Canadian Foresters Dined.

The third annual banquet of the United Districts of the Canadian Order of Foresters, held in St. George's Hall last night, with President J. H. McGhie in the chair, was a decidedly pleasing affair, and the hundred and fifty or so present had a right royal time. The speeches were brief and to the point, and the musical numbers were all excellent. Expressions of loyalty and patriotism were heard on all sides, and when the gathering broke up everyone unanimously voted it to be the most enjoyable ever held by the order.

The toast to Canada was proposed by Mr. W. H. Meredith and responded to by Rev. Mr. McTavish, and the one to the Empire, by Mr. W. D. Earngy, and responded to by Mr. J. N. McKendry. Bro. John R. Allan, in his own inimitable way, called for the toast to the Ontario and Dominion Legislatures, and Hon. Mr. Stratton and Thomas Crawford replied, both delivered stirring, patriotic speeches, and were cheered to the echo. In responding to the toast to the City of Toronto, which was proposed by Mr. R. C. Gavin, Ald. Spence received a great ovation. Dr. N. M. Stanley and several others spoke to the remaining toasts. The musical part of the program was admirably looked after by Messrs. O. Wembourne, Bro. White, Alex. Hough and others.

SIR HIBBERT HAS ONE MORE YUKON SCANDAL

was detained in Dawson because the crew claimed back wages. Collector of Customs Davis was appealed to and gave the Yukoneer clearance. Shortly afterwards, however, F. C. Wade appeared and had Davis withdraw his grant of clearance. The Yukoneer desired strongly to get away, but Davis would not allow it to go till $5999 was paid to the collector. Of this sum, F. C. Wade got $750. The questions asked suggested an unparalleled state of affairs in the Department of Customs.

Sir Hibbert declared Mr. Paterson knew that he had two departments of the Government against him. The Department of Justice never approved of his course, but characterized the conduct of Davis in detaining the Yukoneer after giving her clearance, as "high-handed and improper." It was this report from Hon. Mr. Mills that Sir Hibbert wanted.

Mr. Paterson: How does the hon. gentleman know that?

Sir Hibbert: From Mr. Davis himself.

Davis Would Not Disgorge.

Continuing, Sir Hibbert declared the Department of Fisheries was against Mr. Patterson, and that Mr. Paterson had written to Mr. Davis, asking him to disgorge, but that Davis had written back declaring he would do nothing of the kind, for he had acted in the premises as a private citizen, not as a Collector of Customs. Then the Minister of Customs came down and wrote to the ship-owners, who were objecting to Davis' extortion, and enclosed papers, but guarded himself by saying "without prejudice." He said the ship-owners would have to sue Davis personally to recover.

What Sir Hibbert Alleges.

The position Sir Hibbert took was that Davis, in collecting the money, had no warrant for so doing, and that he acted as Collector of Customs; that Wade acted in collusion with Davis, and had Davis under his thumb, because they had been in peculiar deals before. That the Government, in withholding papers, was trying to shield Davis, who had manifestly done wrong. That Wade represented the crew before Davis, and suggested to Davis that he (Wade) should get $750 of the plunder.

Mr. Paterson: On what grounds does the hon. gentleman base his statement that Wade acted for Davis?

Sir Hibbert: Not on very good authority. On the authority of Davis.

This annoyed Mr. Paterson, who insinuated that Sir Hibbert held a brief from a firm of lawyers. But the latter gentleman declared his disinterestedness, declaring he was acting for the people of Canada, and was endeavoring to show up the maladministration of the Government that allowed a corrupt alliance between two of its officials. He was speaking at 6 o'clock.

Toronto Hotel Bill.

The Toronto Hotel Company bill came up in Committee of the House to-night, and occupied the attention of the members for an hour. The opposition to the bill was pressed by Mr. Fielding, Sir Louis Davies and Dr. Sproule, and they were successful in staving off a vote, thanks to Mr. Logan (N.S.), who wanted to speak because it pleased Sir Louis, the oracle from the east.

Mr. Fielding waxed hysterical in declaring that the bill practically amended the charters of all joint stock companies doing business within one mile of the site of the proposed hotel. To grant the right to joint stock companies and banks to invest in hotel property would not meet with approval from the people; besides, it would violate a well-established principle of Parliamentary legislation. But it was right there that Mr. Fielding went out of his depth.

Mr. Osler Shows Up a Fallacy.

Mr. Osler declared it was amusing to hear Mr. Fielding talk about principle, for, in 1898, the Central Canada Loan Co. bill was supported by Mr. Fielding and the Government, but that bill enunciated the same principles enunciated in the bill before the House. It gave the company power to buy any stock in any chartered company.

Mr. Fielding and Sir Louis Davies looked surprised and sent for Hansard of 1898, while Mr. Osler remarked, "Ministers must have short memories."

Continuing, Mr. Osler declared Toronto was suffering from the want of a modern hotel and that the banks had contributed largely to the capital to be used in building the hotel, and, in his mind, very wisely.

Sir Louis Davies projected himself into the discussion, and declared that "a more irretrievably bad argument than that presented by the member for West Toronto, I cannot conceive as being used by any man."

He then duplicated Mr. Fielding's argument, but Mr. Fielding was silent under Mr. Osler's revelation of history.

Messrs. Craig, McClure, Borden, Wood, Clarke, Kloepfer, Tupper and Cargill supported the bill, and Dr. Sproule and Mr. Penny opposed it.

Divorce Bills.

The bills relating to the relief of E. J. Cox and the relief of James Milne were read a third time and passed.

Sir Hibbert Resumes.

At 9.30 Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper went on with the reading of numerous documents backing up his castigation of "Billy" Paterson, and it all seemed hard on the latter, who was attired in a dress suit, and would have been drinking the health of Sir Richard Cartwright at the complimentary dinner given him to-night had not Sir Hibbert tied him to the House.

A Side Note.

Apropos of the dinner it is said it is given to the hobbled knight in order to show to him that tho he does not actively rule the Government yet he holds the hearts of all Liberals. His rule is a sentimental one, while Sir Wilfrid's is a substantial one, and there have been so many persons attired in dress suits to-night about the corridors that one has difficulty in distinguishing an usher.

Wants the Justice Report.

Sir Hibbert spoke till 11 p.m., calling upon the department to dismiss Mr. Davis, or if he was not dismissed then the political responsibility would rest upon the Minister. He wanted the report of the Justice Department on the matter.

Mr. Paterson's Reply.

Mr. Paterson, replying, said that the Department of Customs acted under the advice of the Department of Justice. Besides, the matter was to be made the subject of a petition of right, and no hon. gentleman should ask for all the papers till final action was taken. Neither the Justice Department nor the Government had said that the Crown was liable to the shipowners for the money taken by Mr. Davis.

Wade Got $700.

According to Inspector McMichael, who had heard both sides of the case, Mr. Davis acted merely as an arbitrator to deal out the $5099. He made the award, and gave $700 to Wade for fees.

Mr. Paterson was referring to the fact that he had an opinion from the Department of Justice, and had acted accordingly, when Sir Hibbert Tupper arose to a point of order that since Mr. Paterson had founded an argument upon a report from a department he should bring down the report. He declared Sir John Bourinot's book, at page 409, bore him out. Mr. Paterson said he had not quoted from the report, and therefore did not come under Bourinot.

The Speaker read Bourinot on the point, and said: "I did not hear the speaker quote from a document, and I did not hear him found an argument upon it." The ruling amused everybody, and Mr. Paterson went on his way.

Mr. Borden (Halifax) followed and backed up Sir Hibbert's arguments.

Sir Louis Davies took up the other side. His distortion of the facts of the case was amusing. The courts should determine the whole matter, in his mind.

Mr. Quinn thought the country would believe Davis and Wade were in collusion to get the $5000 from the ship owners. Was the Government to be branded by such conduct? Were shippers to that country to be held up by land pirates?

Sir Wilfrid moved the adjournment of the House at 12.40.

After Mr. Fitzpatrick.

Mr. Marcotte will ask on Friday if Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick holds a two-fold position of defender of the Crown and defender of Mrs. Mooney of Quebec, charged with murdering her husband.

Will Any of the Canadians Stay?

In the Senate.

Ottawa, May 9.—(Special.)—The Senate to-day busied itself with discussing the binder twine industry, eliciting nothing that has not appeared in print ere this.

The Brandon and Southwestern Railway bill was read a third time and passed.

Cecil Took the Top Fig.

Cecil Rhodes, when a schoolboy, went sometimes to spend his holidays with two aunts in the north of London. One of the women in the neighborhood writes: "My husband occasionally would invite the somewhat brusque boy to dinner. Orders were always given to the parlormaid that Cecil's place at table was to be laid close to that of the head of the house. Like all good servants, Hannah saw to it that the particular weakness of each one of our family should be especially handled. Thus, dates were always at my end of the table, and figs at my husband's. Hannah invariably arranged that there should be an ideal fig on top of the pile, and that the dish should be patronized first by her master. When young Rhodes had dined several times at our house, it chanced that I myself told the parlormaid that he was expected again that evening. The information produced so thunderous an expression on Hannah's usually serene face that I said, seeking an explanation: "Isn't he a favorite of yours?" "No, indeed, ma'am! Master Cecil always takes the top fig."
