THE TENTED FIELD.

THE 32ND AND 33RD BATTALIONS UNDER CANVAS ON THE FLATS OF THE MAITALND.

We announced, as our last issue went to press, the arrival in Goderich of straggling companies of volunteers and the tidings of the approach of numbers more from all parts of Bruce and Huron, for the purpose of undergoing their annual eight days' drill, in brigade camp, on the flats of the Maitland. By 3 P. M., on Tuesday, six companies of the 32nd or Bruce Battalion and eight companies of the 33rd or Huron Battalion had all safely arrived. In a space of time, incredibly short to an onlooker, the tents were pitched and camp life begun. We do not know any locality fitter for all the purposes of military training than that which is now so busy a scene. Situated on the east bank of the Maitland, at the foot of the ridge on which Maitlandville is built, where the river takes a bend towards the lake, with any quantity of level ground all around, a range of 1000 yards, if desired, in front for target practice, and a pretty steep ascent behind on which to manœuvre skirmishers; what more could commanding officers desire? A lively and brilliant spectacle it presents now, at any rate; gay with bunting, white with tents, and dotted over with uniforms scarlet and grey. Stirring sounds too are to be heard there, the winding of the bugle, the crack of the rifle, the clatter of hoofs as officers ride fast and furiously, the hoarse command, and, at intervals, the inspiring strains of one or other of the splendid Battalion Bands. Our citizens crowd thither to renew almost forgotten sensations, and we do not blame them, for a prettier sight is not often to be seen in this vicinity The force is lodged in 105 tents; 48 towards the south are devoted to the Bruce Battalion; and, in 57 to the north, the Huron Battalion is domiciled. The tents of the rank and file stand on the lower ground towards the river bank, while those of the officers occupy the slightly elevated plateau adjoining. In the centre of these latter, distinguished by having in front a tall flagstaff with an immense Union Jack floating from it, is the tent of the Brigade Major, Lieut. Col. Service, of Stratford, who is in charge of the camp. The tents of the respective Colonels of each Battalion may be distinguished by the same brave old flag fluttering at the entrance. Business is not neglected here. The Battalions parade at 6 and 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., and are drilled two hours each time. This is no child's play under the hot sun of the past two days. Two companies each day engage in target practice at ranges of 200, 400 and 600 yards. The shooting all through has been very fair and we may expect to see an interesting and closely contested match on 22nd and 23d inst. A Band plays at 10 a. m. at 2 p. m. and at the officer's mess at 6 p. m. The officers' mess is catered for by Mr Joshua Callaway who is acknowledged to be the right man in the right place. The brigade canteen is kept by Harry Reed, who is a universal favorite. The men amuse themselves in all sorts of ways. Some endeavor to sleep all they can, others try how little sleep they can do with, and impress concertinas, violins and all sorts of instruments into their service. The inmates of one tent we passed, were piously engaged in singing psalms. Mr. Stewart of Blyth's perambulating, photograph car is greatly patronised and apparently with satisfactory results; for we overheard a Belfast friend of our's, on coming out with his picture, shout gleefully—"Would you like to see an Irish Nose!" Everyone seems enthusiastic in drill and target practice, amenable to discipline and full of health and jollity. Therefore, of course, the hospital is empty and the four able surgeons have nothing to do. Below we give a detailed statement of the composition of the two Battalions, which we believe will be found correct:—

Total	800

A goodly gathering of stalwart and gallant young fellows, worthy sons of the pioneers who hewed for themselves homes out of the forests of the Huron Tract. We venture to predict that for muscle and efficiency this Brigade camp will be classed by the Adjutant-General, at the Review this afternoon, as second to none in the Dominion of Canada. We would, in conclusion, acknowledge our indebtedness to Adjutants Jackson and McNab, for the trouble they took in procuring for us the figures which we now publish.

Goderich Horticultural Society

FALL SHOW.

This Exhibition, which took place, in the Drill shed, Goderich, on Wednesday, 14th inst, we think, with out the slighest exaggeration, was altogether the best and most successful held here, under the auspices of the Horticultural Society. The public will now be ready to acknowledge that this association has been quietly and unostentatiously carrying out an excellent work, disseminating a knowledge of the varieties of fruit most suitable for the soil and climate of this section, and judiciously giving premiums to the best specimens, after careful and impartial discrimination. The total entries in all departments this year were nearly one-third over last years' list and the visitors must have numbered over 500. We are indebted to the courtesy of the Directors for an opportunity of inspecting the magnificent display, before the Hall was thrown open to the public; and P. Adamson, Esq., the obliging secretary, is entitled to our hearty thanks for his attention. The following are the names of the judges and their departments:

FLOWERS—Col. Ritchie and Dr. Woods (Capt. Murray, who was appointed, did not come)

VEGETABLES—Messrs Raby Williams and Goldthrope (Mr. McGregor also was appointed but did not appear).

FRUIT—Dr. Stokes and Messrs Hayden and Ellis.

LADIES' WORK—Mrs Reynolds, and Misses Parsons and Scimmings.

There was no hurrying over of the work on the part of these ladies, and gentlemen. Every article received the most rigid and impartial scrutiny and we expect to hear that the various competitors were satisfied with the result.

Of Apples, we never saw a handsomer array. The Western Fair or Provincial Exhibition may have more numerous entries, but certainly will not be able to show better varieties, or larger specimens, than those exhibited at this show. Among the winning collections we noticed the following names:—

FALL APPLES.—Duchess of Oldenburg, St Lawrence, William's Favorite, Keswick Codlin, Hubbardson Nonsuch, Autumn Strawberry, Gravenstein, Canada Red, Maidens' Blush, Porter &c.

WINTER APPLES.—Baldwin, R. I. Greening, Fameuse, Northern Spy, Swaar, Minister, twenty oz Pippin, Melon, Ribston Pippin, Renette Canada, Belmont &c. &c.

The "Northern Spy" which commonly shows to advantage here, was not extra good, this season. Pears, we believe, are generally a lighter crop than last year. Nevertheless they made a fair appearance. The plate adjudged the best was, if our recollection serves us, a plate of "Bartletts." The Directors will have to make more room for the Fruit department by next year. Classes were inconveniently crowded together. The grapes alone were worth going to see. We counted some 16 or 17 different varieties. The size of the "Rogers 19" and "Ontario" attracted general attention, and the judges were eloquent about the flavor of the "Sweetwater"; fortunate judges, who can taste as well as look! Plums were well represented In the best and largest collection, eight (we think) splendid varieties were submitted. The Flowers were a lovely sight; the centre table being, if possible, more gorgeously crowded than on former occasions. The prizes were pretty well divided among last year's veterans. There was a creditable turn-out of Vegetables. The first prize potato was "Breeze's Peerless"; the "Early Rose" coming in second. The best collection of potatoes comprised the following varieties:—Early Rose, Harrison, Gleesom, Goodrich, Garnet Chile, and Prince Albert—six in all.

But O, ladies of Goderich, where were you, or rather, where were the elegant or useful productions of your leisure hours? We admired the worsted work, raised and not raised. We were charmed with the dainty drawing of a Cathedral scene. We tried to follow the tasteful intricacies of the hair work. And, anticipating the coming winter, we rolled ourselves, in imagination, in one of those comfortable quilts. But, how is it, that in the Town of Goderich, with perhaps 1500 lady inhabitants, there were only some 20 entries of ladies' work? If there is not an improvement next time we shall castigate somebody severely.

THE PRINCE ALFRED.

WEDNESDAY, 14th Sept., 1870

Sarnia to-day presents a gay appearance The public vessels on the river, and many business houses being decorated with flags; while the streets are thronged with civilians and military in every conceivable uniform. Steamers from Detroit and other American cities are pouring in their quota of sight seers, while the Great Western and Grand Trunk are contributing large numbers to the crowds already thronging all the avenues and streets of the town. The troops were inspected yesterday, by Col Roberts the Adjt-Gen of Canada who minutely examined every detail of their arms and equipment; examining each man separately and giving advice and encouragement to all. This gentleman, kindly bearing towards the officers and men, and the apparent absence of pride or any thing approaching to hauteur have gained the good will of all ranks in the troops assembled here. The citizens of Sarnia have invited him and the officers in rank to a grand ball to take place to-morrow. The great field-day was come off ending in a sham-fight along the banks of the river below Sarnia. The immense crowds of spectators which had previously watched the manœuvering of the troops near the camp ground, crowded every imaginable position on the river, where a view of the strife could be seen. The first part of the action was between the cavalry and the gunboat—but the superior range of the Armstrongs soon told on them—they having only their ordinary carbines to defend themselves with, were soon nonplussed, but retired from the scene of action under cover of a battery of artillery which opened fire on the boat at short range. The battery was partly protected from the ship's guns by an earth-work formed by an angle of the road. It evidently soon told on the boat, as in spite of Capt Thomson's determined resistance all the men being engaged in the action—his fire was silenced by the battery on shore, he being apparently short of ammunition, for he withdrew under a heavy fire without replying to that of the enemy. It was on this occasion that the Prince Alfred showed her greatest speed as she fairly flew through the water rivalling the scenery in the velocity of her motion—while the steam fairly whistled as it escaped from her pipes. After the boat got out of range the firing ceased and the troops withdrew to their encampments—the vast assemblage of spectators also left the scene of action. But the town of Sarnia through the night appeared to be thronged with visitors.

Sept. 15th.—The boat left to-day about 12 noon for Target practice in lake Huron, there being a band of music on board, and a large number of officers and their ladies, including the Adjt-Gen, Mr McKellar, McKenzie, G H Wyatt, and others The firing was conducted under Capt Thomson, and was very successful; meriting the approval of the military men present.—After the practice the boat sailed down the river past Sarnia 18 miles, arriving back at the wharf at 6:30 and landed the guests.

She left Sarnia this morning (15th) at 1 a. m., the Adjt-Gen. and Mr Wyatt being on board for Goderich where she arrived soon after 6 o'clock.

ARRIVAL OF LIEUT.-GOV. ARCHIBALD.

THE FIRST LEVEE.

THE REGULARS AND THE VOLUNTEERS.

THE ESCAPE OF RIEL.

(By Telegraph from Globe Correspondent.)

FORT GARRY, Sept. 3, via St. Paul, Sept. 13.

Lieutenant-Governor Archibald arrived here last night, and was received by Col. Wolseley and Mr. Donald Smith. He is staying at the Fort.

The Lieutenant-Governor holds a first levee on Tuesday, when his commission will be read.

All the regular troops have left.

Both battalions of Volunteers have arrived.

(From another Correspondent.)

ST. PAUL, Minn, Sept. 13.

A gentleman just from Fort Garry asserts that there is a bitter feeling among the French against the overbearing acts of the Volunteers, and against what they term the violation of the pledges made by the Canadian Government. The day before the troops arrived, Riel told this gentleman that he intended to turn over the Government to Governor Archibald, peaceably, and everything would be all right. O'Donoghue, however, doubted all being right, but until the troops had arrived within a few miles of Fort Garry, Riel was still confident that the arrangement was still to be carried out in good faith; that the troops had no other than the pacific intentions which their commander and Government had professed, and that Gov. Archibald was coming before them to receive the Government at his hands. These assurances had been given him by Bishop Tache on behalf of Governor Archibald and the Canadian Government; but at daylight on Tuesday 23rd of August, word was brought to him that as the troops were advancing up the Red River from the Stone Fort, they were making prisoners of everybody passing through their line; that they were advancing in fighting array, capturing horses and mounting them with riflemen; and that they were prepared for battle. He at once saw that he had been deceived, and that these warlike demonstrations in a country with no enemy in front, the preparations for battle where all resistance had previously been disarmed by pacific protestations, had a hostile purpose; that it was a treacherous ambuscade, of which the Provisional Government were to be the victims.

After a hasty breakfast, Riel, O'Donoghue and Lepine and a few friends took their horses and fled, the two former going to Scratching River, where they separated, O Donoghue going to Pembina and Riel to St. Joseph, on American territory, while Lepine sought refuge in the settlements west of Fort Garry.

The Rev. Mr. Patterson, Church of England chaplain of the troops, and Rev. Mr. Poor, Roman Catholic chaplain, have arrived.

The New Nation says that since the ar
