PRAISE FOR ST. JOHN BALL PLAYER WITH LOWELL

Tom Daly's Work Wins Good Words From Boston Sport Writer

Sam P. Carrick, a sporting writer of the Boston Post, devoted some thing a little better than a column in that paper on Saturday last to the speedy Lowell, Mass., team which has been playing snappy ball since the opening of the season. He was certainly generous with his compliments regarding them, and had a few nice bouquets to pin on the breast of "Tom" Daly, a former local boy who has been very successful as back-stop with the team. Speaking of the team in general Carrick saye:

The Lowell players, as a whole, shape up more like a Class A team than an ordinary New England organization. To the writer they appear to be about as strong as Bill Smith's fast moving Atlanta ball team, which defeated the Braves in two out of a five-game series this spring and which has been making trouble for all other clubs in the Southern league since then. There is just this difference. In the ranks of the Atlanta club there were many former major leaguers, men who had been in the big show for several seasons.

He then singles out a few of the players and, treating of one of them, Eddie Miller, says he "should go higher next season, for he is certainly on." Of the former North End lad Carrick writes:—

The same may be said of Tom Daly, a former Cambridge school boy, who is now playing his first professional ball. Daly gets after foul flies nicely, throws to bases well and handles himself like a catcher of several years' experience instead of a man just breaking in. All that he needs is a little more experience to make him a valuable man for a big league team.

RODMAN LAW WENT OVER STILLWATER FALLS

Moving Picture Plan, Which Failed Here, is Success in Maine

Bangor Commercial:—For the first time in the recent history of Stillwater Falls, which is one of the roughest bits of rapid water in this part of the state, a man went over it on Saturday afternoon and came out alive. That man was Rodman Law.

Law made the break neck trip in a batteau. The river, swollen by recent rains, was almost at freshet pitch, and the current swift. Over the great concrete dam, a sheet of water made a sheer drop of more than twenty feet, boiling in whirling foam through jagged rocks below. Then there was a dangerous whirlpool, a succession of rapids, before the stream, hundreds of feet farther down, relapsed into a more placid course.

Attired in the rags of a tramp, the part he plays in a moving picture, he approached the falls, and reached the swift water and was over. He landed on a mass of rocks, over which the water boiled in a white torrent, the shattered batteau on top of him. He leaped clear of the rocks and splintered wood and a few seconds later was struggling in the swift current, 200 feet below. A canoe brought him ashore.

ALBERTA ELECTION CASE IS NOW BEFORE COURT

Calgary, June 10—The supreme court has now before it the appeal of H. W. McKenney, Liberal candidate in the recent election in the Clearwater, against the order of Judge Beck to the returning officer to count five disputed ballots.

Frank Ford, for the appellant, said that the court had no power to make the order, that it had only certain rights prescribed in the election act. An attempt was made by C. C. McColl, K. C., who appears for the Conservative candidate, to have the appeal quashed, on the ground that the returning officer did not make the appeal. Alex Stuart, K. C., appears for Joseph Clarke, independent candidate, and the case will be further argued today.

GAMBLING FOR HIGH STAKES IN NORTH END REPORTED

One Player Out $175 in An Acadia Street Game—Eight or Ten Sit In

A Hebrew resident of the North End complains to the Times that card playing for high stakes is being practised in Acadia street houses and that the ruin of some of the people taking part is threatening. There are stories of large losses sustained at these poker sittings by those who are not in a position to afford it. One is said to have lost $50 on a recent night, and another $175 at a single session.

It is said that eight or ten take part in the games and that a room is hired in one house or other. The desired thing is a visit by the police to break up the gambling practice.

BISHOP RICHARDSON SAYS CHARGES UNTRUE

Bishop Ingham's Book Declared Cowardly and Uncalled For Attack

(Montreal Star)

Rothesay, N. B., June 9—"To the Editor of the Montreal Star:

Sir:—I thank you for the opportunity of saying something in reply to the attack upon the Church of England in Canada contained in Bishop Ingham's book. The church has no doubt faults, and its members will usually be found ready to welcome fair criticism, whether it comes from within or from without. I think however, that we have a just right to resent criticism of the kind in question.

"I am not blind to some of the characteristic weaknesses of the church, but so far as these particular charges are concerned, I do not hesitate to say that, generally speaking, they are simply untrue, and could only have emanated from a strangely perverted man.

"I do not know whether the criticism has ben published by permission of its author, but if so, I can only say that I have rarely seen a more cowardly and uncalled for attack upon any public body.

"I trust that I shall not seem wanting in courtesy to Bishop Ingham if I express my utter amazement that he should have seen fit to lend the sanctity of his name to what I can but regard as the slanderous statement of an anonymous writer."

"(Signed) The Bishop of Fredericton.

ELEVEN COMMANDMENTS, SAYS BOY IN POLICE COURT

Magistrate Supplies Extra One as Applying to Parents in Some Cases

It was a repentant quintette of lads that Policeman McNamee brought from Red Head last evening in T. McAvity & Sons' motor delivery. Their ages are from ten to twelve and they were charged with entering the house of J. L. McAvity at Red Head.

About 5.30 o'clock Mr. McAvity, who owns a summer residence on Red Head bank, received a telephone message from one of the residents nearby saying that five youngsters had been seen around his summer house. He motored to the central police station where Policeman McNamee joined him and they drove out the Red Head road. When they reached a point about a mile from Mr .McAvity's place they saw two young lads come along the road and go into a well house nearby. The policeman alighted and went toward where the boys had disappeared and the two lads started to scamper across a field. He called to them and they returned to the well house, and there the policeman found the other three boys hiding. When asked if they had entered Mr. McAvity's house they replied in the affirmative but said the door was open.

Mr. McAvity found the house somewhat disturbed, several guns and a sword had been removed from the walls and the wrappers off several packages of ammunition were lying on the floor. Upstairs the guns were found. The boys were brought to the city and placed in the cells.

They appeared before Magistrate Ritchie in the police court this morning with their mothers and said they had played truant from school. They were given a severe lecture and sent below.

Their parents' received a share of the magistrate's remarks. When asked how many commandments there were one of the boys said eleven.

"There should be an eleventh," the magistrate [illegible]led, "and that should say that an[illegible]other who allowed her children to [illegible] way from school should be whipped.

Some Clothing Facts For Men Who Think

All students of economies agree that the high cost of living is largely due to the present method of buying necessities through the middleman.

Direct dealing with the producer and the consequent elimination of the middleman's profit will, they say, solve the problem.

Take the case of clothing for instance: When you buy clothing at any store in Saint John, except Oak Hall, you must pay TWO PROFITS—the manufacturer's and the retailer's.

It is the combination of profits, the manufacturer's plus the retailer's, which increases the cost to the consumer.

At Oak Hall you buy directly of the producer and you pay but one profit.

You get everything that you can possibly get anywhere else, and more, too. You get the best fabrics, the finest tailoring, the most approved style, an unequalled assortment of styles, patterns and color effects.

You get satisfaction at every point, and you get it for far less than you'd have to pay anywhere else.

It's simply a case of eliminating the middleman's profit, and you save from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent.

Now these are facts that will be clearly evident to any man who investigates, and we think you will agree with us that they are worth investigating.
