AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

—Song for the farmer: The spring time is coming, oh, hoe!

—An acre in strawberries will bring in more money than several acres in wheat.

—Sprinkling plaster in the stable will absorb the ammonia and preserve it and the horse's eyes.

—It is said to be nearly one hundred years since the price of oats was so low in England as they have been this winter.

—A day gained in the spring will be of more value than the ideas caught floating around the stove in the village store.

—Do not change your stock suddenly from dry food to grass; but continue to give them some of the winter's ration a week or two after turning them out to pasture.

—Fowls without gravel are like people without teeth; they cannot masticate their food, and therefore suffer from indigestion. Be very careful then to supply your flock with this indispensable article.

—The dairy must stand back of good agriculture. The fertility of the soil cannot be maintained without the dairy; hence agriculture without the dairy soon commits suicide by feeding on itself.

—A Sweedish farmer has hit upon the idea of lighting his farm by electric lights, and has purchased a dynamo and connected it with a waterfall close by. The man intends also to employ it for working threshing machines and for similar work.

—Dairy cows should be allowed to run dry three months before they calve in spring, or any other time of the year. Some object to allowing a cow to go idle three months of the year, as a waste of time and feed, and no doubt there are some cows that with good care and good feed would not require to be dry so long.

—In a report of a Farmers' Club in one of our American exchanges, a speaker recommends scattering over a newly-planted potato field slices of potatoes poisoned with Paris green. By this method the potato beetles were frequently entirely destroyed before the newly-planted potatoes appeared above ground. This plan is at least worth trying.

—There is a time for everything, and also a proper time for plowing. However pressing the work at this season may be, a good farmer will not rip the soil open with the plowshare until that soil turns up crumbly and mellow. Land plowed when wet remains lumpy and does not crumble and pulverize as it should. Plant-food, locked up in lumps, is unavailable for plant-growth.

—Farmers should do all they can to make their lives pleasant. One way to do this is to have their surroundings attractive and tasteful. Neatness and cleanliness will add much to the pleasure of a home. Unsightly objects should be removed and a few flowers planted. These things are not only beautiful to the eye, but they have a higher and better use in the way of sanitation.

—By leaving a heavy mulch on strawberry beds until quite late in the season, growth and fruiting may be considerably retarded. In many localities late berries bring generally a better price than early ones; in this case, as well as for a late home supply, the selection of the latest good variety, and the use of a heavy mulch, left undisturbed as long as can be done with safety, will be found of value.

—Onions, like most other garden crops, thrive best on a well drained, thoroughly pulverized soil, free from weeds; and as sandy or light clay loams with a large per cent. of vegetable matter generally possess these characteristics to the largest degree, they favor the cultivation of this crop most. If the land is weedy, onion growing is a very disheartening and tedious work, for the young plants, being small and slender, give the weeds every opportunity to grow. Although this crop could be grown several years in succession on the same spot without material injury to the soil, it is not advantageous to do so; for the weeds, noxious insects and fungoid growth attacking the plant, will become more troublesome by such a plan than they otherwise would. Onions do not seem to favor any special kind of fertilizer, and therefore the kind of manure used with them depends upon the soil on which they are grown. On vegetable soils, ashes would be very valuable, while barnyard manure and land plaster would be very beneficial for heavier soils. Light soils are very much benefited by manure from the poultry house. If in the commencement of autumn, or even before this, the bulbs do not form properly and the nutrition is principally sent to the tops, forming what is popularly known as "thick necks," it is advisable to bend them down. This helps the development of the bulb very materially.

High Praise.

Mrs. John Neelands, writing from the Methodist Parsonage, Adelaide, Ont., says, "I have used Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for years in our family. For heavy Colds Sore Throats and distressing Coughs no other medicine so soon relieves."

St. John Letter.

ST. JOHN, April 10, 1888:—If you or I had gone across the "line" a year ago for a week, month or year's vacation or to occupy positions better than that which it had been our lot to secure here, there were ten chances to one if, in a few hours, we did not receive the undeserved and uncoveted title of "Exodian." It must be a relief to the travelling public to feel that they are at the present time in less danger of having this unsought degree conferred upon them. The "Exodus" idea is exploded and the paragraph which kept it alive has been boycotted is every respectable journal. So long as there are fast trains and fleet lines of steamers connecting the commercial and industrial centres of neighboring kingdoms, so long will the residents of those countries take advantage of the convenient and rapid modes of transit afforded them and pass and re-pass that political line which separates Canada and the United States. Hundreds of New Brunswickers have gone to the United States and remained, but as the railway and steamboat statistician show, as many, if not more, have returned. A captain of the International Steamship Line told me a few days ago that he had no doubt but that, in the year's run, as many Provincialists had come from Boston as had gone there. Some of them returned poorer in pocket, but richer in that experience which should warn them and their friends against leaving happy homes to compete with the thousands of native employment seekers in the great cities of the neghboring Republic. When the fishermen, the carpenters, the quarrymen and many others leave their homes in the spring for the summer's work which provides for their families in winter, they are too apt to be dubbed "Exodians." What then shall we call the Americans who have faith enough in us to invest thousands of dollars in our cities? What shall we call the Yankee sportsmen who spend all the summer months in the province; and again can any one suggest an appropriate title for the real estate seekers who want to inflict several summer resorts upon us and add to thousands of tourists who, glad to escape the hot and unhealthy cities of New England, turn to the cool and shady shores of Maritime Canada? Let us have reciprocity all around.

Several new firms are about starting business in the city. I mentioned a similar fact some weeks ago and am glad to record another. It shows that notwithstanding all that has happened and been said the young men of the city have lots of faith in its ultimate boom.

The people are supposed to own the Intercolonial Railway and have some voice in the selection of the men who are at its head, yet in point of popularity the New Brunswick Railway is first. This is due to the comparison between a rapid, satisfactory service which covers the distance between St. John and Boston in fourteen hours and the snail-like rates which keep a traveller twelve hours between St. John and Halifax.

As you are likely during the coming summer to have a visit from Capt. Arthur W. Masters, a special agent for the Maritime Provinces of the New York Equitable Life Assurance Society, let me tell you something of this gentleman, the company which he represents and his successful work in St. John. Captain Masters began life as a forecastle boy and passing through all the grades became captain, a few years ago, of the finest ship in the famous "Diamond T" fleet, owned by Troop & Sons. Deciding to spend the rest of his days on shore, he has taken up a work that will, while it satisfies his desire for a tranquil life, provide his restless disposition with change of scene and permit him to become acquainted, at least, with his native land. Captain Masters received his appointment from the Equitable Society October 1, 1887, and has, up to April 1, written in St. John life policies amounting to $220,000. This, for a man beginning the work and in a city so thoroughly covered by life insurance agents, is remarkable work and is a high compliment for both the agent and the company. The Equitable Society has been writing policies in Canada since 1870, and its fairness, justice and liberality and promptness have made it a household word and a favorite with assurers. The payment the last few years of a matured series of tontine and endowment policies has shown them such good investments that the policies written in Canada by this society in 1887 were larger than ever before. There have been several cases in this city where policy holders have received four and a half per cent. on their premiums, besides being assured for the period, fifteen years, receiving interest at the end of that time and having a paid up policy in his possession. Taking these results into consideration and the standing of the society, is it any wonder that its policy holders are legion? Here are some official figures for you, dated January 1, 1888:—Liabilities, $66,274,650; assets, $84,378,904.85; new assurance, $138,023,105; surplus, $18,104,254.85; outstanding assurance, $483,029,562; paid policy holders in 1887, $10,062,509.81; paid policy holders since organization, $106,610,293.34; total income, $23,240,849.29; premium income, $19,115,775.47; increase in assets, $8,868,432.09; assets to liabilities, 12 and a half per cent.; amount of assurance in force in Canada, $16,000,000; deposit at Ottawa, $1,000,000.

The Labor Commission returns to New Brunswick about Thursday and begins work at Moncton. Thence it will go to Newcastle, cross to Fredericton, and afterwards visit Woodstock and St. Stephen.

The civic elections are over. In St. John the only change was the re-election of an ex-alderman in Carleton. Mayor Thorne was elected by acclamation, and the same honor was conferred upon ex-Mayor John A. Chesley, in Portland.

The effects of Lent are disappearing and every issue of the newspapers contains an announcement of some amusing event which will be soon placed before the public—concerts, organ recitals, sports and racing composed last week's programme. In the near future Max O'Rell and Mrs. Scott Siddons will appear upon the Institute platform. The latter will be given a warm welcome by St John people, and I doubt not in every place she appears.

Nautical sports are very much interested in Mr. David Lynch's model of a yacht, which has been designed to compete for the American cup. Mr. Lynch is the most skilful and experienced of Canadian shipbuilders, and claims, with every show of right, that the hollow mid-ship section was first seen in America in his fleet pilot boat Lightning. The Americans are regarding Mr. Lynch's progress upon a new and competitive model with considerable curiosity.

The doctors and undertakers are happy. They are expecting a visit from the modern Herod in June and July. Real estate in small family lots is going up—and all because American fruit has been placed upon the free list. SANTA CLAUS.

WOMEN'S COLUMN.

CONCLUDED.

Limited space forbids the giving in details of the tender, touching tribute paid by Miss Barton to this friend, Mme. Golay, who sat by her side. But the mutual love which shone through the tear-dimmed eyes, and spoke in the voices of both women, made the scene one to be remembered by those present.

"In 1882," Miss Barton continued, "the United States joined the Red-Cross League. Knowing that we were in little danger, comparatively, of sufferings from war, we added for the American branch, relief in cases of great national calamities resulting from war of the elements, such as fire, flood, pestilence, drought, etc. Thus the National Red-Cross of the United States furnishes an avenue through which the aid of the general public can be distributed by trained hands, and the surplus carefully preserved for the next call. Its first work was aiding the suffers from the great forest fires of Michigan; then came the Mississippi and Ohio floods, the Charleston earthquake, the Texas drought, cyclones in the South, and this last terrible visitation at Mt. Vernon, Ill., from which Dr. Hubbell (field agent of the society) and myself have just returned.

Her modest mention of the two International Conferences in Europe which Miss Barton has attended as president of the Red-Cross Society of the United States, gave no hint of the honors heaped upon her there by royalty as well as by scientists.

Dr. Hubbell spoke of the hospital established by her during the last National Competitive Drill in Washington, saying that old army surgeons who received from her hands the badge of the society declared they were "prouder of that Red-Cross badge pinned there by Clara Barton," than of all their other decorations. "Why should they not be?" replied Miss Barton, ignoring the personal reference. "They know it renders them eligible to hospital work in any country. In case of war, it is an international introduction to every civilized country in the world." Having explained that the pledge of the Red-Cross nurse is only that in case of war she is to consider herself at the call of the nation, three out of the four nurses now in the Temperance Hospital assented to the pledge, and received the badge of the Red-Cross Society, from Miss Barton herself. It was a scene to stir one's patriotism to the depths. Dr. Burnett, wearing upon her arm the Red-Cross badge, declared in a voice trembling with emotion, "I am proud to be a Red-Cross nurse. This honor was conferred upon me years since, and if my country calls, I shall be glad to go."

And so the temperance work has taken another step forward in the right direct line of woman's work—help for suffering humanity. God bless these, our new crusaders, the nurses of the Red-Cross.

A Sight Worth Seeing.

Probably few persons ever saw the breathing apparatus of a human being laid open for inspection. From a hospital cadaver, we once saw the lungs and bronchial tubes removed, and blown up as a boy would a bladder or toy balloon, until the fine bronchial tubes and air cells of the lungs were distended to their fullest extent. In this state the lungs were hardened by immersion in alcohol, so that they remained expanded when the air was let free. With a sharp knife the windpipe and lungs were split open, so that it was easy to trace the bronchial tubes gradually diminishing in size from the wind-pipe itself, becoming finer and more delicately branched, until smaller than fine sewing cotton; these tiny bronchi lead into the air-cells beyond, to convey air to sustain life.

Truly a wonderful sight, which we have often recalled during the past winter as we read of the great number of deaths from pneumonia and bronchitis. Nearly 250 deaths in Boston in the month of January.

It seems impossible to most people, that so common and simple a disease as bronchitis should cause death at all. But think for a moment, what would happen if the lining membrane of those tiny tubes described above should become much swollen by inflammation, which is likely to occur after any severe cold. The passage of air to the lung cells would be stopped, and the patient die from suffocation, as certainly as if a giant grasped his throat.

People should not overlook the irritation or "tickling in the throat," which causes a "hacking cough." Sure symptoms of bronchitis. The irritation being caused from inflammation inside of the wind-pipe; it is useless to take medicines into the stomach to cure it; one might as well eat tallow to cure chapped hands.

The interior mucous membrane of the wind-pipe must be promptly treated, to prevent the downward spread of the inflammation, and effect a cure. On page twelve of a pamphlet published by I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., is printed plain directions for applying Johnson's Anodyne Liniment to the bronchial tubes and nasal passages, to cure colds and bronchitis.

It is a well-known fact, as many persons can testify that this old-fashioned remedy will stop inflammation and swelling quicker than any other medicine.

The Four Cardinal Points.

Afterglow.

I saw the eastern sky aflame last night
With rose-like colors, gloriously clear,
While in the west the sun had sunk from sight,
And clouds hung like a pall upon a bier.

So was your face, my darling, when you died,
Bright with the glory that I could not see;
For, though with straining, tear-dimmed eyes, I tried,
Only grief-laden clouds appeared to me!

—Bessie Chandler, in The American Magazine for April.

He Didn't Sleep Much.

He was rather given to late hours, and his wife remonstrated with him, so he promised her faithfully that he would reform. It would have been all right if his friends had not heard of it.

"So John H. has reformed, has he? Humph, we'll see" They "saw" him in procession. First he met one old chum, then another, and it never dawned upon him that it was a conspiracy.

The first night that John H. reached home after he had made that promise to his wife, it was very late, or rather it was very early. In fact it was early morning. He took off his boots, managed to hang his hat up, and walked softly into the room where his wife slumbered. So far all was good. He divested himself of his coat, and just as he was hanging it on the gas bracket his wife woke up.

"Why, John!" she exclaimed; "what on earth are you getting up so early for!"

This was a poser, but John was equal to the occasion.

"That's all right," he said; "you know I've reformed, Mary, and there's lots of people I've got to see early in the mornin'."

And he deliberately put on his coat and boots, found his hat and went out again, while Mrs. H. turned over with a fiendish chuckle and went to sleep.

Timely Hint.

From the Boston Courier.

"George," she said sweetly as she glanced at the clock, "do you know anything about base ball?"

"Well, I rather guess I do," he answered with pride.

"There is a short stop in every nine, isn't there?"

"Certainly."

"Is there a long stop too?"

"No."

"It is a pity."

"Why so?"

"Because," and she glanced at the clock again, "if there was a long stop you would make money. Every club would be bidding for you."

Do You Think you can get anything better than Simson's Liniment for Rheumatism, Sore Throat, Sprains, Bruises, Stiff Joints, Lumbago, &c.? If so, we cannot think all people think as you think, and we still think that the many testimonials we are receiving from honest people who conscientiously think they have been benefitted by its use, and we think that you will think it too, after you have used it for any of the above diseases.

—Doctor (who had been sent for at 2 a. m.): "Madame, please send at once for the clergyman, and, if you want to make your will, for the lawyer." Madame (horrified): "Good gracious! Is it so dangerous, doctor?" Doctor: "Not a bit of it; but I don't want to be the only fool who has been disturbed in his sleep for nothing."

His Friends Can Testify.

Mr. G. H. Vought, of Peterboro, Ont., says that his friends can testify to his being cured of Indigestion, Constipation and Torpid Liver by using two and a half bottles of B. B. B. "It seems to act like magic, and I heartily recommend it," are the closing words of his letter.

—A Kansas City man turned round while running, and his head struck a brick wall, causing a fatal fracture of the skull. This is an illustration of Kansas City's rapid growth. This wall was built while he was looking the other way.

—Mary Hodges, a habitual smoker for many years, and who admits that her favorite beverage was rum, recently died at Elton, Hunts, England, in her 101st year, possessing her full faculties.

—A man named Post and a woman named Stump were married some time ago by a preacher named Lockwood in a little town in Maryland. They have a boy now named James Lamp Post.

—"Do they dress well at your house?" said one boarder to another at a seaside resort. "Well, the girls dress pretty well, but the dressing of the salad is very poor."

—In Mexico it is the custom to kiss the feet of young ladies in saying adieu. In Chicago it is the custom to stumble over them.

—A Teutonic friend ran a foot race and lost it, but ran again and won. He said: "I'm first at last if I was behind before."

—When Joe Chamberlain receives his title, he can justly claim leadership of the codfish aristocracy.—Puck.

—"I will make a personal canvass," remarked the tailor, as he measured himself for a pair of overalls.

Constipation

Is a universal and most troublesome disorder. It causes Headache, Mental Depression, impairs the Sight and Hearing, destroys the Appetite, and, when long continued, causes Enlargement of the Liver, Inflammation of the Bowels, and Piles. Constipation is speedily cured by Ayer's Pills.

For a number of months I was troubled with Costiveness, in consequence of which I suffered from Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, and a disordered liver. My eyes also troubled me. I was compelled to wear a shade over them, and, at times, was unable to bear exposure to the light. I was entirely three boxes of Ayer's Pills. I have no hesitation in pronouncing this medicine to be the best cathartic ever made.—James Eccles, Poland, Ohio.

I suffered from Constipation, and, consequently, from Headache, Indigestion, and Piles, for years. Ayer's Pills, which I took at the suggestion of a friend, have given me effectual relief. I commenced taking this remedy two months ago, and am now free from Constipation, the removal of which has caused my other troubles to disappear, and greatly improved my general health.—W. Keeler, Amherst, Mass.

I suffered from Constipation, which assumed such an obstinate form that I feared it would cause a stoppage of the bowels. Two boxes of Ayer's Pills cured me, completely.—D. Burke, Saco, Me.
