TEUTONS UNABLE TO HOLD CAPTIVE

Pte. Saunderson, Formerly of Winnipeg, Tells Stirring Story.

MADE TWO EFFORTS

Second Time He Succeeded in Getting Into Dutch Territory.

but refused, saying that nine of them had been used for working underground. After some delay it was agreed that they should work on the surface. Saunderson worked there until last September and it was during that time that he made his first attempt to escape.

First Attempt Failed.

Saunderson's companions in this enterprise were Archibald Christopher, 8th Battalion and S. G. Wood, Western Cavalry. The attempt came off on the first Sunday in September. Saunderson got away from the neighborhood comfortably and covered about twenty kilometres, living mostly on apples which he picked. On the way there were several incidents in this attempt to escape which if possible to describe now would make engrossing reading. However, Saunderson found himself back at the old place under guard. The next day the other two who shared in the enterprise were also brought in.

"That night," he said, "several guards came and took us out of our cells, first Wood, then Christopher and lastly myself. One man beat us with a piece of wire cable and another meanwhile held something over our mouths so that we could not shout. There was a sergeant in charge of the men who did this. We were sent to Munster for trial and were sentenced to four days' imprisonment. At the trial we had an interpreter and we made the complaint about the beating. When I came out of prison I had to wear a letter E on my clothes, showing that I had attempted to escape.

Laid Fresh Plans.

"Sometime later this was removed and I then volunteered for another working party. I took an Englishman's place on a farm. I was there six weeks. There was also a man of the Royal Fusiliers and we made it up to have another go at escaping. Then one day our chance came. We worked along six days, hiding in the day-time behind hedges in woods and in empty houses. We had plenty of food. When we were walking along we passed a German officer cycling, and another time, close to the frontier, we were taken into a guard house. The guards thought we were Dutch and let us pass. We got into a deep wood and when we came out we found ourselves across the frontier. We first learned this by going up to a church and reading notices on the door which showed us that we were out of Germany. The Dutch watch handed us over to superior authorities. We were then transferred to the British consul's care who sent us home. I am all right myself and so was my friend of the Fusiliers. He belongs to Lambeth."

Private Saunderson added that the Dutch could not have been more kind to them. He thinks there is no doubt that the German common people are pretty near starvation. They treat Canadians just like Englishmen, in fact they don't recognize any difference, but they often ask how it was that Canadians wanted to come such a distance to fight when not compelled to do so.

Defied Their Captors.

One day while he was in captivity there came a call for a party of prisoners to work on the Russian front. An English sergeant said to the Germans: "If you think these fellows will help you do anything to beat the Russians you might as well kill them right off here, because they won't."

Saunderson believes that the project of taking these prisoners to work at the front on the Russian lines was accordingly abandoned. French prisoners, he says, are treated much more leniently than English. Parcels from England, he is sure, reach those to whom they are directed. They are opened in the presence of the man to whom they are addressed. The Russians formerly were badly off for food, but now that English prisoners are looked after so well by those at home they get a lot of help indirectly. All prisoners are most ready to share what they have directly.

CLOSING EXERCISES AT ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE

The Twelve Graduates Were Attended by Four-Year-old "Angels."

CARRIED GREAT BOUQUETS

Crowning Ceremony Was Performed by Right Rev. Mgr. Whelan.

The closing exercises of the senior school of St. Joseph's College were charmingly carried out yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the institution, the platform of which was fairly banked with many handsome floral offerings. The twelve graduates gowned in white and carrying great bouquets of white bloom and maiden-hair fern were attended by wee four-year-old "angels" and occupied the front of the stage, the two hundred girls in black uniform with white collars and cuffs forming a striking background..

A musical program under the direction of Signor Carboni was well carried out, the part song, Barcarolle, from "Les Contes d' Hoffmann" and the "Chorus of Victory" from the "Legend of Eloisa," being outstanding features. Other numbers were "The Old Road to Paradise," a reading given by Lucie Ashbrook and the Concerto in G minor by Mendelssohn at two pianos by Marie McNulty and Lucie Ashbrook.

The ceremony of crowning the graduates was performed by Right Rev. Mgr. Whelan, Right Rev. Mgr. Kidd, president of St. Augustine's Seminary; Rev. R. McBrady, C.S.B. of St. Michael's College, and a large number of the diocesan clergy were among the large audience present.

The graduates were: Madeline Burns, B.A., Toronto; Mary Zita Nolan, Toronto; Frances Walsh, Loretto; Nora Irene Travers, Sudbury; Lucie Collins Ashbrook, Washington, Pa.; Anne Margaret Acres, St. Catharines; Estelle O'Neil, North Bay; Helen Barry, Loretto; Marie Estelle McNulty, St. Catharines; Augustine Kelly, Buckingham, Que.; Anna MacKerrow, Toronto; Mildred L. McCrohan, Toronto.

The valedictory was read by Mildred McCrohan. It was announced that the twenty-five students from the College who had tried the university and departmental examinations had all been successful.

BRAN Acts as a Broom

Bran's roughness serves to sweep. The bran way is Nature's way to relieve and prevent constipation. Ask your physician.

From most modern foods the bran has been removed. Hence, sallow, constipated people.

Kellogg's Bran (COOKED)

is steam-cooked and sealed in a wax-wrapped package. The cooking makes the bran taste better. You can serve it direct from the package instead of having to go to the bother of preparing bread, muffins, etc.

A twenty-five cent package will last about six weeks.

Good grocers sell it.

Morrison, No. 606, 5th Engineers, displayed conspicuous gallantry. He laid wires to blow up the enemy's post about 20 yards from the enemy's trench. With a lance-corporal he carried and laid charges and when he found himself unable to explode them he returned for instantaneous fuses. He relaid the charges and then exploded them.

Corp. Oxley, No. 5447, 1st Engineers, displayed conspicuous gallantry, courage and resource thruout the campaign, notably when putting positions in a state of defence under fire.

Company Sergt.-Major Patterson, No. 71860, 27th Battalion, by consistent good work and devotion to duty. He has set a fine example of cool courage on several occasions. Corp. Platts, No. 45034, 1st Engineers, displayed conspicuous gallantry, notably when after a dangerous enterprise. For the rest of the night he carried wounded men from exposed positions and set a fine example.

Phone in Foe's Trenches.

Pte. Preston, No. 2177, 7th Battalion, for conspicuous gallantry on several occasions when he established a telephone station in the enemy's trenches during an attack with an attacking party. He previously volunteered to go in as a bomber.

Pte. Robertson, No. 69811, 26th Battalion. When the signallers dug-out was demolished by shell during a heavy bombardment he stuck to his telephone, altho his left leg was blown off and right leg fractured.

Lance-Corp. Robertson, No. 110482, 5th Mounted Rifles, went out in view of the enemy under heavy shell and rifle fire and successfully established communications using the shell hole for a telephone station.

Sergt.-Major Smith, No. 40549, for consistent good work as battery sergeant-major and coolness under fire all the time.

LAWYERS FAVOR WORLD SUGGESTION

Express Hope for All Registry Offices in New Building.

NO EFFORT TO AGREE

"County Suspicious and City Indifferent," Says Angus MacMurchy.

Several members of the bar called up The World yesterday to express the hope that something might be done to bring the city and county authorities together and secure space for all the registry offices in the new big building near Osgoode Hall. It will be remembered that the York County Bar Association took an active part in persuading the civic authorities to provide suitable facilities for the registry offices. Angus MacMurchy who was president of the association at that time said to The World reporter yesterday:

"Our association went to a great deal of trouble and considerable expense to get all the registry offices suitably housed in one place. We sent to American cities and collected a great deal of information. Naturally we hoped that the county registry office would be given accommodation in the new building, but it seemed impossible to get the city and county authorities together. It was not a question of terms but simply that the parties made no effort to agree. The county was suspicious and the city indifferent."

Mr. MacMurchy pointed out that a good deal of the city work is now being done at the county registry office on East Richmond street, where all deeds, mortgages and other conveyances for property in North Toronto and West Toronto, are taken. When the Toronto registrars get into the new building they will have to take over this work and there will not be so much work left for the county officials to do. Indeed the amount of space required for the county registry would not be large. A two hundred acre farm will probably furnish less work for conveyance and for registry purposes that would half an acre of land in the city.

Great Public Service.

"The World would be doing a great public service," Mr. MacMurchy continued, "if it brings the city and county together. They should have been brought together two years ago, but the provincial government for some reason did not feel inclined to exert any pressure."

William J. Hill, registrar for the County of York, seen in his office on the corner of Richmond and Bertl streets, said there could be no doubt that having the city and county offices in separate buildings meant a great deal of inconvenience. Scarcely a day passed, he said, but that people with instruments to file had to be sent from one office to the other. Just now the city and county offices happened to be on the same street, but it will be more difficult to send people who come to the wrong office to the right address after the new building opens on Albert street.

Solicitors and others who have to search titles are indignant at the failure of the city and county to get together. One lawyer yesterday said the city and county reminded him of two children making faces at one another. Mr. Hill thought it a pity that all registry offices could not be in the building, but added:

"Of course it is not my province to discuss questions of policy. I can only say that the public would be greatly convenienced by having all the registry offices in the same building."

Fears Nothing Doing.

Property Commissioner Chisholm was hurrying to an important committee meeting when accosted by The World man at the city hall yesterday afternoon, but promised to discuss the question at some other time.

"I fear, however," said Mr. Chisholm, "that nothing can be done. The city wanted the county to come in with us and pay its share, but our proposition was not accepted. You know the building cost over half a million dollars."

The World believes that Mr. Chisholm's estimate is not far out of the way, and that the new registry building, including real estate, represents an outlay of $600,000. The proposal that the county pay $10,000 a year rent must have been based on the theory that the county should pay one-third of the entire cost of the premises. That such a rental would be outlandish under the circumstances city officials will probably admit. The city, however, seems resentful over the county's refusal to enter into some agreement at an earlier date, and the county, one gentleman said, is still sore over the way it was stung in the city-hall-and-court-house deal. There is no reason to doubt, however, that an agreement could be reached if representatives of the city and county would come together.

Cannot the city afford to make the first advance?

MARY McQUOID GOES BACK TO TROUT CREEK

Mary McQuoid, of Trout Creek, who figured in the arrest of Joseph Baisitie on a charge of abduction a few days ago, reappeared in Toronto again yesterday, and was arrested by the chief of police of Trout Creek, who was on business here, and who recognized her when he saw her at the corner of Church and King streets. The girl was taken back to Trout Creek, where she will be held as a material witness against Baisitie.

INJURED BY FALL.

Elgin Bell, 15 Earnbridge avenue, while painting a sign for the Ruddy Company at 264 Spadina avenue, yesterday afternoon, fell from a scaffold, sustaining minor bruises and a severe shaking-up. He was taken to the General Hospital in the police ambulance.
