NO ALCOHOL IN IT.—Alcohol or any other volatile matter which would impair strength by evaporation does not in any shape enter into the manufacture of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Nor do climatic changes affect it. It is as serviceable in the Arctic Circle as in the Torrid Zone, perhaps more useful in the higher latitudes, where man is more subject to colds from exposure to the elements.

SULTAN HAMID AT DEATH'S DOOR; PALACE PLOT TO CHANGE SUCCESSOR

Paris, Aug. 21. — A communication emanating from the reform party at Constantinople will appear here tomorrow, asserting that the health of the Sultan of Turkey is gradually failing, and that a fatal result shortly may be expected.

It is added that Abdul Hamid is fully aware of his condition, and desires to secure a successor who will follow out his policy.

He is said to consider the heir-presumptive, his brother, Mohammed Rechard, to be too liberal, which view is supported by his majesty's entourage.

The communication also says that a plot is going on in the palace, in which Abdul Hamid's advisers and the religious chiefs of the Mohammedans are conniving at the disinheritance of Mohammed Rechard, who will be declared incapacitated by illness from succeeding to the throne, and the Sultan thereafter will proclaim his seventh son, Mohammed Burnham-Eddine, who was born in 1885, to be his successor.

It is pointed out that the latter is in complete accord with his father's policy, which the reformers claim would mean a continuation of the present regime of terror and massacre.

Banquet Marks the Close of Unique Sporting Event

English bowlers, and Capt. Fingland looked after the interests of the Scotch in good style.

Mr. E. Weld, president of the Western Ontario Bowling Association, was toastmaster. He felt it a great honor to be chosen to such a position, especially under the circumstances. This tour had been a triumphal one for the visitors, and it would have a tremendous influence on Canadian bowlers, and an equally great influence on Canadian citizens. He then proposed the health of "The King," which was drunk heartily.

The next toast was "Canada," and the names of Rev. Mr. Clark and Peter Campbell were coupled with it.

Mr. Clark on Canada.

Mr. Clark esteemed it a great honor to be asked to speak to such a toast on such an occasion. This tour would have a good effect on both countries. But he would like to know just how this country appeared to the visitors, as strangers. They would note our customs and fashions and perhaps criticise them unfavorably, when perhaps if they knew all the circumstances their judgment would be more lenient, for they would make allowances. He was persuaded that the members of the team were prepared to look upon this country in the most favorable light. They surely would have a rose-colored vision of a country where they had achieved such triumphs. Canada has been growing of late. They were coming from the old land to find homes here, when it is so difficult to find homes in Great Britain. He wished he had the eloquence of the voices of the visitors, of such depth, of such music of the men from across the wave, that he might express himself about Canada. The visitors had taught him eloquence, for he had never seen persons so eloquent as some of the bowlers. The country would have no missionaries such as these gentlemen. He would tell them to tell their countrymen that Canada was the land of opportunity. He would not go into figures. He would not speak for its climate. That had already spoken for itself. Of course, this was an exceptional season, he declared, amid laughter. But this was the country where every decent, honorable man could make a decent living for himself and family. There is no inequality here, save the inequality by divine appointment, based on character, ability and industry. This is the country for the man whose purse is thin, but whose hope is high, for those who build not for themselves, but for their sons and daughters. Tell them that in Canada there is plenty of room for them to bear the white man's burden. Canada was a nation in the making. There is no problem of such interest to the mind of man than the making of a nation. No idle scoffer would dare say that Canada would not soon be a people. There was room here for the intense fervor of the Celt, the canny shrewdness and solidity of the lowland Scotch, and the dogmatism of the English, that has made them hold his own in spite of everything. He sent his best wishes to the bowlers on the way home to the old land. He wanted, and the people of Canada wanted, no other form of government than they now had, with such rulers as the late revered Queen Victoria, and her son, King Edward VII.

"Jollied" Canadian Ladies.

Mr. Peter Campbell was given a tremendous ovation when he arose to speak. It was especially gratifying to him to note the presence of the ladies at the banquet. This was as it should be. It was better than placing them in the gallery to see the lions fed. He had been disabused of many ideas of Canada. Its fertility, its extent, its greatness, had far exceeded his expectations. There were hundreds and thousands in the old land who would do well in this country. There were great tracts of land awaiting occupation, and they would yield great returns to the men of industry. There were many men of enthusiasm and education awaiting a chance to come to this country. Of course, there was a class of citizen that they did not want here, not the unemployed, but the unemployable. During his trip he met with many who had come out from the old land without any money, but they had carved out for themselves, and were prosperous and happy.

"My ideas of Canadian women were entirely false. I had no dea of the refinement, the beauty, and the great loving hearts of Canadian women. It has been an eye-opener to me to meet such a class of ladies as we have met tonight, and at other places in our tour. The influence of such women on the education, on the character of your youth, is inestimable," was his hearty tribute to the women of Canada.

During his stay in Canada, Mr. Campbell had scarcely come upon a drunken man, and certainly not upon a drunken woman. It was not an uncommon sight in his country to see both sexes drunk. He warned the youth against the use of cigarettes.

Realized Canadian Greatness.

Capt. Fingland replied to the toast to the "British Bowlers." He declared they were a representative team. They represented 30,000 bowlers in Scotland, and 40,000 in England. He had seen the prairies of Canada in all their glory. He had seen the Rockies and the Selkirks, and he would go home with a far greater idea of Canada than he had come out with.

Mr. E. Pickard spoke briefly on behalf of the English bowlers. He thanked the committee heartily for their attentions to their ladies. He and the party enjoyed their picnic to Springbank more than anything else in the city. He said that a London player declared that they played with great earnestness.

"We have to do it," he said. "There are thousands at home watching what we are doing, and we'd come in for a good rasping when we got home if we did not give a good account of ourselves."

Ireland's Representative.

Mr. Daniel McLaughlin, of Ireland, declared that he had been on more losing rinks than any other player in the party. It was because he was on the team, the skip said, but he disagreed with the skip. He had not played on a better green than the London green since he came to Canada. He had never seen a more beautifully situated green. He spoke highly of the treatment he and his party had received during their visit in London.

"If you will treat us during the rest of our natural lives as you have the past two days, we will become permanent citizens," he declared, amid laughter. He also spoke of the kind attentions to the ladies of the party in London, and he expressed his great appreciation of it.

Mayor Judd responded to the toast of "The Forest City," and Mr. John Stevenson spoke eloquently on "Our Commercial Interests."

Ald. Gillean took charge of the toast to "The Ladies," and he said all that could be said on that subject.

Those who contributed to the delightful programme of music were Mrs. James B. McKillop, Miss Lena Labatt and Mr. William Skinner, soloists, and Mr. Charles E. Wheeler, accompanist.

The banquet committee was most representative and consisted of the following:

London Rowing Club—Anthony Tillmann, Jared Vining. London Thistles—Dr. A. G. Fraser, Dr. Claude Brown. Western Ontario Bowling Association—Edmund Weld, Dr. Jeffrey N. Wood, James S. McDougall, James D. Tytler. Municipal Council of London—Ald. Joshua Garratt, Ald. Thomas Gillean. Board of Trade of London—President Arthur W. White; chairman of committee, Ald. Thomas Gillean; secretary-treasurer, James D. Tytler.

Bridant to Face Charge of Having Murdered His Wife.

Toronto, Aug. 21.—In this morning's police court Magistrate Kingsford sent up for trial Edmund Bridant and Mrs. Lillian Miller, accused of the murder of Mrs. Agnes Bridant, wife of Edmund Bridant.

Mr. Neville, acting as counsel for Bridant, had asked for a stay of proceedings alleging that the magistrate had been prejudiced, had exceeded civil rights by seizing Bridant's private papers, had acted as assistant prosecuting attorney, and was guilty of other alleged departures from the orthodox and legal.

Mr. Neville called several witnesses, as he said that he might mitigate the effect of the dead woman's ante-mortem statement.
