PLEADS STRONGLY FOR WORLD-PEACE

Lansdowne Makes an Appeal for Arbitration.

THE NORTH SEA ARRANGEMENT

Justifies Great Britain's Methods of Securing Redress and Hints at Intervention in Far East.

London, Nov. 9. — Lord Lansdowne, in the absence of Premier Balfour at the historic Lord Mayor's banquet held at the Guildhall tonight, made a strong plea for peace and arbitration on behalf of the British Government. Lord Lansdowne pointed out to a large and rather unsympathetic audience that arbitration was the only way in which the North Sea dispute with Russia could have been equitably settled, and almost in the same breath drew a vivid picture of the horrors of the struggles now proceeding in the Far East. Between the lines of every reference the foreign minister made to the Russo-Japanese war was an urgent plea, amounting almost to a demand, that it might be settled by arbitration. It was a carefully-prepared statement before what is considered the most representative gathering of leading men of Great Britain. As such it was generally interpreted as a bolder bid for intervention than has yet emanated from any neutral power. America was writ large in his speech, for which Great Britain has been waiting for many days. The foreign minister prefaced all his remarks by saying "That great statesman, John Hay, recently remarked that war was the most futile and fallacious of human follies." Then came an impassioned review of the North Sea affair. Although Lord Lansdowne was unable to announce the signing of the convention, he emphatically confirmed statements made in these dispatches, namely, that Great Britain had found "no difficulty in arriving at a solution in principle of the dispute," and only supplemented what is already known by the statement that Russia has guaranteed the punishment of any other officers in addition to those already detached from Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron who might be proved to have been implicated. By most of his hearers, Lord Lansdowne's utterances were regarded almost as a plea for Russia. A dead silence greeted him as, after pointing out that the two Governments in good faith believed in contradictory statements of facts, he asked: "Could we have done better than get full apology and compensation, and leave the question of facts to an international tribunal with a guarantee of punishment of any who may be found guilty?" Lord Lansdowne, in connection with the question of contraband, seriously reminded the audience that Great Britain, as the greatest naval power, might some day be the greatest sufferer by a restriction of belligerent rights on the high seas.

The two hundred and fifty guests, included the Archbishop of Canterbury, the members of the cabinet, the foreign representatives, members of Parliament and other prominent persons.

After the usual loyal toasts, War Secretary Anold-Forster, replying for the imperial forces, said it was the determination of the army council not to rest until the British army was ready to enter the field at any time with absolute confidence of success.

Lord Lansdowne, responding to his majesty's ministers, referred to the unfortunate absence of Mr. Balfour, who, in spite of his illness, had not ceased to actively participate in the affairs of the country. Continuing, the foreign secretary said that while London was particularly interested that peace should prevail everywhere, he did not think they should think of peace at any price.

"At this moment," said Lord Lansdowne, "contemplating the progress of the terrible struggle between two brave and gallant nations in the far east, can one of us contemplate without regret the legion after legion of brave men being led forth to meet their fate, and the ruined homes and broken hearts? We can conceive no more terrible punishment than the remorse of any minister or body of ministers, who, from loss of temper or of desire of popularity, brought upon the country the scourge and calamity of needless war. At this auspicious moment I am able to announce to you that not only the peace of the country is unbroken, but, so far as I am able to foresee, there is no reason why it should not remain unbroken. Not only have we had the good fortune to avoid war, but, by the strict neutrality and wise international arrangements, we have done something to restrict the area of hostilities. The country, however, has not altogether escaped anxieties. For the last few days we have been face to face with an incident which moved the people of this country as few other incidents have done. The incident of Oct. 21 in the North Sea was an attack on British citizens and an affront to the British flag, which, if intentional, I would rather not contemplate the consequences. It was a deplorable and unaccountable blunder, but I am bound to add that recent evidence has satisfied the British Government that the Russian Government believed that the facts were different from what we supposed, and that each party was convinced of the justice of its own cause. Great Britain has adopted the only course in referring the matter to an independent and impartial tribunal, and we found no difficulty in arriving at the principal questions, nor in deciding that the terms for their reference under The Hague convention were such as we could accept."

After detailing what would be the procedure of the court, Lord Lansdowne referred to the smallness of the number of Russian officers left at Vigo and said: "It was not for us to assume the responsibility for the selection of the officers. That rested with Russia, and it would be a great mistake to relieve her of the responsibility." The Foreign Secretary added that the Government had received distinct assurance during the last day or two that the Russian officers detained were those who were directly implicated, and if the inquiry showed that others were culpable, they also would be punished. Great Britain had received a full expression of regret, a promise of ample compensation, and a guarantee against a recurrence, with security for all neutral commerce and promise of the punishment of the guilty persons. Was it possible to secure more? Continuing, Lord Lansdowne referred to other questions which have arisen during the war, especially that of contraband, which had been largely cleared up, and since July there had been no case of seizing a British ship by Russian vessels.

"I am sanguine to say," Lord Lansdowne remarked, "that good is likely to come from the struggle in the far east. It is my hope and belief that this terrible war will give a stimulus to the existing desire for some less clumsy and brutal method of adjusting international differences. I myself have signed no less than five treaties of arbitration. Only yesterday the American ambassador, Mr. Choate, asked me if we were prepared to sign a similar treaty with America. I have also lately been asked by President Roosevelt, to whom we may offer congratulations on his return to power by a vast majority, to participate in a second international peace conference. While reserving the right to consider what subjects and the terms of reference, we did not hesitate to say that we were ready to participate, and to tell the President that we wished him God-speed in the useful work he has undertaken. Is not there a better way than this? Is it not better to so arrange matters that a dispute shall not arise at all?"

Lord Lansdowne then referred to the Anglo-French arbitration, and said he hoped it would be adopted by a large majority of the Chamber of Deputies, and that it would be effectual in removing dangerous and difficult questions from international controversy. He saw something of this in the assistance Great Britain had received during the last few days from the French Government in bringing about an amicable settlement between Great Britain and Russia.

Why Do Women Worry

And Thereby Exhaust the Nervous System and Ruin Health?

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The worry habit is an unmitigated evil.

Worry is by far the most frequent cause of nervous disease.

Because of the multitude of household and family cares, and because of the nature of their employment, women are especially liable to give way to worry and anxiety.

The result is wasted nerve force, weakness and disease.

It may be nervous headaches, sleeplessness, irritability, indigestion, discouragement and melancholy, or weakness and irregularities peculiarly feminine.

The only way to restore health and strength is by increasing the nerve force in the body, and this is best accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Make a test of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food by noting your increase in weight from week to week while using it.

Notice the improvement in your appetite, and how much better you rest and sleep.

The healthful appearance of women who have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the best proof of what it will do in the way of steadying and strengthening the nerves, rounding out the form and replacing weakness and disease with new strength and spirits.

BAPTIST HOME MISSIONS

Annual Convention Being Held in Walmer Church, Toronto.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—The annual convention of the Women's Baptist Home and Foreign Mission Societies opened this morning in the school room of Walmer Road Church, with a large attendance of delegates from all parts of Ontario. Miss Moyle read the recording secretary's report, which showed steady growth in the number of circles. The treasurer reported $7,307 35 received from 208 circles, $1,657 08 from 128 mission bands, $106 06 from other organizations, and $69 53 from association collections, making a total of $9,140 02. Mrs. J. T. Booker, of Aylmer, the president, reviewed the work of the year, speaking warmly of the encouraging features, but impressing on her hearers the necessity for unremitting labor to meet the growing demands of new fields. A spirited discussion, led by Miss Trotter, has for its subject "Conference Work Among Our Young Women and Girls," which called forth a free expression of opinions from many speakers.

LOADED WITH MONEY

Had $1,000 in Each Stocking and $2,000 in Dress Lining.

Fort William, Ont., Nov. 9.—Poorly clad and without friends, Mary Allen, an aged woman, of Nelson, B. C., a passenger on last night's express, because of her peculiar actions, was handed over by the conductor to the Fort William police. Questioned at the police station, the woman stated that a party of thieves on the train were plotting to rob her, and that she was fearful of losing her life. The police then volunteered to take charge of the woman's belongings, which they agreed to express to her home. From each of her stockings the woman then pulled $1,000, and from the lining of her dress about $2,000 more were taken. At the conclusion of the search nearly $4,000 in bills had been piled on that station desk. Mrs. Allen was bound for Carleton Place, Ont. The money was forwarded by the police, and the woman resumed her journey.

POLITICS AT THE SOO

Liberal Convention Called to Nominate a Candidate.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 8.—Notices have been sent out to chairmen of committees in polling subdivisions of this district for a Liberal convention to nominate a representative for the Legislature, to be held Tuesday next. It is altogether probable that C. N. Smith will again be the standard-bearer for the Liberal party. There may be a third party brought into the field, the laboring men talking of running a man. In East Algoma the parties are getting into line. T. G. Wigg, of Thessalon, will likely be the Liberal candidate, and W. R. Smythe, the present Conservative member, will enter the field again for his party. The Conservative nomination, held this evening, unanimously brought forward Moses McFadden, barrister, Sault Ste. Marie, as candidate for this district. The convention was enthusiastic, and the riding was well represented.

MINISTERS MEET AT THE CAPITAL

Cabinet Council May Commute the Death Sentence of Hogue.

Ottawa, Nov. 10.—Sir Frederick Borden came up by special train from Montreal yesterday afternoon in order to attend a cabinet council. Sir William Mulock came in from Toronto in the morning.

The Premier, Hon. Messrs. Brodeur, Prefontaine, Hyman, Scott, Fisher, Paterson and Sir Richard Cartwright were also on hand, leaving Messrs. Sifton, Fielding, Fitzpatrick and Sutherland the only absentees. One subject likely to come before the council is the capital case of Magloire Hogue, of Montreal, who lies under sentence of execution on the 18th inst., for the murder of his wife. From the circumstances of the case there is a possibility that the death penalty may be reduced to one of life imprisonment. Hogue was described by all the witnesses at the trial as a man of gentle disposition, and the only explanation of the crime is that it was committed while he was crazed with alcohol. No motive for the murder was established, and there is nothing to show that any serious row occurred between the husband and wife.

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., had been expected here, to be sworn in as a minister without portfolio. He had found it impossible, however, to come to the capital before next week.

Among the Premier's prominent callers were: Hon. A. G. Blair, ex-chairman of the railway commission; W. S. Calvert, M.P., the chief Liberal whip; Col. Thompson, ex-M.P., the defeated Liberal candidate in Haldimand, and Hon. M. E. Bernier, of the railway commission board.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION

Temperance Legislation Discussed at Bowmanville Meeting.

Bowmanville, Ont., Nov. 9.—The Ontario Woman's Temperance Union's 27th annual convention has so far proved exceptionally interesting, and the attendance at every session has been phenomenal. At this morning's session several superintendents of unions presented their reports. Mrs. Detlor, of North Bay, introduced the enfranchisement of women, which provoked an animated discussion, overwhelmingly favorable to the proposition. Miss Bowes, of Hamilton, discussed young women's work, and showed in numerous ways how their services can be employed to splendid effect, Mrs. Thornley, of London, introduced the report on publications, showing that the exercises, notices and leaflets printed by the Ontario Union and coming out under the various departments numbered 88,000 copies. Much praise was accorded Mrs. Thornley for the excellent services she had rendered, and for her satisfactory reports. At the afternoon session Mrs. McKee, of Barrie, proposed a resolution to increase the membership fee from 60 cents to $1, and to send every member a copy of Tidings, the official organ, free. Opinion on this radical proposition was so divided that the matter was referred to Mrs. Thornley and Miss Wiggins to draft a resolution and submit the same at a future session. The temperance question in Ontario was introduced by Miss Wiggins in a practical address. The question was debated with great fervor. The pros and cons were so evenly divided that a resolution was submitted to reach a decision, but it failed signally. The temperance resolution stated first, that the W. C. T. U. had always held that the partyism of the electors was the largest obstacle in the way of all moral reforms; second, that women were as responsible for their influence as men for their votes, and third, that the present crisis was one where, if a large measure of relief from the burdens of the liquor traffic was not secured, the delay and loss would be deplorable, and concluded by declaring that the W. C. T. U. would support any party pledged to enact legislation, reducing the drink trade to the smallest proportions. This resolution was followed by a discussion on Government control, which the convention almost as a unit repudiated, after hearing several letters from officials in Georgia and elsewhere. The vote was deferred till tomorrow in order to allow of further consideration. Tonight an extra session was held, at which several speeches on the Christian work of the white ribboners throughout the world were delivered. The members of the convention are watching anxiously for a definite announcement from Ontario's Premier on the platform upon which he will go to the electors.

MAY BE ALFONSO'S BRIDE

Rumored That He Is to Wed Connaught's Daughter.

Madrid, Nov. 9.—The betrothal of King Alfonso to Princess Victoria Patricia, daughter of the Duke of Connaught, is believed to be imminent. The duke was timed to visit here with his daughter, but the motor accident in Scotland delayed them. A Spanish notable, it is said, has been sent to London for photographs of the princess. Princess Victoria is about the same age as the youthful monarch.

AN ARIZONA HOLD-UP

Treasurer Robbed of $15,000 and Locked in His Own Safe.

Prescott, Arizona, Nov. 9.—James P. Storm, county treasurer, was today found bound and gagged and locked in the vault of his office. The treasurer had been robbed of $15,000.

Mr. Storm had been in the vault 16 hours. He says that at about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, while seated in his office, two masked men entered, and threatening to shoot him, bound his feet and hands, gagged him and pushed him inside the vault. After gathering up $15,000, the men closed the door of the vault, locked it and departed.

THE KING'S BIRTHDAY

Anniversary Was Loyally Celebrated Throughout United Kingdom.

London, Nov. 10.—The King's birthday was loyally celebrated throughout the United Kingdom yesterday. Flags were flying everywhere, and salutes were fired at noon at all military headquarters. Large crowds were present outside Buckingham Palace, and when the King appeared on his departure from the palace for a drive, he was heartily cheered. His Majesty looked in the best of health and excellent spirits. He was the recipient of warm congratulations from members of his family and foreign rulers.

Another report says: King Edward's 63rd birthday finds him in far better health than he has enjoyed for many years past, and as he is careful in the matter of diet and has always been abstemious with regard to stimulants, it is probable he will live for many years to come. The only trouble which he now gives to his doctors is his reluctance to take exercise. True, he is constantly on the move; yet, with all that, he gets little or no exercise, having given up horseback riding, and invariably driving where others would walk. Even in the Highlands this year he did no deer-stalking, but contented himself with deer drives, that is to say, with having game driven by beaters to guns at a given spot, to which he would proceed either by automobile or in a shooting cart.

EMPEROR JACQUES JAILED

Lebaudy, Masquerading, Mistaken for Defaulting Cashier.

Paris, Nov. 10.—The latest adventure of the former boulevardier, Jacques Lebaudy, now known as the "Mad Emperor Jacques," who claims sovereignty of the Sahara, has set Paris laughing. Lebaudy was mistaken for a runaway Vienna cashier, and was arrested and thrown into prison at Durazzo, a small Turkish port on the Adriatic.

He had been staying at Dulcigno, belonging to Prince Nicolas of Montenegro, which principality Jacques tried to buy outright despite her 5,000 inhabitants. He actually bought several houses.

A reward had been offered for the capture of the cashier, and the Turkish gendarme arrested Lebaudy, who, believing there was a plot to poison him, nearly starved to death, refusing food while in prison. The Austrian Government ordered his release.

HARD ROAD FOR IRISH BILL

Liberals Not Disposed to Support Reduction of Representation.

London, Nov. 10.—Ireland is once again the pivotal question of internal politics. The Government recently proposed to the Liberal leaders that they come together and agree upon a bill for redistribution of seats and devote next session to its passage. The principal object of the bill as outlined is to deprive Irish Nationalist constituencies of 32 seats, so as to prevent them from holding the balance of power in the next parliament.

Ireland's representation of 103 members was guaranteed to her by most solemn pledges under the act of union, even in the eventuality of her population declining, as it has done. The Liberal leaders have asked for more definite particulars of the proposed Government measure, and intimated that they could not agree to any redistribution bill which did not also enact the principle of "one man, one vote," abolishing the right now possessed and freely exercised by property owners of voting in several different constituencies. They also stipulated that no reductions in Irish representation should be proposed unless accompanied by an extended scheme of self-government.

As such a bill can be passed only by an agreement between the two parties, and as the Government has no other feasible legislation, it is expected that dissolution will take place soon after the opening of Parliament in February.

BOTH LEGS SEVERED

Fatal Accident to Switchman in the Yards at Windsor.

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 9. — A train of heavily-laden freight cars passed over Joseph Rennecamp, night switchman in the Grand Trunk yards in Windsor, at 1 o'clock this morning, and he died four hours later in Hotel Dieu.

Rennecamp had thrown a switch and was attempting to board the train to ride back to his post of duty, when the accident happened. His foot slipped and he was thrown under the cars, both legs being severed at the hips. His fellow-employes did their utmost to stop the flow of blood, which spurted in streams from Rennecamp's body. He was taken to the hospital unconscious, and he died without recovering consciousness.

Rennecamp lived at Mercer and Sandwich streets with his wife and child. He was about 23 years of age and was formerly a jockey. A brother rides for Joseph James, the Windsor horseman.

Says Delay in Elections Would Unsettle Business Conditions.

Montreal, Nov. 9.—Premier Parent, of the Provincial Legislature, has issued a manifesto in reply to the one sent out by the Conservative Opposition.

The Premier maintains he was perfectly justified in calling the elections, as to delay them would only be to keep business conditions unsettled. The Conservatives were well aware that the elections would be brought on, and had even been claiming the tide was turning. The Government was anxious to see if it was.

A member of the Provincial Cabinet announced today that the Government would not interfere in any way in the approaching elections between Liberals, and none of the candidates could claim they were ministerial nominees. It would only take part where there was a straight party fight.
