MANY TEACHERS AT INSTITUTE

Between 400 and 500 Present at the Sessions

IMPORTANT ADDRESSES

Chief Superintendent Carter Discusses Pensions and Other Matters —The Study of Latin and Greek— The School Day May Have to Be Lengthened One Hour.

Wednesday, June 29.

Between 400 and 500 school teachers from all parts of the province gathered in the assembly hall of the High school yesterday morning to attend the opening session of the Educational Institute of New Brunswick. Never before in the history of the institute has there been such a large attendance and the meetings are expected to be productive of much benefit to the members.

The feature of the session was an address by W. S. Carter, LL. D., superintendent of education in New Brunswick. He dealt with a number of matters of interest to the teachers and his remarks were listened to with close attention.

The executive committee met at 9 o'clock and dealt with several matters requiring their attention, and at 10 o'clock Dr. Carter called the meeting to order in the assembly hall. After some preliminary business had been disposed of, the following nominating committee was appointed to choose an executive for the ensuing year: F. O. Sullivan, St. Stephen; Inspector Steeves, Sussex; C. J. Mersereau, Chatham; Dr. H. S. Bridges, St. John, and L. R. Hetherington, Richibucto.

D. W. Hamilton was appointed secretary and Miss Ida Keegan assistant secretary.

James Vroom, Miss Kate Bartlett and Inspector Steeves were appointed a committee on resolutions.

The report of the executive committee was then read and adopted. It stated that the chairman had appointed the St. John members of the executive a social committee of arrangements. On motion of the chief superintendent, Chancellor Jones, Principal Bridges, H. H. Hagerman, Miss Ella Thorne and the secretary were appointed a programme committee. The report further stated that the programme committee held several meetings and finally arranged the programme for the present gathering.

The secretary-treasurer's report was then read and adopted. It showed a deficit of $22.78.

The chairman announced that R. B. Emerson, chairman of the St. John school board, had been unable to prepare the paper assigned him, and some arrangement would have to be made for one to take its place. He also read an invitation from Mrs. H. H. Pickett and Dr. Margaret Parks for the members who might be interested to visit the free kindergartens in the city.

Mr. Carter's Address.

The chief superintendent then addressed the members. He expressed his pleasure at seeing such a large attendance and referred to the retirement of Dr. J. R. Inch, as chief superintendent. He hoped a committee on resolutions would consider it one of their duties to prepare a resolution expressing appreciation of Dr. Inch's work for the institute and for education in the province. He also referred feelingly to the death of Dr. W. P. Dole, who was one of the leading educationists of the province.

The speaker then proceeded to deal with some of the matters in which he said he believed his hearers would be interested. Touching on the pension act passed at the last session of the legislature, he said while it was not complete, and it was not perhaps the end of legislation in this regard, it was an improvement.

He reviewed and explained the various sections of the act. It was to be regretted that there was no disability clause, but thought perhaps arrangements could be made for part of the salary of the teachers to be put in the fund for this purpose, to be supplemented by the government. Applications for pensions would be dealt with in the coming fall. Some had asked for special consideration, citing exceptional cases, but he hoped they would adhere closely to the act. He expressed his willingness to answer any questions on the matter that might be asked later on.

Regarding the matter of text book, in which there was much interest, he said from what he had heard he believed the text books now in use met with the approval of the majority. The grammar had been criticized, but he believed it to be good. He spoke of the other text books and explained the reasons for their adoption by the text book committee. Arrangements had been made for a new composition text book which would be ready for sale at the end of the year at a cost of five cents.

Coming to the question of school holidays, he said he had no doubt that the extension of two weeks in the country met with popular approval. He felt that they had now reached the limit in holidays and for his part he would oppose any further extension. Nine weeks was long enough. In the country districts the boys were a help in the berry picking and haying, etc., but in the city the boys only found their way into mischief.

He expressed his unqualified approval of the scheme for public playgrounds which had been established in St. John and said it was a most praiseworthy movement that should receive every encouragement. Some of the cities in the United States had deemed it advisable to start vacation schools to look after the scholars in the vacation period. It was also proposed to add one hour, in some places in the United States, to the school day, in order to have music and drawing added to the programme of study. It might be that this would have to be done here. The indications were that an hour would have to be added to the school day or shorten the study and he was opposed to the latter.

He referred to the present method of having to spend four years at college, whereas three years was formerly the limit. The vacation period in the colleges was altogether too long. He believed that less work was now done in four years than had been done under the old order in three.

On the subject of physical training, he said there was an excellent system for the province and he thought that anything that tended for the physical betterment of the scholars was a good thing. In the normal school this year it has proved a great success. The boys had been warmly complimented by the military commander at Fredericton on their soldierly appearance and drill. The majority had decided to go with the Fredericton corps to Camp Sussex. All advanced teachers would have to qualify in future for physical and military drill. He invited as many as possible to attend the summer school at Fredericton.

He advised his hearers of the importance of providing themselves with nature study and agricultural study books, and to teach the scholars these subjects. The report in certain papers that teachers would have to spend two years at the normal school instead of one, was entirely unauthorized, he said.

The matter had not yet been discussed by the board of education, and it was most unlikely that such would be the case.

He regretted many teachers had left the province for the west and warned them against being carried away by stories painting a rosy picture of the life out there. It cost this province, he said, about $5,000 each for educating the teachers and there should be some way of keeping them here for at least three years.

Reference was made to the change in the time of meeting of the school districts, which this year would be on the second Monday in July.

Consolidation of the schools would, he believed, solve many of the difficulties now experienced in the country districts.

Dr. McKay, chief superintendent of education for Nova Scotia, would speak to them on the question of the four-year course in the High school, which is now carried on in the schools of Nova Scotia and in the United States. He hoped the time would never come when there would be any less Latin and Greek in the schools, but rather more. He was opposed to shortening the school course. He believed the time was coming when the college graduate would take to farming as they did to other professions, and he hoped the teachers would do their best to direct attention to farming. There was no better country in the world for mixed farming than New Brunswick. The trouble was that we had not been optimistic enough.

The matter of tuberculosis would receive attention at one of the sessions.

After touching on the need of having music added to the list of school subjects he closed by again welcoming them to the meeting.

Dr. H. V. B. Bridges, principal of the Normal School, Fredericton; Dr. H. S. Bridges, superintendent of city schools; Inspector Steeves, of Sussex, and Dr. G. U. Hay briefly addressed the meeting.

Afternoon Session.

The attendance at the afternoon session was very large, every seat in the exhibition hall being filled by the teachers and their friends, while quite a number stood near the doors. The first paper was by Prof. Frank Harrison, of Fredericton, on musical education in the schools. There was a class of children seated on the platform and the paper was illustrated by many practical exercises on the blackboard and singing lessons. The second paper, on English composition in the High school, was read by Miss Eleanor Robinson, of this city. Both were able and interesting papers and they were followed by discussions in which many of those present took part.

Thursday, June 30.

With nearly 600 teachers present, the attendance at the educational institute is a record one. Yesterday afternoon the teachers enjoyed an outing at Seaside Park and last evening they visited various places of interest. Important sessions will be held today, the programme for which is as follows:

9.30 a. m.—Election of executive committee, election of a representative to the University Senate, and general business.

11 a. m.—Address, Agricultural Education, by Dr. John Brittain, professor of nature study, Macdonald College, Quebec.

2.30 p. m.—Address, How the School Trustees May Promote the Educational Interests of a District, by George Raymond, school trustee, Bloomfield, Kings county (N. B.)

4 p. m.—Unfinished business.

An Important Discussion.

Yesterday morning the exhibition hall of the High school was packed to the doors. Chief Superintendent W. S. Carter presided and on the platform with him were Dr. A. H. MacKay, the chief superintendent of education in Nova Scotia, Dr. H. S. Bridges, superintendent of schools in St. John and Captain A. H. Borden, of Halifax. The meeting was called to order a little after 9.30 a. m. and after a few introductory remarks by the chairman, Dr. MacKay, gave a very eloquent and instructive address, in which he advocated among other things, a four years' course for high schools instead of the three years' course now in vogue. He described very interestingly the work in the Nova Scotia schools.

This was followed by an open discussion on the question and many of the high school teachers present took part.

Dr. Myles, of the local high school staff, declared himself in hearty accord with the proposal. Dr. Bridges also spoke briefly on the matter, as did Dr. Carter, who said that the board of education had under consideration at the present time the introducing of the study of agriculture in the schools, and this would add considerably to the work of the teachers.

An address on Commercial Training in our High Schools, by R. B. Emerson, was to have followed, but as Mr. Emerson, as explained by the chairman, did not have time to prepare the paper, it had to be omitted. After a short five minutes' recess, the meeting resumed.

Dr. A. H. Borden delivered a forceful address on physical and military training. He spoke of the effect that this training had upon the pupils of the public schools, and how the government was trying to have it introduced in all the schools. He also explained briefly how the work was being carried on in the schools of Nova Scotia, and in closing said that he hoped the teachers of New Brunswick would take hold of the matter immediately.

Mr. Carter explained the course in military training that would be given to all the teachers in the province who desired to take it up in Fredericton later on in the season. He hoped that as many teachers as could possibly attend would do so, for their own good and for the good of their pupils.

This brought the morning's session to a close, and Mr. Carter announced that there would be no session in the afternoon, but that the delegates would be entertained to an excursion to Seaside Park. An excellent programme was prepared for the afternoon, and refreshments were served in the big pavilion by the St. John Teachers' Association.
