ERIE AVE. PEOPLE WANT PAVEMENT

A Meeting Was Held in Eagle Place Last Evening Re Matter.

A meeting of Erie Avenue ratepayers was held last evening at the home of Mr. F. Billo, for the purpose of discussing the question of paving Erie Avenue. The thoroughfare is in an exceedingly bad condition and it is generally conceded that the puttig down of a permanent pavement is the only solution. Ald. Ward submitted figures showing the cost of bithulitic pavement from the T. H. and B. to the city limits to be $28,000; reinforced concrete considered a better wearing article $20,000. This would be for a roadway 36 feet wide and including curbs, gutters and storm sewer. The city's share of the cost would be about 60 per cent. The cost of the concrete pavement per foot frontage would be 18 3-5 cents. The matter will be laid before the City Council.

WIRED HIS REGRETS

At Last Minute Duke of Connaught Was Unable to Come Here.

It was not until late yesterday afternoon that officers of Ozias Lodge A. F. and A. M. received word from the secretary of the Duke of Connaught, that His Royal Highness would be unable to come to Brantford. Word had previously been received in the morning that the Governor-General would make the trip. Previous engagements necessitated a cancellation at the last moment.

TWO HUNDRED BELIEVED, LOST

Death Toll of the Lakes Wil Not be Completely Known For Some Time.

With the slow passing of the weary hours comes additional evidence of the awfulness of the storm which lashed Lake Huron into a three-days' fury, and carried with it a terrible toll of life and wrecked vessels.

The extent of the loss probably will not be known for days, but every hour piles up fresh debris on the shores and brings to light the fact that one of the worst disasters of the Great Lakes has occurred.

Probably 200 souls perished in the turbulent waters. Twenty boats or more went to destruction. A property loss of three and a half million dollars was caused. Marine circles received a great shock yesterday when the finding of wreckage indicated the loss of the giant steamer James Carruthers.

Along with the tales of bereavement and suffering last night came the story from Port Franks that ghouls are robbing the bodies of victims, and that morbid thieves are carrying away the wreckage, making identification more difficult. The matter will be reported to the Attorner-General.

Inquests were opened at Thedford and Goderich last night on bodies of the victims recovered.

Agricultural Sensation.

An Iowa farmer lost $15,800 that he placed under his pillow. But an farmer who can go to sleep with that much money under his pillow probably won't miss it.—Cleveland Leader.

HOW THE LAW WORKS OUT

United States Might Have Seized a Grand Trunk Pullman Car.

[Canadian Press Despatch]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 — The United States Government would have a Pulman Palace car on its hands had it not been for the action taken to-day by Assistant Secretary of Commerce Sweet Collector of Customs Whelan of Detroit informed him that the Grand Trunk Railway Company had ferried an empty Pullman from Detroit to Windsor on the Canadian side, then back to Detroit again to another station, making a haul of about two miles and avoiding of six or seven miles around the city. As it was in a Canadian owned ferry, this was considered a violation of the law, prohibiting the carriage of American coastwise merchandise in foreign bottoms. The penalty would have been confiscation of the "merchandise." Secretary Sweet decided that he did not want a Pullman car, and that anyway there had been no intention of breaking the law. The company, however, will be ordered not to do it again.

No Police Court.

"Nothing doing" was all that could be said of the police court proceedings this morning. Of the three cases on the list two were "drunks" and the other one of procuring liquor was adjourned to allow the defendant to procure witnesses for the preparation of his case.

Face to Face at Gem.

"Face to Face" is a splendid production from Clarendon Studio, England, and will be shown to-night for the last time. A complete change of photo plays is billed for Friday and Saturday. Sharp and Sharp, two lady comediennes offer a yodeling and singing specialty for last half of the week.

Were Valuable.

The two young lads who found the Indian skeleton and a couple of relics on Terrace Hill a few days ago and sold them to a local man for 15c., are repenting of their bargain, having sold them before they realized their worth, as curios. The articles, which included an old fashioned knife and a bone which was not part of the skeleton, are said to be worth quite a sum.

Excellent Attendance.

The attendance last evening at the special service in Park Baptist Church conducted by Rev. Dr. Troy was excellent. The large auditorium was almost completely filled. The congregations and pastors of Wellington St., Zion, Congregational First Baptist and Calvary churches joined in the service. A solo by Miss Marjorie Sweet was rendered very acceptably. A strong address, the subject of which was "The Carnal Man" was delivered by Dr. Troy.

A Presentation.

On Wednesday night, Nov. 12, as the whistle blew for 6 o'clock, the employees of the Windmill Dept. of the Goold, Shapley and Muir works met to say good-bye to one of their number, Mr. D. C. Reece, who is leaving the employ of the company to go back to England and from there to Australia, with the intention of making his home in that far away land. "Dave" who is in good fellowship with the boys, was made the recipient of a gold locket with his initials enscribed thereon, accompanied by an address. The address was read by George Burns and the presentation made by Reg. Fowler.

Makes a Complaint

A lady resident of the East ward is not at all pleased with the tree trimming activities which the city is conducting. She has only one tree in front of her residence and this, she claims, was trimmed most disgracefully, and that it is trimmed up too high. She claims that the city cannot do this without the consent of the resident, and cited a case in the village of Burford. The resident informed the Courier that she was told by one of the men who are doing the work, that if she had complained to him the work would not have been done. She states that the work was done when she was away from home. It is not likely that the city has heard the last of the matter.

STOLEN WIFE CASE BEING HEARD TODAY

William Mason.

William Mason, ames street, worked with Mr. Wooden, moving a house he had bought from the Waterous property. Mrs. Craig lived at the Corner of Jex and Oneida streets. He saw the defendant go towards the house and turn in the front yard. He could spend quite a little time there. It was a general joke among the men. He told the witness: "I'm going to cousin's to get lunch." He did not tell the witness who his cousin was. He learned afterwards that cousin was Mrs. Craig.

E. Campbell

E. Campbell, restaurant keeper, on Market street, was examined. Mr. Wooden boarded with the witness quite a while. A lady came to the restaurant last May. He identified Mrs. Craig as the party. Mr. Wooden brought her there. He said it was his cousin and he wanted to keep her a few days until he could find a convenient place for her. She was taken in and a room assigned to her. Wooden also roomed at the restaurant. Mrs. Craig was told to leave. Mrs. Craig left and Wooden stayed a week after she had left.

Examined by Mr. Harley, the witness admitted that his wife had said that they came together. The arrangement was made with the witness' wife.

William Cochrane.

William Cochrane knew Mrs. Craig and was a witness at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Craig. They were married at Mt. Pleasant.

Mrs. Nellie Mansell.

Mrs. Nellie Mansell who takes roomers and boarders at her house on Dalhousie street, was a witness. She remembered the defendant and Mrs. Craig came to her house. She would not say who were in the trouble in front of her house. She said she believed Wooden was the man who came for the room. She looked at Mrs Craig and did not know whether she was the woman or not. She wanted a room but he did not say that he did. They went away and there was trouble in front of her house that night. This evidence concluded the case for the plaintiff.

The Defence.

Mr. Wooden, the defendant, then gave evidence. The defendant had two children. He had known Mrs. Craig all his life. She was raised within two miles of Burford. He was a contractor. He had employed Craig as a teamster at one time. He could not handle a team and was dismissed. At the time of the moving of the house he had often seen Mrs. Craig. The house was moved with household effects in it because Craigs could not get a house. Craig was there frequently before the defendant left work in the evening. He was in the Craig house once, owing to Mrs. Craig saying plaster was coming off the wall. After moving the house he went to the East Ward to work. He had returned to the locality to do other work. Was there about a month about October, 1912. That he made continuous visits to Mrs. Craig was untrue. He never said Mrs. Craig was his cousin. He denied that he was out walking with Mrs. Craig. Had boarded at Campbell's restaurant when in the city. He had met Mrs. Craig on Market street accidentally. That he talked twenty minutes with Mrs. Craig was not true. He had gone to the Wilkes building on Dalhousie street. He went in company with a man by the name of Lottridge, employed by him. He returned to the corner of Market and Colborne strets with this man. He then went to Campbell's restautant. Mrs. Craig was not present at Wilkes' visit. Mrs. Craig came into the restaurant and to him because her husband had put her out because she had spoken to him. He asked if Mrs. Craig could remain over night. She was there a few days. Mrs. Craig paid her account. He denied statements made about improper actions. He left to go out of the city on business. He saw Mrs. Craig shortly after his return, and they met accidentally at the corner of George and Wellington streets. He carried her luggage and while en route Craig grabbed her and called "Police." The street was soon full. They were going to the Dalhousie St. boarding house. Craig tried to get away but he was caught. After the court proceedings Mrs. Craig went to Hamilton.

Examined by Mr. Hollinrake: The witness spent not half of his time in Brantford. He had always understod that Mrs. Craig was a relative. After the house had been moved, the Craig's moved to a house on Oneida street. He had only been in the house once. He had no occasion to go there. He never was in the Oneida house. "There is something wrong somewhere," when asked as to the word of the witnesses. He never went for lunch. He said he met Mrs Craig on May 20 on Market street, just as he would happen to meet anyone. He never had an appointment. He did not talk with her a minute. Nothing was said worth remembering. He knew nothing of Mrs. Craig's visit to the Wilkes house the same night. He did not see Craig at the Wilkes house. "Craig has got them soaked up" when asked as to the witneses of the plaintiff. He was asked to carry the valise. He did not think he was ever at the Dalhousie St. boarding house until he went with valise.

"I know you" exclaimed witness when being pressed by Mr. Hollinrake. After the police court proceedings, Mr. Craig told him that she went to Hamilton. The witness did not know where Mrs. Craig had ben living after the police court proceedings. He denied that he came out of the Belmont yesterday morning with Mrs. Craig.

Thos. Lottridge.

Thos. Lottridge had worked for Mr. Wooden five or six years. Worked last May for Wooden. He went with Wooden to the Wilkes house. They went to look at the building. After examining the building, went to corner of Market and Colborne streets. He was with Wooden from 7 to 9.30 o'clock and Wooden did not speak to a woman that night.

He did not see Craig. Witness was generally on hand when buildings were removed.

Cross-examined by Mr. Hollinrake. —Did not have his evidence.

Silas Miller.

Silas Miller, next witness called, sworn, examined by Harley. Witness stated he worked for Wooden over three years and had never seen anything wrong between the two.

Chas. Teizel.

Charles Teitzel, sworn, examined by Mr. Harley. Mr. Wooden boarded with him and almost invariably spent his evenings in the house, hardly ever going out, and if he went out the witness generally went with him.

Cross-examined by Mr. Hollinrake —Mr Wooden was a man who strictly attended to his business, as far as witness knew there was nothing between Mr. Craig and Wooden.

Edwin Hall.

Edwin Hall, sworn, examined by Mr. Harley, who admitted there might have been lots of things he did not know of.

Cross-examined by Mr Hollinrake.

L. E. Jones.

L. E. Jones, sworn, examined by Mr. Harley, said he boarded witness who spent all his evenings in the house.

Mrs. Craig.

Martha Jane Craig, the defendants wife, was called, sworn and examined by Mr. Harley, said she had been married to Craig 25 years and knew Wooden when a little girl.

Mrs. Craig said —that they remained in the house because it was impossible to get another house. One of her daughters was with her all the time. She remembered the defendant had called once when the plaster was falling. It would be impossible for Mrs. Rains to see the Craig house owing to its location. Wooden never called on her. She never went walking with Wooden. Was going to the store when she met Wooden. The husband was standing near when she and Wooden spoke to each other. She denied being at the Wilkes house that night and was not on Dalhousie St. She went home and retired. Her husband came home and pitched into her. Kicked and hit her on the head. She went down the street after the row. Th witness went to the restaurant and secured lodging and afterwards went to the Y. W. C. A. Wooden was reading in the restaurant when she came. She denied that any actions of improper motive had taken place at the restaurant.

Mrs. Craig claimed that meeting Wooden in front of Y. W. C. A. was accidential and that her husband had pitched on her en route to the boarding house. The patrol came and all were taken to the station. After the trouble she went to Hamilton and while there, Wooden, she stated, knew nothing of her whereabouts to her knowledge. She was in the Hamilton hospital and her husband visited her in a drunken condition. She was employed in the hospital. She told of an uphappy married life and had remained —with her husband for the sake of the children.
