VANCOUVER GRAIN PORT

W. F. Alloway Predicts a Great Future for the Coast City When the Panama Canal is Opened for Traffic.

Vancouver, Feb. 11.—"Vancouver is destined soon to become one of the greatest grain shipping ports in the Dominion. It will draw from a vast territory extending east as far as Regina and Moose Jaw, and bounded there by the international boundary and by the Peace river in the north. The comparatively short rail haul and cheap water transportation facilities afforded by the Pacific route are the factors which will determine the problem in your favor. No time should be lost in providing elevator facilities." said W. F. Alloway, a millionaire Winnipeg private banker.

"The fears expressed at the recent grain convention at Calgary that the wheat may swell and be damaged while traversing the tropics is absolutely groundless. These hardy varieties grown in Alberta and western Saskatchewan, if properly harvested, will withstand the extremes of any warm climate. Fast as Vancouver is growing its real jump into the front rank of American cities will not begin until the completion of the Panama canal. I forsee the period when British Columbia lumber will be laid down in New York cheaper that it can be hauled from here to Calgary. When that day arrives Vancouver will become the front door of Canada, rather than its 'back door' as it is styled at present.

" "I was amused at the absurdity of the report that Galveston, Texas, was likely to enter the lists as a formidable rival of Vancouver is bidding for the Alberta wheat crop. If such a state of things come to pass involving a long railway haul to the Gulf of Mexico it will be when the millennium has dawned, and business men have become philanthropists. Why, Manitoba has yet to make its first wheat shipment via Galveston. Is is more likely that the wheat grown 900 miles west of Winnipeg would seek the same route, when it has in Vancouver an ocean port at its door, and one that is open the year round)"

Mr. Alloway may be regapded as an authority on this question as he was the pioneer wheat buyer in Manitoba, having first engaged in the business 39 years ago. Many are the interesting reminences he can recall of the life at Fort Garry in those early days. His early wheat purchase was sacked by the farmers and hauled to steamboat landings on the Red river, when they were shipped to Moorehead, Minn., and thence by rail to Duluth, and via the great lakes and St. Lawrence to Montreal en route to Europe. It was largely through his efforts that the Ogilvies, then and now large owners of flour mills at Montreal were induced to erect elevators in Manitoba and engage in the grain trade in an extensive way.

Death of John Harvey.

(Contributed.)

We regret to record the death of an old timer in the person of John Harvey of the Coulee district, which occurred on his homestead on Friday morning, Feb. 12, at the age of 52 years. Heart trouble was the cause of his death. Mr. Harvey was well and most favorably known here having been one of the early settlers in the Coulee district. He leaves a widow and family of eight, two sons and six daughters, to whom the sincere sympathy of their many friends is extended in their bereavement. The funeral took place to the Cottonwood cemetery on Sunday afternoon, and was largely attended which goes to show the esteem in which the deceased was held by the district. He took quite an interest in public affairs, and in politics was a Liberal.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Ross of Grand Coulee, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Scott and Rev. Mr. Gross of Pense.

Stomach Distress.

Every family here ought to keep some diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do east seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take one triangule after supper tonight. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for all stomach misery, because it will take hold of your food and digest it just the sam e as if your stomach wasn't there.

Actual, prompt, relief for all your stomach misery is at your Pharmacist, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure a case of Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

EXPLORERS STILL ALIVE.

Port Townsend, Wash., Feb. 15.—News has just been received from the Arctic ocean to the effect that Captain Wm. Mogg and his crew of four men in the whaling schooner Olga, long thought to have been lost in a gale at sea fifteen months ago, are still alive, and passing the Arctic winter at Barrow.

The news comes in a letter from Capt. Mogg, written Nov. 1, 1908, and dispatched by Eskimo messenger to Peller City, 800 miles over an almost impassible trail, thence by dog team routes through Nome and St. Michael to Valdez and by steamer to Puget Sound.

The Mogg expedition left this port in June 1907, equipped as a whaling venture in waters of the Arctic. It had the backing of the Geographical Society of London and planned to visit the Bankland district, a region that has not been visited by white people since the visit of Capt. McClure in 1832.

The actual destination of the expedition was point Cape Prince Albert, northeast of Point Barrow. No news has been received of Captain Mogg since Sept. 1907 when the cutter Thetis went north to investigate a charge made against him of abducting an Eskimo woman.

The following is reported to have been found on the walls of a deserted cabin in the heart of Nebraska: "Fore miles frum a nabor; sixteen miles frum a railroad; forty-one miles frum timber; one mile frum water; God bless our home! We're gone to Saskatchewan to get a fresh start."

"Of course I'll love and honor her,"
The blushing bridegroom said,
And then he gave the bride a hearty smack,
Concluding, "But I want it understood,

On her first night at the seaside lodgings the visitor found it. Incredibable it seemed, for the landlady had appeared a neat, cleanly lady. But as the lady visitor knew little of her landlady and nothing of her predecessor in the apartment she decided to mention the matter at the breakfast. "I found something in my bedroom," she began, and the landlady interrupted. "Then you must have brought it with you." "I am quite sure I didn't," said the visitor "for I counted all mine before I left home. But if you insist that this sovereign is mine, of course"—London Chronicle.

"Strive on, little man," said the benevolent old gentleman, "and some day you may be president."

"Ah, that's a pipe," scoffed the youngster in the green sweater. "Me parents spoiled me chances long ago"

"And how did they spoil your chances?"

"Why they forgot to name me Bill dat's how."—Washington Star.

Mr. Edward Lloyd, the famous tenor, once sang in a friends house. At the conclusion of the song a clergyman, who was evidently unaware of the identity of the singer, approached him. "Really sir," he said, "you should not waste your voice like this We need another tenor in our choir, and I shall be happy to give you £30 a year. Think it over!"

"Do you ever drink to excess?" asked the girl's father.

"I never touch liquor, sir."

"How about tobacco."

"I do not smoke. I have never had a cigar or a cigarette in my mouth."

"Ever gamble?"

"Never, I do not know one card from another."

"I suppose you swear sometimes?"

"No sir, an oath has never passed my lips."

"Um! All right. Come out and have a stick of candy with me."

A new society, the "Aristocratische Nudio Natio Allanz," has been formed in Berlin, Germany, for the purpose of creating a return to the nudity in which men were born. Men and women of high rank are joining the society. One amusing incongruity is that the lady members insist on wearing fashionable coiffures, hats and veils. But Berlin needn't get gay and shower bouquets at itself as having the only original nude student artists. Canada has had a "Nudio Natio Allanz" (whatever that means in United States English) for several years past—ever since Clifford Sifton found that wandering tribe of Doukhobors adrift in the Czar's demain—and we are willing to wager that the Douk nudists can go the Berliners the limit and then some.

Edmonton, Alta., Feb. 11.—According to a judgment handed down by Justice Stewart, in the case of York vs the city of Edmonton, there is a possibility that the city may be compelled to refund the license-fees of hotels in the city for several years back, amounting to some $25,000. In the case in question plaintiff brought suit for recovery of certain monies paid the city as licenses for the operation of barrooms in the Windsor and Alberta hotels, the fee in each case being $400. Plaintiff based his claim on the fact that he paid a floor space tax, and consequently could not be compelled to pay a license fee in addition. He won his suit and has been awarded $768.31. The city may appeal the case.

HON. J. P. MABEE

The sittings of the railway commission in Regina last week gave those who were in attandance their first opportunity of seeing and hearing the chairman of the commission, Hon. J. P. Mabee. The Winnipeg Free Press puts it pretty well when it says:

Hon. Mr. Mabee is a big man physically and good to look at. He is well built, a dark complexion, dark hair, untouched as yet by grey, and he has a strong kindly face. His voice is deep, clear and resonant, and expressing thoughts which are invariably worth hearing, it lends extra force to the delivery. The impression the man leaves with a casual acquaintance is one of power, purpose and capacity equal to whatever task offers, large or small.

He is quick to grasp a situation, a point or a problem as the case may be. From coast to coast he travels and he meets some clever lawyers. To him they are all alike. Try as they may they cannot cloud the issue nor throw sand in the chairman's eyes. He gets to the basic principle by the shortest route and pricks the hot air bubbles of the shrewdest legal counsel with the sharp points of wit and clear mindedness. He is kindly, fair, stern in condemnation, but always ready to hear the complaint of the humblest applicant for justice. He shows a dislike for red-tape methods. His nature is against it. He is a man quick to make up his mind when all the facts are in on both sides, and to render his ruling. He seems to recognize the fact, that for years the great railroad companies have, figuratively, walked over the private citizen, bulldozed municipalities and had their own way generally. One by one he is adjusting the complaints that have long been made in vain and while he metes out full justice to the complainants he is no less just to the railroads.

SHOT IN CAMP

Edmonton, Alta., Feb. 12.—Chas. McLeod, the northern prospector, who told a story of finding the skeletons of his brothers, Frank and William, in the north upon his arrival at Telegraph Creek, has returned to his home in Edmonton. The two boys left here in 1904 accompanied by Robert Weir, a young Scotch engineer and were never heard of since. Charles McLeod, passing through the country near Nahanni river, found records left on blazed trees by his brothers. He believes that from evidence found that his brothers found a valuable mine and left the records of it on a tree. The words were obliterated by the murderers by felling the tree. Indians say the notebook of the man was destroyed by an unknown whiteman. The heads of the brothers had been knocked off. Shattered breast bones indicated that the brothers had been shot while asleep in their blankets. Weir has disappeared, leaving no trace. It is unknown whether the murder was perpetrated by Indians or white men. The mounted police are investigating.

Geo. S. Reid and Andrew Knox of the Prince Albert district were in the city on Monday evening on their way to attend the annual meeting of the Grain Growers association to be held at Weyburn.

Judge Johnstone has returned from his vacation trip spent in the States.

A number of the Conservatives of Milestone and district who did not like the method in which the Milestone Mail, a paper published at Milestone, was conducted recently formed a company and purchased the paper from Mr. Holmes. The paper will in future be conducted as a straight Conservative paper. Dr. Cook is president; P. Murphy is vice president and Mr. Sulty is secretary. These are supported by a strong board of directors.

A public meeting under the auspices of the Independent Order of Foresters was held in the city hall on Saturday evening. P. McAra jr., H. C.R. for Saskatchewan occupied the chair. The first speaker was Rev. A. McGillivray of Toronto who spoke on the benefits of the order. Elliott E. Stevenson, supreme chief ranger and head of the order, who spoke next was well received and received a very attentive hearing. He explained the changes in the rates and showed justification therefor. An excellent instrumental and vocal program was rendered during the evening.

Mr. J. Macdonald, pressman in this office, was the victim of a serious accident on Thursday evening last. In his endeavors to put on a belt which had slipped off, his right hand caught and his arm was wound around the shaft. Both bones were broken below the elbow as well as the bone between the elbow and shoulder. Had it not been for the promptness of Mr. T. Molloy, the monoline operator, in cutting off the electric motor, it is believed that the accident would have had fatal results. The ambulance was called and the injured man taken to his home where Dr. Meek is attending him. We are pleased to say that he is making satisfactory progress.

Minto Wedding.

English papets arriving bring the first details of the wedding of Lady Violet Elliott, daughter of Earl of Minto, viceroy of India, with Lord Charles Fitzmaurice, younger son of the Marquis of Lansdowne, in Calcutta recently. It was the most brilliant ceremony seen in the east since the Coronation Durbar.

Thousands of natives witnessed the procession to and from the cathedral. The bride drove from government house in a state carriage, accompanied by the viceroy, and escorted by a full vicerogal bodyguard, in their striking uniforms of scarlet and gold. She wore a beautiful white dress with a long silver train, and her father was in military uniform, with the Star of India. On arrival at the cathedral she was attended by several little girls as bridesmaids. The Gordon highlanders furnished a guard of honor at Government House, the West Kent regiment providing another at the cathedral. The whole route was also lined with troops.

The scene in the cathedral, which was profusely decorated and crammed with guests, was a memorable one. The bridegroom's regiment was represented by several officers and a few men. The service, which was conducted by Bishop Copleston, was fully choral, valuable aid being lent by the viceroy's band. Among those who signed the register were Lord and Lady Minto, Lord Kitchener and Lady Lansdowne.

At the reception held at Government House after the wedding the health of the bride and bridegroom was proposed by Lord Kitchener, Sir E. Baker, the lieutenant governor, who was to have done so, being absent on a tour. About 100 native noblemen and gentry were present at the reception, including the Maharajas of Gwalior, Iddar Kuchbehar, and Burdwan. The wedding cake which was over six feet high, was cut with the bridegroom's sword with the usual ceremony.

The presents were exhibited in the Marble Hall at Government House. They included a diamond necklace from the ladies of Simla and Calcutta, numbers of splendid silver bowls, salvers and cups, and articles of jewelry of all kinds, the whole making a magnificent display, although many of the presents from England have been left in bond at Bombay in order to escape the heavy customs duty.

The first part of the honey moon will be spent at the viceregal residence at Barrackpore, after which Lord and Lady Fitzmaurice will pay a visit to Dehra. They leave for England in March. Lady Lansdowne, who has received the heartiest welcome in India, sailed for home at the end of January.

Lady Violet was married in a robe which surpassed in splendor the gorgeous dress worn by some of the native princes who attended the wedding. It was of ivory satin charmeuse, fastened with ornaments of pearls and silver, the sleeves profusely jeweled. The very heavy train, which was carried by three little pages, was of cloth of silver, with pearls and crystals embedded in the needlework so as to form roses on a feather design.

BOY MEETS DEATH

Yorkton, Feb. 15.—The finding of the body of Hylory Andrijavz, a 15-year old Galician boy, in a badly charred and frozen condition three miles north of Goose Lake, on Feb. 10, under very strange circumstances occupied the attention of the coroner Dr. J. F. Irving and a jury at the court house here all day Saturday.

From the evidence it appears that last November this boy left his brothers where he was living and although search was made and enquiry made among the neighbors, nothing was heard of him until Wednesday when his brothers found his body in the bush near his home. The body was doubled up in an agonized posture on hands and knees and the clothing had been almost burned off it and the remains badly charred by the fire and in parts eaten by the wolves. No trace of any foul play could be found and it is believed that the lad accidently set fire to his clothes and ran until he sank exhausted and expired in the position in which his body was found. He was recognized by part of the clothing that was beneath his knees and the ground and remained unburned. The jury brought in a verdict of death by burning and recommended that further investigation of the case be made by the Mounted Police.
