TORN TO PIECES BY A BEAR.

The Fate of a Boy Hunter on the Border of the Mojave Desert.

From The San Francisco Chronicle.

A thrilling story of an encounter with a bear, in which a boy lost his life, comes from Gorman's Station, 60 miles southwest of Bakersfield, in the mountains on the border of the Moave Desert.

Two boys, whose names are not given, left Gorman's Station one morning recently for a day's hunting. While traveling along the foothills in their search for game, they came suddenly upon a large grizzly bear. Acting upon the impulse of the moment, both raised their guns and fired. The shots were well aimed, but were only effective in infuriating the bear, which immediately started in pursuit of the boys. Becoming dismayed at the ineffectiveness of their weapons, the nerve of the young hunters deserted them, and they started off on a run, closely followed by the angry brute.

One lad, dropping his gun, succeeded in reaching and climbing a tree, where, safe from attack, he was compelled to witness the awful sight of his comrade's death. His companion was less fortunate in evading the pursuer, being so closely pressed that he was finally compelled to dodge around a convenient rock, followed by the bear. Twice he circled the boulder in a vain endeavor to save himself, but his powers of endurance were not equal to those of his pursuer. At length, when he could not go further, a stroke of the grizzly's paw stretched him on the ground. Springing upon him, the bear rapidly tore him to pieces, his terrified companion in the tree gazing in horror upon the awful spectacle, but unable to render any assistance.

Game in the Bruce Peninsula.

Wiarton Canadian.

Mr. Thomas Rydall of Albemarle tied his horse at Mr. Shackleton's hotel, Colpoys, and on returning for the animal patted "Shack's" pet bear on the head. Bruin resented the familiarity and proceeded to chew Mr. Rydall's arm, inflicting a serious gash just below the elbow, two punctures near the wrist, and otherwise bruising and disfiguring that useful part of Mr. Rydall's anatomy. The injured man came to Wiarton, where Dr. Wigle dressed the wounds. The bear has since been slaughtered to atone for his fault.

Mr. Henry Jermyn shot on Tuesday of last week, an eagle which measured seven feet six inches across the wings. It must have been Uncle Sam's own big eagle which had strayed over to the Cape and there met its fate. Dr. Fisher bought the bird and is having it stuffed as an ornament for his office.

Fifteen rabbits and three partridges was the bag brought in on Tuesday by a hunting party commanded by Mr. Huether, the other members of it being Messrs. S. Irwin, C. Hermann, M. Mowers and a couple of travelers.

Partridge in Barrie Residences.

Barrie Examiner.

That partridge are very plentiful this year is evident to any one who will go out into the woods. They even come into town. On Saturday one was seen on Dunlop-street, and on Sunday afternoon another was seen to fly against the glass in J. A. Otton's store. On Monday morning one of the same ilk flew through the glass in one of the windows in Dr. MacLaren's office and when some one entered the room, it flew out again, breaking a second pane of glass. But the effort was too much for it and it was stunned and so easily captured.

The Heart Does Not Grow Old.

It appears that the brain and the heart are two parts of the human organism that, if rightly used, may largely escape growing old. The unimpaired activity of great statesmen and other brain workers at a time when most of the bodily organs and functions are in advanced senile decay is a matter of frequent comment, but one for which a physiological explanation is given in a recent work by Dr. Balfour. The normal brain retains its vigor to the last, because there is especial provision for its nutrition. Near middle life the general arteries of the body begin to lose their elasticity and slowly dilate, becoming much less efficient carriers of nutrient blood to the capilliary area, but the internal carotids—which feed the capilliary areas of the brain—are not affected by this impairment and retain their youthful elasticity, thus keeping up the blood pressure in the brain and giving better nourishment to the brain tissues than is received by any other tissues of the body.

East Toronto Notes.

The Willing Workers of St. John's Church, Norway, will hold a social at Boston's Hall, East Toronto, this evening. Mr. J. W. Bengough will give a humorous reading and Mr. Bailey, son of the bandmaster of the Q.O.R., will perform a violin solo. Among the singers are Misses Dickson and Black and Mr. Paget. Miss Leigh is down on the program for a reading. Refreshments will be served after the performance.

A quoit tournament, open to all comers, will be held on the 21st inst., at the grounds adjoining Boston's Hall. A number of good prizes are offered.

The village school was closed yesterday and this morning, owing to the sittings of the Teachers' Convention in the city.

One Crook Who Avoided Toronto.

John Don Farden, the Adams Express Company employe who absconded from Terre Haute, Ind., on Sept. 6, with $18,000 belonging to his employes, and who is thought to have headed for this city, was captured in Baltimore, Saturday night, after a chase extending over more than half the continent. Farden had spent almost every dollar of the stolen money.

South Africa's Trade.

"International Trade," is the name of a new monthly magazine published by Henry Glassford, 66 Bond-street, New York. The magazine is intended to give information of countries and new territories in which it is possible for Americans to extend their business. The first number is devoted almost exclusively to South Africa. The facts contained in the magazine ought to be of interest to Canadian manufacturers, as well as to those in the United States.

TRADE IN CANADA.

Further Advances in Prices of Several Lines of Merchandise.

From Dun's Daily Bulletin.

Montreal advices do not indicate any special change in the trade situation since a week ago. The movement in most lines is just about as last reported. For raw wool there is a better demand, stimulated by the strong conditions abroad, and fair sales have been effected at some little advance. Fine grades of butter are more active at stiffer prices, but cheese does not advance. Owing to the continued upward move of the raw cotton market, mill agents have again issued notice to the wholesale dry goods trade of further advance in shirtings, tickings, denims, flannelettes, ginghams, cottonades, carpet warp, etc. Some of the woolen mills also announce an advance in tweeds and flannels. In sugars the market shows a strong upward move, two distinct advances, of an eighth of a cent each, having been established within the week.

The condition of the wholesale trade at Toronto is somewhat improved. In many lines of business there is an increase in the number of orders received, and the general feeling is one of confidence. Prices of the leading staples are very strong. The notable change this week is the advance in sugars, which is thought to be legitimate, and which has stimulated the demand. Granulated are selling at 4 1-2c, and yellows at 3 1-2c. The metal market is very firm with business fairly satisfactory. Galvanized tin is higher and the general trend in prices seems to be in that direction. The higher prices for cotton goods mentioned last week are fully maintained. There is a moderate demand for wheat from millers and prices are relatively firm at 63c to 64c on the Grand Trunk. Offerings are restricted, farmers being inclined to hold for higher prices.

THE IRON TRADE.

Over a Hundred Thousand Tons of Rails for 1896 Delivery.

Cleveland, Oct. 10.—The Iron Trade Review says to-day: The iron trade has spent another week in the effort to find its proper level, and as in every such period of waiting and uncertainty, prices have settled. Even though it were certain that the checking of the advance was due in the first instance to a bear campaign, whose influence was expected to reach into ore buying time next year, it is plain that deeper forces will decide what the outcome is to be. One factor of much importance is the placing of 130,000 to 140,000 tons of rails for 1896 delivery and the readiness with which further negotiations on the $28 basis are entered into by the railroads. Prodigious corn and wheat movements can reasonably be expected to bring the western roads into line. The amount of Bessemer pig located in the hands of middlemen since the turn downward has been a surprise. Buying has been light, small amounts having been sold at $16 in the valley, and it is possible now to shade this figure. Billets have declined further and $22 to $22.50 Pittsburg is the present basis. Views of sellers are considerably at variance, but it would appear that the supply of steel for the balance of the year would be in excess of calculations a month ago. Southern sellers of pig iron report an inactive market. Gray forge is weaker at $13 to $13.25. Old material has shared in the decline and under light buying is from $1 to $2 at ton below prices of two weeks ago. The eastern market shows little activity. Tank steel, while held at $1.30 Pittsburg by most mills, is quoted somewhat lower in competitive territory. The bar iron associations at their Pittsburg conference paved the way for a national agreement and a uniform card, but no action was taken about current prices.

Embraced the Wrong Girl.

From The Chicago Times-Herald.

Being a new woman saved Miss Leonard of Cloquet, Minn., from an unpleasant experience recently. For some weeks past woman who were out after dark had been accosted on the streets by a young man, Arthur Adams, who approached them from behind and treated them to a hugging. Several ladies have been embraced in this way, but all attempts to catch the offender proved unavailing until he experimented on Miss Leonard. The lady, who is a plump, muscular woman, did not feel in the mood for being hugged just then, and led with her right. The young man was not prepared for this, and before he recovered from his surprise Miss Leonard had him thoroughly whipped.

Night School for Newsboys.

The Night School Committee of the Public School Board met yesterday afternoon and acquiesced with the request of the newsboys' Home that a night school be established there. The home will supply room, light, heat, etc., and the board will provide a teacher and books. Mr. L. Lennox is recommended to the board as a suitable teacher.

McIntyre & Wardwell send the following to their branch office in Toronto: London houses started the reaction this afternoon, selling considerable quantities of international stocks. It is said that the movement is based on reports of further trouble in the Kaffir mining market. As it was 7.30 to 8 p.m. in London at the time the selling began the probability is that the orders originated on this side, and that foreign houses were used for speculative effect. The whole market weakened, but there was no evidence of any liquidation other than by professional traders. It is reported Mr. J. J. Hill will resign the presidency of the Great Northern to further his plans in regard to the control of Northern Pacific. Mr. Hill is said to be the largest actual holder of Northern Pacific securities. The trunk line presidents are expected to agree, but nothing of a definite character has transpired about their meeting. Efforts to fix up Western rates have been a failure. Moloney says he has not yet seen the Chicago Gas plan, though he has it in hand and will examine it.

Henry A. King & Co. received the following despatch from Chicago:

There is very little to add to what we have previously said about wheat. To-day's market was narrow, awaiting the Government report, which comes out at 4 p.m. to-day. Public and private cables were only steady. The Cincinnati Price Current says: "No essential relief from influence of drought in retarding wheat seeding. Chances still admit of much further seeding. Disappointing outlook for prices restricting wheat planting west of Mississippi. Drought principal factor eastward. Crop sown generally retarded but position not discouraging. Not much enlargement in wheat movement indicated." Primary receipts 1,185,000 bushels, against 818,000 bushels same day a year ago. About half an hour before the close the market rallied sharply to 60⅝c on reported engagement of a quarter of a million bushels at New York for export, but soon lost the advance and closed at about the lowest point of the day.

McIntyre & Wardwell (John J. Dixon) received the following despatch from Schwartz, Dupee & Co., Chicago:

The wheat market to-day was nervous and unsettled. Local traders early were bearish, advancing the market later on an effort to cover shorts. Towards the close two or three big lines of wheat were thrown on the market, which started a general selling movement and caused decline and weakness at the finish. The clearances from the seaboard were only 500,000 bushels in wheat and flour. Dry weather continues throughout the winter wheat States, retarding seeding. New York reported 28 boat loads sold for export, a portion of which is understood to be old business. The preponderance of news continues bearish, but the market is so narrow that it turns easily without any special cause. Rumors were afloat that the Government estimate would be raised to 420,000,000 bushels, against the September estimate of about 400,000,000 bushels.

Corn lower yet, declining from 29¼c to 28½c. This decline offset the advance in freight rates, and charters were made for 250,000 bushels at from 3½c to 4c to Buffalo. Most of the business done was against privileges. It was generally supposed that the Government estimate would show an improvement in condition and yield.

Provisions more active and weak. Packers were considerable sellers, and there were a good many October ribs for sale around 5 cents. Stockyards reported many less sick hogs arriving, and it looks as if the trouble is about over. There is not speculation enough to hold the market against such liberal receipts of hogs, of which the quality is gradually growing better.
