A Presbyterian Reaction.

We understand the Presbyterian clergymen of Toronto recently discussed the question of permitting greater liberality to members of the church in the matter of the doctrines upon which the church is founded. In this respect they are following an example set by the clergymen of many localities elsewhere. In the United States, especially, has a reaction set in against the very decided attitude of the last General Assembly towards Dr. Briggs. At Cleveland lately there was a conference of ministers and elders, the outcome of which was a manifesto protesting against certain technical rulings against Dr. Briggs. The conference was apparently apprehensive of considerable defections from the church on account of the action against Dr. Briggs, and it was to prevent such defections that the manifesto was issued. The manifesto is issued to Presbyterians in general, and appeals especially to those "brethren who may be perplexed concerning their duty," and advises them to "abide in the communion and service of the church," assuring them that in so doing they will act "well within their constitutional rights." The manifesto is a declaration, by inference if not by direct assertion, that one can still remain a good Presbyterian although not subscribing to the doctrine of the infallibility of the Westminster Confession of Faith. In other words, it is admitted that the Westminster Confession, being a human document, may and probably does contain errors. The World recently published a summary of Dr. Briggs' paper in The Forum on "The Alienation of Church and People." In this paper the rev. gentleman used strong language in reference to the antagonism of his church towards the learning and scholarship of the age. There are so many creeds formulated on the Christian religion that thinking people have begun to ask themselves what all this variation means. Dr. Briggs is expelled from the Presbyterian Church, but he would have no difficulty in becoming attached to half a dozen other denominations of the Christian Church. The Methodist will admit that a Presbyterian can be a true Christian and the Presbyterian will not deny the possibility of a Baptist or Episcopalian being among the elect. If one denomination will admit that those who belong to other sects may be true Christians, why should this same denomination seek to exclude from its membership those whose departure from orthodoxy is much less pronounced than that of individuals belonging to other denominations? For instance, if the Presbyterians will admit that a Baptist or a Congregationalist can be a Christian why should they refuse to recognize Dr. Briggs as one? Dr. Briggs is, perhaps, no more out of tune with the Presbyterian Church than is General Booth or Dr. Wild. If Dr. Wild or General Booth is a Christian so is Dr. Briggs. And if Dr. Briggs is a Christian why should the Presbyterian Church be so narrow as to drive him out of its doors? The church that people would like to see established is one that will attract Christians and not repel them. The coming church will seek to unify the denominations, not to perpetuate and increase their number. We are on the eve of a new reformation. Creeds and confessions will go to the wall, and so will those churches that oppose intellectual learning, because it does not appear to tally with their iron-clad articles and doctrines. There will be more liberty in the new church and fewer attempts made to regulate the actions of others.

The Horse.

Asked how the tone of the horse market could best be re-established a gentleman of this city, who was at the New York horse show, said: "The reason for the unprecedented lowness of price is the superabundance of animals for sale. The only cure is to stop breeding. The ordinary farmer, with an ordinary mare, who has been used to mating her with an ordinary sire, had better go out of the business. There is always room—on the top; but the lower grades of horseflesh are at a terrible discount. New York will take no more car horses, and the exportation of vanners and bus horses to England does not pay. High-stepping, bold harness horses and saddle horses, by blood stallions, will always fetch a big price anywhere. The demand for them is as practically unlimited as the supply has been short, owing to the past stupidity of breeders. Rich men will always want good horses, and Canada has an ever-increasing number of young horses growing into money. Similarly bred horses do not exist anywhere in the States unless in parts of Kentucky and Missouri, and the consumption of such horses in American cities is now very large, at many places packs of hounds having been established, which involve the purchase of hundreds of half-bred hunters. The slump is only in the hairy-heeled, slab-sided mongrels that are got by cheap trotting sires from mares one-half Clyde and in the even less valuable product of a light harness sire and a mare of his own pattern. The Ontario Government's lecturers should inculcate the lesson that it will only pay to breed from the best, and if, at all events for a year, breeding was confined to these the price of farm horses would go up. If the best are not attainable "don't" is the best advice that can be given to Canadian farmers under present circumstances.

"Apply, Stating Salary."

Rural school trustees are great sticklers for economy. They desire, no doubt, that the children in their section shall receive as good an educational training as possible, but they insist that it shall be imparted at the lowest possible cost. Therefore the stereotyped phrase, "apply, stating salary," appears in every advertisement for a new teacher. The province grinds out annually almost enough teachers to go round, and the desire of each Model school graduate to obtain employment has caused trustees to adopt the methods of the Dutch auction fakir. These tactics of allowing applicants to underbid one another have resulted in retaining of teachers' salaries at the minimum notch, past success availing little with the average farmer trustee, cheapness superseding everything else. The usual salary paid in township schools is $200, in villages and the smaller towns $600 may be reached, but seldom is. Yet people wonder that so many successful birch-wielders leave that profession for others. By a clause in the Municipal Act corporation authorities are forbidden to advertise for tenders when filling stated offices, the salary proposed to be paid must be stated. The result is that the choice is based on the applicant's fitness for the position. School trustees "go it blind" to a large extent, and if the teacher prove a success, all well and good, if not they advertise and again try one of the lowest salaried applicants. Hon. G. W. Ross should embody a clause in the next amendment to the Public Schools Act compelling all school boards to state the stipend paid to teachers, and thus remove all possibility of underbidding in a profession which is notoriously overcrowded.

The Engineer Should Report on the Scheme.

The proposal to extend College-avenue down to the new Union Station continues to attract more and more attention. The more the project is considered the more feasible does it appear. An inspection of the locality reveals the fact that the extension would run through vacant property or property encumbered with no expensive buildings. It has been suggest d that the property-owners directly interested should meet and talk the matter over. Just how much of the expense of opening the street should be charged to them and how much, if any, to the city at large is a question about which there will be diversity of opinion. A gentleman who has had large experience in such matters says the city ought to bear one-third of the expense. Another citizen thinks the city and the property owners should each pay one-half. The World suggests that some of the aldermen take the matter up and get the engineer to make a report on the subject. We understand the city officials are not overburdened with work just now. A report such as we refer to would be an acceptable document to the large number of citizens who are interested in the project.

To Jackson Wallace.

By all the Gods, Jackson, we are dea d in love with you. Come to the Queen City so that we may see you. Come, come on at once, and delay not, neither at the Bridge nor at Hamilton. Make a through trip. Our hearts beat fast and we cannot get a glimpse of you too soon. Then don't disappoint us, Jackson. The city is at a standstill. We are, as it were, gasping for breath. For if you fail us, where shall we be? That canal of yours—on it the fate of this our city depends. Everything is hanging fire, Jackson, till you loom up. So come. Come by the Empire express or by any other express that will bring you quicker. Leave your Fifth-avenue mansion, Jackson, and come hither. We will treat you well. We fully appreciate the sacrifice we are asking you to make. We know full well the value that even a single detached second is to a man like you, Jackson, on whose lips a stenographer is continually hanging to catch every word that drops from your lips, whose time is so precious that even the intervals between the coming and going of witnesses in the court room are utilized for the dictation of letters and the settlement of 60 million dollar schemes. Spare a week, or even three days to pay us a visit. Or if you cannot spare so many precious days, then come on to Buffalo and a deputation of our citizens will attend upon you there. Come till we introduce you to those who have so nobly held up the scheme at this end of the line. Come along, Jackson. Joe Pocock will await you at the station and Ald. Carlyle will conduct you to the best accommodation that the town affords. Come along.

A. B. Aylesworth, Q.C., has steadily but surely worked his way to the front row of lawyers practising at the Ontario bar, and his many friends agreed with the praise bestowed upon him by Judge Rose for his speech in the McGreevy trial at Ottawa. Success at the bar, like everywhere else, comes only to the indefatigable worker.

TRADE TOPICS.

A meeting of the council of the Toronto Board of Trade will be held this afternoon to transact routine business.

There were a number of Hamilton merchants in town yesterday, the attraction being the sale of drygoods of the estate of J. F. Alston. The stock of about $12,000 was sold by Suckling & Co. to F. X. Cousineau & Co. for 70c on the dollar. The stock of J. W. Hall, Owen Sound, was withdrawn until next week. The stock of the Toronto Plate Glass Co. will be offered for sale to-day by Suckling & Co.

"There is a very good trade in groceries at present," remarked a dealer to a World representative yesterday. "The feature is another drop in refined sugars. We are now selling granulated at 4¾c, the refiners' price in Montreal being 4 1-2c. The decline is in sympathy with New York markets."

A favorable feature of the Canadian bank statement for October is the increase in the note circulation of $1,750,000. There is also an increase in the deposits, while loans on stocks have decreased $180,000. Commercial discounts increased $200,000, and the balances due Canadian banks in the United States increased nearly $1,500,000, showing a more active demand for money there than here.

For Nine Years.—Mr. Samuel Bryan, Thedford, writes: "For nine years I suffered with ulcerated sores on my leg. I expended over $100 to physicians and tried every preparation I heard of or saw recommended for such disease, but could get no relief. I at last was recommended to give Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil a trial, which has resulted after using eight bottles (using it internally and externally) in a complete cure. I believe it is the best medicine in the world and I write this to let others know what it has done for me."

Documentary History of Education in Upper Canada.

The Minister of Education is having prepared for publication at an early day a series of official documents, letters and papers under the above title and designed to illustrate the history of education in this province since 1792-1795. Persons having any letters, papers or documents relating to the establishment of local schools or institutions of learning between the years named and 1840 would greatly oblige the minister by letting him know of their existence or by sending to him copies of them.

Soup Kitchens to Be Established in Various sections of the City—The Cutting of An Eighth of a Cord of Wood Payment for a Night's Lodging and Breakfast.

The House of Industry Board met yesterday afternoon in the Home in Elm-street. The treasurer's report showed that their account in the bank is overdrawn to the amount of $561.86. The contract for the supplying of coal to the institution was awarded to Rogers & Co. The steam heating contract was secured by Bennett & Wright with a tender of $1495. The granolithic pavement will be put in the casual ward by Alfred Gardner. The board at this season of the year have many applicants for assistance, who all declare their willingness to work, but who, after partaking of the Home's hospitality, refuse to labor. The discussion that took place over this problem was participated in by every member present.

How Boston Manages Affairs.

Mr. J. M. Treble instanced the method employed in Boston, where they have a home called the Wayfarers' Inn, with accommodation for 106 men. Every applicant to obtain admittance and board for a night and morning is required to cut ½ of a cord of wood. No person under the influence of liquor is admitted. Four years before this system was established, he said, there were on an average 60,000 applicants for assistance every year, but after its establishment the ranks of those applying for assistance was rapidly thinned down to 30,000. These represent the number who really wanted work. The city of Boston granted the home on its inception $11,000, $5000 of which was paid off the first year by the selling of the split wood.

What the City Is Offering.

Ald. Saunders, chairman of the Executive Board of the city, said that Commissioner Jones had been instructed to give two days' work to men who presented a note from a member of the board or a visitor. He would give married men the preference.

This was the most important concession ever made to the home by the city, said the Rev. D. J. Macdonnell.

A committee was finally appointed, consisting of Messrs. Gilray, Ince, Moore and Treble, to look into the matter fully and report at the next meeting of the board.

In regard to the placing of soup kitchens in various portions of the city for the convenience of those living far from the home the board thought that the subject could be dealt with by the Outdoor Poor Committee.

Tramps from the United States will in future have great difficulty in securing board for a longer period than one night.

Toronto Junction.

At the meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee Superintendent Haggas submitted his report of the pumping engine for three days, which averaged 3350 lbs. per day, pumping 985,756 gallons. The report showed proposed saving to be effected by the proposed new reservoir.——At the regular meeting of the Board of Health the Medical Health Officer submitted his annual report, showing 125 cases of scarlet fever, of which 21 proved fatal. Since the fever epidemic the general health of the town has been good, with less sickness than at any previous date; recommends the privy pits and vaults be abolished where sewers are laid on the streets, also that the subject of vaccination should be considered by the Public School Board at once. The school he found in a thoroughly sanitary condition. The supply of milk through the dealers was up to the standard.——The board granted the M. H. O. $50 additional salary.——The wardens of St. John's have applied to the council to have the electric light replaced opposite the church doors.——Court Toronto Junction I.O.F. presentation of prizes took place at 8 o'clock, after which they partook of an oyster supper.——The treasurer was authorized to issue a cheque for $25 in favor of Sanitary Inspector Ryding for the lease of a telephone.

North Toronto.

A petition is being largely circulated praying the council to take action so that the representation of the wards may be reduced to one, also that economy may be used in the inspection of public works and the collection of taxes.——Mr. Sam Lawrence is in the field for one of the reeveships.——The chicken-pie social held in the Eglinton Methodist Church last night was quite a success of its kind, although the storm prevented many from attending.——Little Mary Day is still in the General Hospital, but is much better.——Mr. Frank Lawrence reports that a thief entered his cow-byre and stole a cow valued at $75. So far no trace of the thief has been found.——The meeting of the council took place in the Town Hall, Mayor Fisher in the chair. Members present: Reeve Davis, Deputy Reeves Doig and Pears; Councillors Stibbard, Doherty, Still, Rae, Lawrence, Bryce. The minutes were read and confirmed. A communication from Councillor Donohue asking for a rebate of $10 in taxes on account of the houses that were burned. The Finance Committee presented their report. Councillor Still spoke in favor of paying Mr. Klinck the amount of his account. Councillor Stibbard resented accounts of this description being acknowledged. Reeve Davis spoke of the untidy and careless manner in which the drain was filled in, leaving the earth over a foot above the road. The council resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole, Reeve Pears in the chair. The bylaw for planting shade trees was read the first time.

Bylaw introduced by Mr. Stibbard to lay a water main in Albertus-avenue was received and carried.

Moved by Mr. Davis, seconded by Mr. Pears, That accounts to the amount of $295 be paid. Carried. Moved by Mr. Lawrence, seconded by Mr. Rae, That the guard board opposite Mr. Anderson's property be placed under the scantling. Carried. Moved by Mr. Bryce, seconded by Mr. Doherty, That the mayor and treasurer be authorized to borrow the sum of $1200 to lay mains in Albertus-avenue. The mayor informed Mr. Pears that only $12 had been granted to Mrs. Tembleson.

Mr. Stibbard wished to know what the council proposed to do re the rails in Victoria-avenue taken down. Mr. Doig said that there was great danger to man and beast, and that the water courses were changed. The council then adjourned.

AUTUMN'S GLORY.

The Fair Chrysanthemum Now Holds Sway in Myriad Form and Tint at the Horticultural Pavilion.

THE Chrysanthemum Exhibition, the fourth annual delight prepared for Torontonians by the Toronto Gardeners and Florists Association, opened at the Horticultural Pavilion yesterday and continues afternoon and evening until Friday.

The hundreds of spectators who visited the Pavilion yesterday were treated to a scene of wonderful beauty.

Toronto has always exhibited the best grown plants of this species in the country, and she eclipses her former triumphs this year. A host of flowers of exceptional merit and a fine display of seedlings, many of them new, are exhibited by growers in Toledo, Ohio; Adrian, Mich.; Erie, Pa.; Shorts Hill, New Jersey; Buffalo, and Mt. Healy, Ont.

The chrysanthemum thoroughly deserves her crown as Queen of the Autumn, and by her wonderful versatility and inexhaustible graces has become the florists' favorite. When "roses red and violet blue" fade from the summer fields, the hardy little chrysanthemum, cousin to the modest aster, is left to grace the gardens. And no monotonous flower is she, indeed! Each petal is really a floret, a little flower, which has all the organs necessary to the perfection of the seed, regardless of what is done in any of the other florets of the same flower. Of amazing variety, too, are the multitudinous shapes and colors with which she charms the eye! Now, she peeps forth a tender lover's flower; now a romantic bloom and now a stately queen; and then, as if in merriment, bursts out a grotesque, ragged, tendriled madcap, a comical little Japanese pompon or button, or a fantastic, hairy Catharine's wheel. Infinite is her variety, full of fresh surprises for the gardener, and surpassingly lovely, ever, even in her wildest moods. She has a shape and a color, the hue changeable as the form, for every sentiment. The pale, aristocratic orchid, with its delicate tints and fragile bending, never changes its mood, but the chrysanthemum, fertile in conceits, appeals to every mood and is, in short, an entire garden in one bud.

Prolific and delightfully multifarious in shape and tint as the chrysanthemum is, she is the garden queen and not a wildwood belle. She seems to have been sent as a Divine gift to the florists, who have accomplished so many magic wonders with her. She is not found in a wild state anywhere—that is, the golden flower—which has monopolized by right of superior worth the proud title of chrysanthemum. The Marguerite and ox-eyed daisy are also chrysanthemums, but the title has passed to the Chrysanthemum Sinensis, which, as her name reveals, is a native of China. She was the admiration of the far East 2300 years ago, and Confucius said of her: "The chrysanthemum has her yellow glory."

Her fame spread to Japan and she herself soon followed to that sunny isle. She became the Mikado's flower, and away back in the year 1186 the swords of the reigning Mikado were decorated with figures of the flower. So popular grew the golden queen with the esthetic Japanese that Breynius, the first European author to mention her, christened her as Matricaria Japonica Maxima. It was nearly a century afterward when, in 1764, a small flowering species was discovered growing in a garden at Chelsea, now part of London. Even in 1820 only 12 sorts were known in England. But so wonderfully versatile is the flower that four years later the number increased to 27. Marvelous as has since been the chrysanthemum's development, in the old home in the Mikado's garden are still many new and almost miraculous varieties.

In addition to the chrysanthemums are many excellent exhibits of palms, ferns, orchids, carnations and roses.

Glionna's orchestra is in attendance and furnishes selections to the many admirers of this branch of horticulture who throng the building.

Mr. Thomas Bell of Messrs. Scott, Bell & Co., proprietors of the Wingham Furniture Factory, writes: "For over one year I was not free one day from headache. BAILIFF GEGG RESTRAINED

From Selling the Goods in The Mart for Unpaid Taxes.

The Mart was filled from prow to stern yesterday at 11 o'clock when Bailiff Gegg had announced that he would sell the goods contained therein for unpaid taxes. The exclusive account in the morning World of the unusual seizure had brought the public to see the sight. Many of the unfortunate owners of the goods were present. "Are you the man that's going to sell my folding bed?" said one indignant dame. "Madame, not me, but the Law," replied Mr. Gegg. The bailiff waited a few minutes after 11, when Barrister D. H. Watt rushed in and served a paper on Mr. Gegg temporarily forbidding the sale. Mr. Justice Robertson granted the stay until Tuesday next.

Mr. Watt hopes to be able to convince the court that goods in auction rooms are exempt for taxes. You cannot take a man's horse in a blacksmith's shop, or the wheat while being ground in the mill, or the yarn while being spun or woven for the debt of the blacksmith, the miller or the weaver, and why a man's bed when left for sale at an auction room? But the tax collector says that the law orders him to make the taxes out of any personalty that may be on the premises before he sells the property. Quite a number of cases of extreme hardship have occurred under this law, and the Legislature will be asked to remedy it at the coming session.

Bailiff Gegg bowed to the restraining paper of the judge, told his audience that the sale would accordingly stand adjourned and dismissed them all with a "God Save the Queen."

Why The Khan Went to Jail.

A correspondent at Rockton writes to The World giving an account of the occurrence which landed The Khan in duress. A neighbor woman of the Kernighans has a flock of 50 turkeys. The Kernighans have a field of corn and the birds have been living in this field. The Khan tried to keep them away and, failing, sought to impound them; but their owner rescued them on the way. A dog of The Khan's was poisoned, and when the neighbor was accused it is said she remarked that "more than the dog would be poisoned before she was done." Mr. Kernighan for the second time sought to have her bound over to keep the peace, but did not succeed. A few days later, while drawing in the corn, the woman confronted The Khan with a demand for a dollar, the value of a turkey she claimed he had killed. She was ordered off the place by Mr. Kernighan, but defied him and used most provocatory language. Mr. Kernighan told The Khan to arrest her for trespass, and, taking her by the wrists, The Khan escorted her to Magistrate McDonald's office. Next day The Khan was charged with assault, and, after 24 hours' deliberation, the magistrates sent the accused to jail for 21 days. The neighborhood is indignant.
