Gooderham, the master of U.C.C.

The Originals' Club gave a very successful ball last night at the King Edward as a wind-up to the campaign and tag day, and in memory of the battle of St. Julien, in 1915. Over 300 were present and danced in the Pompeilan room to the excellent orchestra of the house. Supper was served in the Victoria room at small tables decorated with spring flowers. Col. H. S. Cooper, M.L.A., received in the Louis room, and Mrs. O. B. Sheppard, the latter wearing a very handsome gown of violet sequins over satin, with topaz ornaments and a bouquet of violets and sweet peas. A few of the originals present included the following: Mr. C. H. Perks, Mr. T. P. Everfield, Mr. W. J. Lane, Mr. Fred Lorsch, Mr. D. D. Wilson (the capable secretary of the club), Mr. W. Braniviere, Captain Williams, Mr. F. J. Waters, Mr. Frank Munday. Some of the guests were: General and Mrs. Elmsley, the latter very handsome in a jet gown, with white tulle, and jet shoulder-straps, and a jet bandeau in her hair, and a rope of pearls; Dr. Victor McWilliams; Mrs. McWilliams, black satin and jet frock, with diamonds and a red rose; Col. Harvey; Miss Bonnell, in black satin; Mr. Broderston; Miss Broderston, black net, embroidered with gold; Miss Potts, black tulle; Mr. Belmont; Miss Belmont, pale blue taffeta, with corsage bouquet of pink sweet peas; Mr. J. W. Mackenzie, Mr. Babayan; Mrs. Babayan, gold lace and fringe, with orange satin; Mr. and Mrs. Sprott, the latter in dark blue and silver brocade; Miss Parker, black tulle, with moonlight jet and corsage of crystal and jet; Miss Trotter, rose taffeta, cut in petals; Col. Barker, V.C.; Miss Colmon, in black; Mr. Joe Ross; Miss Phyllis Ross, gold embroidered net, over satin, and a red rose at her girdle; Canon Scott, the Rev. J. Boal; Miss M. Shaw, black brocade, with corsage of blue and gold; Miss Shaw, blue and gold brocade; Mr. Porter; Mrs. Porter, white and silver brocade, with a train and diamond ornaments; Mr. and Mrs. Walker; the latter very handsome in white satin and crystal, with a bouquet of Beauty roses; Capt. Keys; Miss Rogers, mauve taffeta and tulle; Mrs. Jago, black lace over gold; Capt. Jago; Mr. and Mrs. Pepall, the latter in black lace; Col. Rogers, Mr. Buller; Miss Williamson, black, with crystal; Mr. Bruce Gardner.

Mrs. John Baird Laidlaw gave a tea yesterday to meet the students and staff of 1920 of the mental hygiene extension course, when she received in a black satin and chiffon gown with diamond ornaments. Mrs. Torrance Hincks, who received with her, was also in black. The drawing-room was delightful, spring flowers filling every available space. In the dining-room the table was covered with a cloth of Venetian lace, and centred with an antique silver basket filled with tulips, Mrs. R. T. Babbits and Mrs. Charles Mitchell pouring out the tea and coffee. Those assisting were Miss Helen Bull, Miss Katherine McMaster, Mrs. Stewart Malcolm, Mrs. Cairns, Miss Wallbridge, Miss Kathleen McMurrich and Miss Margaret Fletcher.

Mr. J. B. Laidlaw and his daughters are expected back in town today from the south.

Miss Margaret King gave a small bridge party yesterday afternoon for Miss Edith Watson, about forty more girls coming in to tea at 5 o'clock. Mrs. King wore a French gown of gold satin, embroidered with gold and trimmed with old blue velvet; Miss King looked very pretty in Chinese blue brocaded chiffon. The polished table was arranged with real lace and a large bowl of pink sweet peas surrounded with vases of the sweet-smelling flowers. Mrs. Donald and Mrs. A. J. McKendry poured out the tea and coffee, assisted by the Misses Helen and Lallie Watson, Miss Helen Scott and Miss Agnes MacKenzie.

The Hon. J. D. Reid has arrived at the King Edward from Ottawa, and Mr. F. E. Kilvert from Winnipeg.

Mrs. Woods, Foxbar road, gave a tea yesterday afternoon for her daughter, Miss Helen Woods, whose marriage will take place in June. The hostess wore navy blue taffeta and Miss Woods was in orchid georgette crepe. The tea table was arranged with mosaic lace and a wicker basket of yellow orchids, sweet peas and maidenhair fern. Mrs. Oliver Clarke and Mrs. R. B. Hamilton poured out the tea and coffee, assisted by the bridesmaids of the future wedding, Miss Margaret Bath, Oakville; Miss Margaret Creelman, Guelph; Miss Gladys Anderson, Miss Dolly Hunter.

The Big Sisters' Association is giving a luncheon at the King Edward on May 3.

Mrs. Foster will arrive in town from Guelph to stay with Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Foster, Heath street.

Mrs. Street and Miss Mary Cayley are leaving town on May 5 for England. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Langton will join Mrs. Street later on and return home with her in the autumn.

Miss Kathleen Jenkins, who has made such a success of the dancing club at the King Edward during the winter as the secretary, after a holiday spent with her family in Petrolea, will be at the Clifton, Niagara Falls, Ont., during June, July and August, and no doubt many of the friends she has made in Toronto will look her up in her new abode.

The Bishop Strachan Association will give a dinner for the Old Girls on May 7 at the King Edward.

Miss P. McCausland was the hostess of a girl's luncheon yesterday at the Toronto Golf Club for Miss Betty Greene, when her guests included Mrs. E. Poupore, Mrs. Geoffrey O'Brian, Miss Margaret Dyment, Miss Kitty Armour, Mrs. Aemilius Jarvis, jr., Miss Constance Greening, Miss Rosamond Ryckman, Miss Marjorie Beaty, Miss Ruth Smith, Miss Peplar. Afterward three tables of bridge were played.

Mr. Erik Fersberg and Mr. Theo. H. Miller are at the King Edward from Stockholm.

Mrs. George Hutty and Miss Grace Hutty have returned from California and are with Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Hutty, 400 Brunswick avenue.

Spring flowers, bunting and myriads of flags, completely transformed the Arena Gardens last night when the Shriners gave one of the largest and most successful bal masques ever held in Toronto. The society has given many noted entertainments, but last night's event eclipsed all former efforts. Of particular interest was the grand march when all the costumed guests paraded before the illustrious potentate, and the scene was one not easily forgotten. The costumes were many and varied, and about two thousand were present. Among the strikingly original dresses were Mrs. Beverley Palmer as spring, Mrs. A. F. Gorman as a flower girl, Mrs. C. F. Smythe as Little Buttercup, Miss Dagmar Porter, a gipsey queen, Miss Olga Griffin, Juliet; Miss Madge Blake, Lady Macbeth; Mr. Norman Tennyson, Lord Fauntleroy; Mr. Howard Armstrong, Pierrot; Mr. Leo Sullivan in a Dickens character, Sydney Carton; Mr. Grant Stewart, Romeo; Mr. Gorman Artheur as an Indian. The Shriner's had their band, and Miss Lois Landon executed some original Egyptian dances. Much of the evening's success is attributed to the energetic committee, and the Messrs. Charles Soady, Todd and Brown.

A DIMINUTIVE GRAND PIANO.

In our own Canada and in many other parts of the world—Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, South America and now France—the art pianos of Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Limited, take a first place. The Diminutive Grand is a very popular style, both at home and abroad, adapted for the many homes where the parlor is only of moderate size. Our readers are invited to inspect this piano at the firm's warerooms, 193-197 Yonge street, Toronto.

SELINA TRIES TRAVELING

THE painter guy is shore losin' his speed 'n' everything, with nothin' on his hip pocket he don't seem to get no inspiration no more. You ain't seen him around much lately on account of him grabbin' me all the time for stills for his new picture what's called: "All Birds, Save the Hooting Owl, Was Mute." He's got a great subject alright, but there ain't no kick in it, and he cramps my style fierce, so I left him flat today and havin' long ago chose the path of honor and virtue I made a home run to the potash factory what advertised for a commercial gadder.

The main picaroon musta liked my chatter some, cause right away he gives me a bunch of soap and a case of samples and pushes me out the door with them words: "Remember, Swanny, that only small fishes travel in shoals."

"You said it, boy," I pipes back, even tho I didn't know whether he did or not, and believe me, I learned a lotta human nature before I did two blocks. I worked fast and started shovin' cakes in the houses and at the very first door I was knabbed by a dame with a long smile, who says to I:

"Leave me have another sample fur the lady upstairs." And I in all innocence flipped her a coupla bars, and when the next one said the same thing I kinda got thinkin' I had judged my own sects all wrong. "It's shore un-natural-kind of them to look sharp for flat B, I says, planissamo to myself, but when every grafter in the whole two blocks got handin' out the same line I got wise that it was a little domestic hokum they was pullin', and to the next dame what sprung it, I says to her: "Not by a flaskful, unless you can produce said other party from upstairs."

"Aw! have a heart," she says to me. "Times is hard and I shore need a little free suds to wash off this here fifteen dollar coal dust I've been forced to use this wintry weather."

And bein' kind of heart and kinda anxious to get rid of my stock I handed over a handful, then beat it for Rosedale, and bein' the first ladylike job I ever was recipient of, I got real snappy and marked the samples up to a quarter and the quarter bars down to one green back and a bit, and at every door I did a monologue on the wonders of suds as a "elikser" of youth. And did I cash in good, and to the satisfaction of all? I'll tell anybody I did.

ANGELICA.

(Copyright, 1920, by the Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

Angelica, a name of much more substance than the pallid Angela, is still one of the "angelic names" which feminine fancy delights to bestow on its girl children. It means, of course, "angelic" and seems difficult to reconcile with the behavior of some of the small daughters whom one finds bearing the name.

Angelos was a Greek word meaning "heavenly messenger," hence "angel." It first became a name in the Byzantium Empire when it was bestowed as an epithet upon persons of surpassing beauty.

It was applied most often as a masculine name, and there was a Carmelite saint called Angelo, who established it as a baptismal name. In his honor, the feminine also became popular, and Italian history records many instances of its use.

Angelica sprang to fame since it named the faithless lady of romance for whose sake Orlando lost his heart and his senses. Tho she was the invention of Boiardo and Ariosto, the romantic flavor which the story gave her name, brought Angelica to instant favor. England liked the name and adopted it. In France it became Angelique, and Italy produced the other forms of Angioletta and Anzioleta, tho Angelica continued the reigning favorite.

Angelica's talismanic gem is the pearl. It guards the purity and sweetness of her, brings her friends, and much charm. Sunday is her lucky day and two her lucky number. The wild rose is her flower.
