SIR JOHN IS COMING.

The announcement that Sir John A. Macdonald will pay a visit to this city in the course of a few days is one that will be received by our citizens generally with pleasure. The leader of the Conservative party is a man of such broad views and sympathies that there are few even of his political opponents who do not regard him with a large degree of affection. Sir John is the embodiment of the confederation idea and the founder of its proper sequel, the national policy. But for his powerful influence the Provinces which now form the Dominion of Canada would still be separate, and engaged in jealous attacks on each other by the aid of hostile tariffs. But for his efforts the Canadian Pacific Railway would still be a dream of the future, and the provinces which now form our North West would still be the haunt of the wolf and the buffalo. Canada owes more to Sir John than it can ever repay him, in his life time, but, when he is no more with us, and we trust that day is still far away, the people of this Dominion will see that the memory of so able and so disinterested a statesman is duly honored. In the mean time the people of St. John will have an opportunity of seeing and listening to the living man and of showing their appreciation of his merits in a practical way. It is understood that Sir John will deliver an address while here and he may rely on having a splendid audience and a most cordial greeting.

THEY JOIN HANDS.

The St. John Globe is delighted to learn that the Quebec Telegraph has come out squarely for annexation. It republishes its declaration that "there is no use dallying over the future of this country," and that "political annexation is the manifest destiny." The Globe approves these sentiments and also the statement that it will be a welcome day when we can call ourselves citizens of the mighty republic. The Globe characteristically adds that "as the Telegraph has been one of the mouthpieces of Sir John's government much interest attaches to the views it now presents so forcibly." As most of the readers of THE GAZETTE probably never heard of the Quebec Telegraph before, it may be proper to explain that the above statement in regard to that paper being a mouthpiece of Sir John's government is utterly untrue. The Telegraph is no more a mouthpiece of Sir John's government than the Globe is, and its influence as a newspaper is if possible less. The fact that it has joined hands with the Globe in attempting to haul down the British flag in Canada makes it acceptable to that organ of disloyalty.

THE TOBACCO QUESTION SETTLED.

Habit holds us all with an iron grip, even in the most trivial affairs of every-day life. We can break from its grasp only by the exercise of an inflexible will, and when firmly fixed, like clay in the hands of the potter, there are those who find it impossible to escape from the clutch of the enslaver. We had hoped that the famous tobacco resolution before the Methodist conference in session at Montreal was nothing more than the production of some humorous and unregenerate brother, and that its presentation to that body was for no other purpose than to enliven for a moment the monotony of its proceedings. But alas, the resolution was no less than a bomb, a torpedo, a blow from the shoulder at one of the favorite vices of the assembly. It is melancholy to think that tobacco, which we are told is more destructive to mental and physical health than old rye or juniper juice, opium or the extract of hemp, should be the enslaver of those men whose steps we had hitherto considered it safe for us to follow. The original resolution, which we published a few days ago, was rejected by a very large majority. Last Friday night the following was substituted: "This Conference asserts its strong disapproval of the use of tobacco as hurtful to the physical constitution and especially injurious to the young; we earnestly recommend that every member of our church be urged to be a total abstainer from its use, and alarmed by the growing use of tobacco among the youth of our country, we earnestly recommend that those in our Sabbath-schools, in the educational institutions of our church and in the ministry shall be total abstainers; and we further recommend that our people use all their influence to have the teachers in our public schools and higher institutions set the example of abstinence from its use."

So these victims of the tobacco habit merely "recommend" abstinence from the use of the Indian weed because of its injurious effect on the "physical constitution." We are unable to see, however, how they arrived at the conclusion that the "physicial constitution" was undermined by the moderate use of tobacco.

It was shown in the discussion of the resolution that tobacco has not deadened the intellect of the members of the conference. They spoke eloquently, learnedly and incisively. Judge Dean said he could show them a man who had smoked ninety years and he could show them another, a member of the conference, who was much older than himself, and was then present, who had continually used tobacco for years, and was younger and nicer in appearance than himself. Dr. Douglas said he remembered among his acquaintances a man who had smoked for ninety five years. When Rev. Dr. Ogden got up to speak there was considerable of an uproar, but it was finally quieted. Rev. Dr. Ogden said that he did not intend to shout so that he could be heard down the bay. He would speak so that those who wanted to listen could hear him and those that did not care to listen could turn their ears the other way. He supported the views of Judge Dean and Judge Deacon, but just when he was becoming really interesting, and began to speak in his attempt to show how hard it was to break from the tobacco habit of "the old sinners who had smoked for several years," he was shut down by the chairman, who called time. In the passage of the amended resolution we have another melancholy instance of the power of a vicious habit, which enslaves our mental as well as our physical natures. Instead of recording their "abhorrence" of the weed and recommending that no one shall have a place in our Sabbath-schools or in the educational institutions of our church, or in our ministry who is not a total abstainer, they have expressed their "disapproval" of its use, and recommended "that every member of our church be urged to be a total abstainer." This is very well. But we are inclined to think that the influence of such a half-hearted resolution will not be perceptible among the tobacco dealers or their customers.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

The silly Telegraph says that the McKinley bill would not now be the law had not our parliament last year doubled the duties on American farm products coming into Canada. Our parliament did not double the duties on American farm products generally but only on a few articles, and Major McKinley has repeatedly declared that his bill was framed without reference to Canada and in fulfilment of the promises made to the farmers of the United States by the Republican party during the presidental campaign of 1888.

The Acadian Recorder says of Mr. Adam Brown's mission to Jamaica:—

It is difficult to divest this Jamaica trade-extension scheme of something of a ludicrous nature, in view of the non-trade policy of the Dominion Government as between Canada and the States. The best evidence of the light in which Mr. Adam Brown's mission is regarded, is that it is rarely referred to except in a semi-jocular way, by anybody—press, or the mercantile community. By one consent, it is felt that "the commission to Adam Brown" would be a more appropriate designation of the excursion.

Mr. Brown's mission is not so viewed by the merchants of St. John. They regard his work as a most important one and hope for the best results from it.

The New York Tribune says:—

"Canada has to choose in its next election between principles and methods that are intended to serve British imperial interests and principles and methods to serve Canada as an American country. The United States has practically decided upon a trade policy which will be continental in its opportunities. Canada can have her share in this policy if she wants to."

The Moncton Transcript interprets this to mean that if Canada elects a majority favorable to freer trade Canada can obtain it. The Transcript is mistaken. The real meaning of the Tribune's language is that if Canada will become a part of the United States it can share in its continental trade policy but not otherwise. The fate of the Sherman resolution shows that we cannot have freer trade with the United States except by political union which we will not have.

Under the title "Dishonest Tariff Talk," the Chatham World editorially discusses the utterances of those opposition papers who blame the national policy for the failure of certain manufacturers in Canada. The World says that manfacturing failures are produced by the same causes that produce commercial failures. It adds:—

There are hundreds of industrial establishments in Canada, employing thousands of hands, that would not be operated a day longer if the tariff were abolished. It would not pay to run them. They could not compete with foreign manufacturers, either because they have not the same facilities or have to pay higher wages. It is open to anyone to argue that it would be better for Canada that its protected industries should die, rather than protective duties be maintained. A man may honestly hold such an opinion, and is entitled to a respectful hearing for the arguments with which he upholds it. But the man who professes to believe that the abolition of protective duties would be better for the manufacturers and those employed in manufacturing industries, is dishonest, fraudulent, impudent, and unworthy of respectful treatment.

The pastor of Chalmers street church, Halifax, in reading the circular of the Board of Health advising the closing of the Sunday schools on account of the prevalence of diphtheria, is reported by the Herald to have said:—

There was one feature of the discussion as to the spread of the disease, and its extinction, which he regretted; there seemed to be no recognition of the hand of God in it all. He would not deny that it could be partially traced to natural causes, but at the same time there appeared to be an ignoring of an all-ruling providence in the matter, by those in authority, in dealing with the disease, which, in a Christian community, was deeply to be regretted. There were many other ways of spreading the disease, too, much more dangerous than the assembling of the children in the Sunday schools. He considered the horse cars a much more probable means for its propagation. Yet there was no talk of stopping them, even on Sunday. He could not help thinking that however clearly the disease could be traced to natural causes it might well be considered a chastisement from the Almighty for that very sin of permitting the running of the cars on the Sabbath and for other forms of Sabbath desecration.

THE EXHIBITION.

Meeting of the Executive—The Work Done by the Committee.

A meeting of the directors of the exhibition association was held yesterday afternoon, President Everett presiding.

Secretary Cornwall said the cost to exhibitors for the electric light was $2 per light for the ten nights.

A report from the gates and tickets committee was read, recommending the appointment of the following persons:

L. D. Seely, in charge of tickets and office, at $1.50 per day.

Fred Linde, assistant.

Ticket takers at the turnstiles—R. J. Coughlan, Thomas Reid, L. W. Foss, F. W. Donovan, Thomas Gass, H. S. McLaughlin.

Ticket takers at exhibiton gates—F. M. Hancock, M. Macaulay.

Ticket sellers—H. V. Cooper, W. Stewart.

In charge of exit gates—Chas. S. Parker, Fred Menealy, E. S. Ritchie.

Ticket seller at Moosepath—W. H. Penaligan.

Attendants at Moosepath gate—John Woods, Henry Clark.

James F. Robertson reported that everything was in readiness for the fireworks and that one or two bands in Carleton were to be engaged.—Adopted.

H. J. Throne, in reference to the educational display, reported good progress.

Mr. Everett, touching the machinery and manufacturers' department, said everything was progressing favorably. It was voted to give the committee authority to have the work of preparation proceed all night, if deemed necessary.

J. M. Johnston reported that the Moosepath grounds would be in readiness this evening. He asked for authority to appoint attendants and also six special policemen.—Adopted.

Welah Bros' tender was accepted for the supply of feed at Moosepath.

Wm. J. Jarvis said the reception committee were about perfect.

Mr. Everett read a letter from the governor of Trinidad notifying the association of the appointment of Mr. Tripp as representative of that place at the exhibition.

George Robertson from the finance committee stated that the committees were keeping pretty well within their estimate, but it would be necessary to exercise all due precaution.

The West India exhibit was being got in readiness in the building and placed in a good position, was the report of Mr. Robertson.

A letter was read from D. Pottinger stating that he had given orders to have a car at the exhibition building to convey the governor and his party to Moosepath on the day of the opening.

Wm. M. Jarvis moved that the granting of electric lights to persons outside of the grounds be left to the discretion of the building committee.—Carried.

Application for tickets for telegraph operators and messengers was made. It was stated that both telegraph companies were to have offices in the building and as the offices were there for the benefit of the newspapers and business men, it was claimed that the operators should have season tickets, especially in view of the fact that neither company expected to make any money.

This brought up the question of complimentary tickets to attendants, newsboys who sell papers, etc. Mr. Johnson said he hardly thought it fair for a man like Mr. Donovan, who has a number of cows on exhibition and who must have a man to milk these cows every morning, to refuse him liberty to milk them. He (Mr. D.) has nine cows, and unless two men are allowed to go into the grounds every morning and milk them Mr. Donovan will be compelled to withdraw them.

A. L. Law moved that the whole question of tickets for newsboys, attendants etc., be referred to a select committee.

W. H. Thorne did not believe in referring the matter at this late day to a select committee.

In order to settle the matter, Wm. M. Jarvis moved that two tickets be issued to the two telegraph companies.—Adopted.

T. W. Peters moved that the president and secretary be authorized to arrange news stands for the sale of papers.—Adopted.

Letters were read from W. G. Robertson, station master, and A. Busby general passenger agent of the I. C. R. in reference to excursion rates on that road.

On motion of Wm. M. Jarvis it was decided to telegraph Mr. Pottinger at once asking that the time of issuing excursion tickets be extended.

H. J. Thorne moved that Secretary March, Supt. Hayes, Inspector Carter and Chief Supt. Crocket be given season tickets in connection with the school and arts exhibits.

Several gentlemen took the ground that if such privilege was granted other exhibitors were entitled to the same privileges

The motion was carried.

President Everett said that D. W. Scott was the accredited representative of the Manitoba government and it was decided to give him a season ticket.

It was voted to issue tickets to Duncan Robertson and W. S. Barker of the special attractions department, and Messrs. Cooper and Brown of the live stock department.

It was decided that representatives from all governments sending exhibits be given tickets.

Secretary Cornwall brought up the question of including wives of press representatives in their tickets, and there was an expression of opinion against it. It was, however, stated that press representatives from outside bringing their wives might be given tickets by Secretary Cornwall.

Wm. M. Jarvis submitted the insurance policies in connexion with the exhibition property.

It was voted that Dr. Hetherington and Mr. Logan of the lodgings committee receive free tickets.

The question of how the money was to be gathered in each day came up, and it was stated that L. A. Law had consented to collect all money daily and deposit the same in the bank of New Brunswick, giving the deposit receipt to treasurer Reynolds,

Wm. M. Jarvis brought to the notice of the board the law regarding gambling, etc., in the exhibition grounds. etc., He made a motion to the effect that all selling of fruit, etc., be prohibited except by authorized parties in the grounds. Adopted.

A. L. Law stated that application had been received from persons for permission to run a wheel of fortune, offering $100 per day for the privilege, but the applications had been refused.

It was decided that a meeting of the directors would be held every evening during the exhibition at 8 o'clock in the secretary's office.

It was decided to pay Mr. Burdett, jr., $5 per week for his services during the time of the exhibition.

Tomorrow the great industrial fair opens in this city and from present indications it promises to be highly successful. Everybody is working hard to make it a credit to the city and if one can judge of its success, from the number and nature of the exhibits then it is safe to feel assured and confident on that point. The exhibits are being rapidly put in order and arranged in the building, and some of them are very handsome. The halls will present an elegant appearance for great care has been taken by those who have had charge of trimming the various booths.

Tomorrow at 10 a. m. the Lieut. Governor will formally open the exhibition. Addresses will be delivered by His Honor and Charles A. Everett, chairman of the Exhibition Association, after which the party will repair to Moosepath to open the agricultural and live stock fair there.

Killed in Election Riot.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Later advices from Goa, India, state that 18 persons were killed and 50 wounded in the election riot at that place by Portuguese troops who fired upon the crowd of republicans.

Eva Holden, a young and pretty girl, in the employ of Post Master F. P. Ainsworth of North Amherst, Mass., was shot and killed about 4 o'clock yesterday morning, by John Davis, her jealous lover. James Hardaker, Eva's companion at a dance she had attended, now lies severely wounded in the groin by the same pistol.
