The Laurier Meeting

(Montreal Herald).

The appearance of Sir Wilfrid La at Montreal last night was, as had expected, an occasion of the highest tical interest. Not for ten years at has he made a speech which showe much evidence of careful preparation deliberate purpose. Not in even a lo time than that has he made a speech two hours outside the house. He sel uses extraneous materials in his platfo addresses. This speech was copiously terlarded with quotations from speec of his own and others, with resoluti of parliament and with proceedings of colonial conferences. It was evident t this speech was meant for a wider stituency than even the vast audi which confronted the speaker, that it meant to be distributed broadcast as Liberal leader's explanation of his po and that therefore it should cover whole ground of controversy. The p aration must have cost the veteran a gr deal of labor, and the delivery of a t hours' address at top pressure must h cost him a great deal in physical effo but when he had concluded he could least have the satisfaction of know that the task was completed. Noth needs to be added to the speech of l night as an exposition of the Liberal p tion on the navy question.

The meeting was originally planned a fitting conclusion to the western t It turned, before long, into a demonst tion against the activity of Mr. Boura and Mr. Monk. Last night there hardly a moment when these gentlem were not well within the mental vis of all present. Sir Lomer Gouin first p sented them to the inspection of the a ience with special reference to the N tionalists. They were now vilipending Wilfrid, he said, as in 1907 and 1908 th had insulted and calumniated provinc ministers. Sir Lomer did not spare t sarcasm in his tones when he alluded the subsequent alliance with Mr. Prevo the main object of that attack. The ne address was by Mr. Athanase David, worthy son of Sir Wilfrid's oldest remai ing friend, Senator David. In the fa itself there was an answer to the Nation alists. The Nationalist movement is es sentially a young man's campaign, both as to leaders and followers. Here was a brilliant, it must be said a typical repre sentative of the new generation acclaim ing Laurier, and hundreds of others of the younger generation cheering him to the echo as he closed his peroration. And he ranged himself behind the old leader, the leader tried and proved. Both when Sir Lomer spoke and when Mr. David spoke it was evident that the undercurrent of anti-Nationalist feeling in the audience was giving volume to the cheers. The anti-Bourassa demonstration was therefore at its height when Sir Wilfrid rose to speak.

And then the orator started in with an audience keyed up to the right pitch of excitement to expound his navy policy as part of the evolution of a nation. He started from the declaration by Mr. Bourassa that Canada is not a nation. It is true that Canada is still a dependency in law, but legislatively Canada is independent. The history of the world as far back as man can penetrate the darkness might be searched in vain for another example of a colony being allowed by its mother country the exercise of such powers as Canada possesses. When Lafontaine and Baldwin had won responsible government for Canada they wrote a new chapter in the record of government. Confederation was another. The gain of the right to make our own commercial treaties was another. The formation of a militia service for land defence, and the formation of a naval militia for the defence of the seacoasts, were other advances in the same general direction. Canada, by a process of peaceful evolution unexampled in the world, had become a nation, without altering its status towards the mother country. It has been very frankly commented by the shrewdest of the Nationalist leaders, when they have allowed themselves a certain freedom of comment upon the position of Mr. Borden, that Sir Wilfrid would be able to hold his own in Quebec because if he appealed for a navy it was for a Canadian navy. Here he was at it. Here he was proclaiming Canada a nation and defending the proposition against Mr. Bourassa's affirmation that it isn't. And, as had been foreseen, it went with a swing that kept the air vocal.

Mr. Mayes and Mr. Hazen

(Evening Times.)

Mr. G. S. Mayes sued the federal government for $62,871. He accepted $9,750, of which 5,090 was not disputed, and the case was settled. The Standard asserts that this is a complete vindication of Mr. Mayes.

If a bridge contractor, let us say, sued the provincial government for $62,871, and was well content to accept $9,750, of which $5,090 was not even disputed, would Premier Hazen say the contractor was vindicated and his government condemned?

By accepting the settlement Mr. Mayes prevents the revelations which he and his counsel, Premier Hazen, assert should be made. Why did the high-souled premier and the noble contractor consent to any such settlement? Why did they not pursue the guilty parties until they got the $62,871, and revealed the awful inquity of the minister of public works?

The more one reflects upon this question, and upon the high character of Mr. Mayes, as set forth in the certificate given in his behalf by Premier Hazen to the Standard, the more one is amazed that sleep could ever again weigh down his eyelids after a compromise which for the paltry sum of $9,750 leaves the perfidious Mr. Pugsley free to work his will as the head of the chief spending department of the Dominion. Where is the patriotism of Mr. Mayes—to say nothing of the $53,121, which would do so much to smooth the rough places of a hard winter?

But even more amazing is the conduct of Premier Hazen, the man who read the famous affidavit. Here, according to the Standard, he had Dr. Pugsley at his mercy and was on the eve of exposing him to the just condemnation of the Canadian people. That being so, why did he counsel the acceptance of $9,750, and leave the guilty minister unexposed, and free to work out his fell design upon other unsuspecting contractors of high character and lofty aspirations?

What is $9,750, compared with $62,871? What is any amount of money compared with public duty and the triumph of right over wrong? These seraching questions may fairly be presented to Premier Hazen and Contractor Mayes, with a request that they give them their earnest and prayerful consideration.

BEAUTY QUEEN OF ENGLAND.

(Exchange.)

Miss Mamie Whittaker, of Hyde Park Gate, is congratulated on her accession to the throne of Beauty Queen of England, the result of a recent competition at Folkestone. As English Queen of Beauty, Miss Whittaker, is entitled to wear for one year a crown and a royal robe, valued at £50. She will also enjoy a tangible kind of royalty—on the sale of her picture postcards, and it is said that she has been offered a part in the United States tour of "Mr. Preedy and the Countess."

THE St. JOHN Business COLLEGE

S. KERR, Principal

Kings County Probate Court.

Hampton, Oct. 13—The passing of the accounts of the estate of the late James E. Griffith was, on return of a citation, commenced in the probate court of Kings county on Wednesday, and adjourned to chambers at Sussex on Friday. Messrs. J. Arthur and Ralph St. J. Freeze were proctors for the administratrix, Mrs. Griffiths, widow of deceased, and Mr. G. W. Fowler appeared for James Henry and William Griffith, and Mrs. Sarah Ann, wife of Hiram Campbell, children of deceased by his first wife, who are opposing passing of accepts on the grounds that a full and proper accounting has not been made of the receipts from the estate, and that many of the expenditures are not properly chargeable to the estate.

A delicate sandwich filling is made from one part chopped almonds and two parts of shredded celery, with a dash of salt. Moisten the mixture with mayonnaise.

To save gas, remove the tip and insert a small piece of cotton in the pipe and replace the tip. This lessens the pressure and a more even and softer light is obtained.

CROPS IN EASTERN CANADA BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

Ottawa, Oct. 13.—The census office publishes a bulletin on the condition of crops in Canada at the end of September. The reports show lower averages of condition for the whole of Canada than those of a year ago, but the reduction applies chiefly to the northwest provinces. In the eastern provinces a high per cent is maintained for nearly all the crops, and quantity and quality are nearly as good as a year ago and better than two years ago. In Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta there is a drop of about twenty per cent in the quality of grains and roots, but the threshings indicate that the yield will be larger for wheat, oats and barley than was [illegible]ed at the end of August.

[illegible] the whole of Canada the condition [illegible] rye at the end of September was 83.59, which is ten per cent better than two years ago and 2.39 better than last year.

Peas and beans are nearly eight per cent lower in condition than a year ago, but nearly ten per cent higher than in 1908. Buckwheat is about the same as last year, and 12 per cent better than in 1908, whilst mixed grains are better by five per cent than last year and by 19.47 per cent better than two years ago. Corn for husking, compared for the three years 1910, 1909 and 1908, shows percentages of 85.12, 86.77 and 82, and corn for fodder of 89.82, 87.18 and 92 for the respective years.

The condition of potatoes is 76.08 at the end of September compared with 90.37 last year, of turnips 82.09 to 83.34 and of sugar beets 83.13 to 71.02, whilst in 1908 their condition ranged from 68 to 74. Alfalfa has a condition of 83.30 for the end of September, and it exceeds 90 in the maritime provinces and Ontario.

In Quebec and the northwest provinces it is not more than 70 per cent, and in British Columbia it is 88.33. All field grains in the province last named exceed 82 per cent quality.

The estimated yield of rye this year for Canada is 1,634,000 bushels, of peas 6,444,500 bushels, of beans 1,089,600 bushels, of buckwheat, 7,302,000 bushels, of mixed grains 20,103,000 bushels, of flax 4,314,000 bushels and of corn for husking 17,682,000 bushels. The average bushels per acre of these crops is 19.43 for rye, 16.69 for peas, 20.54 for beans, 26.98 for buckwheat, 34.91 for mixed grains, 9.04 for flax and 53.82 for corn. Better averages for wheat, oats and barley are assured when the final returns are made in December than the reports for the end of August gave.

ST. GEORGE LIBERALS HONOR W. F. TODD, M.P.

St. George, N. B., Oct. 14—William F. Todd, the popular member for Charlotte, was tendered a reception at the Victoria hotel Thursday evening by a number of Liberal electors.

Senator Gillmor and Mr. Todd attended the fair at Pennfield during the day and on their return found themselves in the hands of friends who gathered at the hotel soon after 8 p. m. The hearty handclasps and cheery greetings of Liberal stalwarts left no room for doubt in the minds of the Liberal leaders of Charlotte of their personal popularity and the esteem in which they are held.

After an informal talk and a smoke, Mr. Todd was invited into the banquet hall, and there, when the good things provided by Host Murray and his good wife were disposed of, the toast of the King was drunk, all standing.

Senator Gillmor, in a few well chosen words, paid a glowing tribute to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, asking all to join him in the toast of long life to the great Liberal chieftain. He then called on Mr. Todd, telling the electors of St. George that in their member they possessed a man who was ever watching out for the interests of Charlotte and working hard in session and out for the grand old county.

Mr. Todd spoke eloquently and well on the pleasure it gave him to meet the voters of St. George in St. George. He gave a rapid outline of his work at Ottawa since the electors had honored him, and said that while he had, with the aid of Senator Gillmor, accomplished much, he did not by any means mean to rest—that he considered he belonged to Charlotte county and that Charlotte county did not belong to him.

He spoke of the policy of the government in the matter of a navy and praised the stand taken by the Liberals.

He spoke of the tariff, of transportation, and eloquently portrayed the progress of Canada under Liberal administration, and in conclusion congratulated those present on being members of the great Liberal party. Mr. Todd was heartly cheered and Thomas McGowan, George Marshall, Jesse Millikan and H. V. Dewar voiced the sentiments of those present and the Liberals of Charlotte in words of praise for the recognition the county is getting and the efforts of Senator Gillmor and Mr. Todd for his benefit.

Senator Gillmor remarked that the transportation question was a great one, that we perhaps did not realize this as much as they did in the interior. He remarked that even here Mr. Todd was deserving of great praise in obtaining a government subsidy for the steamer Connors Bros., as the C. P. R. had increased rates since obtaining control of the N. B. S.

H. V. Dewar said that was true—the rates on the steamer were just half the railroad charges. He cited flour, saying the boat saved the people of this community forty-five cents a barrel, with everything else in proportion.

The senator remarked that the Liberal government ever and always legislated for all the people, not for the classes.

Cheers for Mr. Todd, the senator and the King brought a very enjoyable evening's gathering to a close.

Underwear That Stands The Tub Test

Most underwear shrinks from the tub test. Hewson does not.

That's the great beauty of Hewson Underwear. It is made of pure wool. The softest, fleeciest and finest kind of wool, supplied from Nova Scotia. And Nova Scotia, is world famous for the high standard of its wool.

That's why, when you put on a Hewson garment after it has been to the wash, you find its elasticity and fleecy softness preserved and that it fits comfortably without binding or wrinkling.

Step into the nearest Hewson dealers—you can tell him by the Hewson show cards and posters in his windows—and ask to see a Hewson suit for examination. Ask the dealer to tell you the good points of "Hewson." If there isn't a Hewson dealer in your immediate neighborhood, write us and we'll give you the address of the nearest one by return mail.

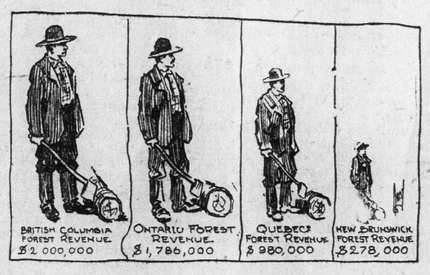
FIGURES THAT TELL STORIES

PROVINCIAL FOREST RENENUES

THE pictures cover the four principal timber provinces and illustrate the importance of the forests as sources of provincial revenue. The Dominion government as owner of the lands of the West, also has a revenue from forests, but it amounts to only about $500,000 a year for the whole of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The dominant position of British Columbia in this matter is emphasized when we take into account the quantity of forest land sold or leased and calculate the revenue per acre. The figures are:

British Columbia	$2.50 per acre
Ontario	10c. per acre
Quebec	1 3-4c. per acre
New Brunswick	2 3-4c. per acre



The greater revenue per acre in British Columbia is due, no doubt, mainly to the extremely heavy stand of timber on the best of the forest lands of that province, but also in part, probably, to the fact that the idea of the public right in forest resources had asserted itself before the exploitation of timber there had begun. That Ontario gets from its timber lands an acre against less than 2 cents an acre, collected by Quebec indicates that Ontario forests now in use are more valuable than those of the sister province, but it may mean also that, on the whole, Ontario's resources in this respect have been more widely managed.

SHEEP RAISING IN CANADA

(From "Canada." London).

None too soon an effort is being made to place the sheep industry of Canada upon a more stable basis than is at present the case. The number of sheep owned in the dominion has been gradually lessening, so that it compares not at all favorably with other great agricultural countries. In 1881 there were 3,048,678 sheep in Canada; according to the latest returns there are now 2,705,390. In the United Kingdom, on the other hand, there were in 1909 31,836,833 head, in the Argentine 67,211,754, in Australia 87,043,266, and in New Zealand 23,480,707. There have been other signs as well that the interest in sheep-growing has been on the wane in Canada, and that as compared with these countries it has, in the words of Dr. J. G. Rutherford, the live stock commissioner, permitted sheep-raising to become a somewhat insignificant phrase of its agriculture, "notwithstanding its great adaptability both as regards soil and climate for the growing of mutton and wool." This was one of the features of Canadian farming at which the Scottish Agricultural Commissioners, several of whom were expert sheep-farmers, expressed astonishment. It is, therefore, gratifying to learn that it has been decided that the time is ripe for the dominion government to "consider a comprehensive policy, and to undertake definite and extended measures likely to operate towards the encouragement, improvement, and development of the industry as a whole." To this end two practical men—W. T. Ritch, of Manchester, England, and W. A. Dryden, of Brooklyn, Ontario—have been appointed to make a preliminary report upon the sheep and wool trade in Great Britain, the United States and Canada. It may be hoped this first step will lead to further action towards establishing sheep-raising as "a recognized factor in promoting the national prosperity" of Canada.

THE GREATEST CITY IN THE WORLD

Some interesting figures relating to the population of London are published in the Daily News Year Book. At the present time it is estimated at 7,537,196. In 1801 it was 864,035; in 1821, 1,227,500; in 1855, 2,362,236; in 1873, 3,264,530; in 1891, 5,533,806, and in 1901, 6,581,327. The next census of the British Isles will be taken on April 2, 1911.

It is interesting for the sake of comparison to know that in 1840 the ten greatest cities in America gave a combined total of population of 711,652. In 1900 Greater New York had 3,437,202 and the same city, according to the census returns announced last month, had 4,766,883 inhabitants.
