Father Vaughan on Present-Day Morals.

Asked by a representatives of the Bristol (England) News, what he thought of modern tendencies in England including the abuse of Sunday (in connection with which the Bristol petition against Sunday motors was mentioned), Father Vaughan said: "I think the modern Sunday in this country is what I always said it would come to. It is the swing of the pendulum, protesting against and breaking from the old English Sabbath, which used to be the terrible and trying day in all the week for Protestants.

Sunday as it Has Become.

"Do I think people ought to be allowed to play games on that day? Of course as a Catholic I think people ought to go to church on Sunday and re-create their souls, and they ought to have opportunity on Sundays to re-create their bodies. My idea of a Sunday is of going to Mass together and going out for amusement together, whether you have a carriage, a motor or what not.

"Of course, when I was a boy we were not allowed to play the piano or sing songs on a Sunday, else our neighbors—our Protestant neighbors—in the West End would have been shocked and scandalized. Now we are shocked and scandalized by them, for not five per cent. of them go to church on Sunday. There pews are empty, but their cars are full, and for servants, Sunday has become the most busy day of the week. It is a succession of meals, followed by bridge and motors and tangos, and what not.

"The truth of the matter is: what is wrong with England is that it is wrong with God. I saw the other day over a Wesleyan Chapel the motto 'Get right with God.' Over mine I put 'Keep right with God.' I hope that the people of Bristol—a lovely people; kind, affable, industrious, and enterprising—may have abundant success in all their business undertakings, and in their domestic and social life. But let them be sure that as in their natural life they cannot get on without the sun, so neither can they in spiritual life get on without God.

Modern Music-Hall Morals

Next asked what he thought about the present music-hall state of morality. Father Vaughan replied: "I think it every bit as good as we can reasonably expect in a country which, while it calls itself Christian, has turned Christ out of its schoolrooms and slammed the door in His face. When you give notice to a teacher it implies that you no longer require his teaching; and when you tell Christ you don' want Him in your schoolrooms you are making it clear to Him you don't want His Christian morality.

"If we are to improve the morality of the country it is no use beginning with the platform of the theatre; we must start with the nursery of the home. We must wipe out, as far as may be, divorces; we must cultivate children, and they must be taught their earliest lessons in Christianity in that wonderful, lovely schoolroom—the mother's arms. Until we can make up our minds what to think about Christ, I do not see the good of wasting our time about His morality.

"Lay morality is like a pretty starched frock on a child; but in bad weather it is worse than no frock at all. It shrinks, grows limp, and the colors run. Lay morality is fair-weather morality only, and in a wretched climate like this we are trying to live in and on it. It is a poor affair, contemptible beyond words."

The Boy and His Fists.

"What is your opinion upon modern sports and games?" was the third question put to Father Vaughan, and he answered: "Why as an Englishman, I think both games and sport are part of our belongings. If we have any good in our composition we owe it in great measure to that English love of outdoor games and all kinds of sport. They are both great constituent elements in the building of character.

"If a boy is to defend his King and country in later life, he must start with defending himself and holding his own with gloves, or, if necessary, without them. He must realize himself; stand on his own feet and under his own hat, and make himself understood and heard and—if necessary—even felt as a living member of the great organism called England.

"I feel very unhappy about the way we are losing games in competition with other nations. Say what you will it is most humiliating to be beaten by a Frenchman, and to be beaten at polo, golf, and tennis by Americans, not to mention nearly a score of other thrashings in different fields of sport and action.

Is England to Follow in Games?

"We started games for all the world, and it used to be "We lead." But now we have changed that cry, for we follow. Of course, it is very fine to learn how to take a beating; but it is finer still to know how to bear ourselves under victory and triumph.

"I am afraid one reason why we lose in all sorts of games is that instead of playing the game we are watchers of the game—lookers-on. The reason why we are so enthusiastic about football and the rest is not because we are lovers of sport, but because we are lovers of the money we have on it. It is a gambling transaction, and just as the proprietors of the ground are interested in the gate money so are we: men, women, boys and girls absorbed wholly in the bet on the game.

"We get beaten by people who have made up their minds to win. We make the excuse that we play the game and are more interested in the sport than in the result. That may be all very fine, but so long as we are tethered to those views we have no business to compete with others who do not share them, because we are only going in to make a mess of our country.

"Personally, I think that from the international horse show down to a boxing match there ought to be some test to guarantee that England is not going to be made a show of when competing for the prizes of sport with other nations."

Christmas and New Year.

Before leaving, our representative asked Father Bernard Vaughan what he thought of the modern Christmas, remembering Mr. Bernard Shaw's charges of gluttony, etc., of what he described as the so terrible season in England that he had fled from its horrors to Jamaica. Father Vaughan said: "I think of the modern Christmas as I do of the modern Sunday. We have forgotten the very meaning of Christmas. Instead of going to Bethlehem, we go to Babylon, and our Christmas time means being clothed in purple and fine linen, and feasting sumptuously every day. If we cannot do this we try to, and then we are surprised that we do not enter into the New Year laden with blessings from the Holy Child on Mary's knee. My idea of Christmas is the overflow of our joy at the birth of our Divine Saviour. That is the only meaning of Christmas."

Asked finally what would be his New Year resolution for England, Father Vaughan gave the following:—"A resolution to realize that the very least religion you can do with to police your soul is the recognition of a personal God and an immortal soul. Once you realize that you can say with the publican throughout the year: 'God be merciful to me, a sinner.' And that will see you right through."

Don't Gossip—And Be Interssting.

A certain interesting young woman who detests gossip takes the following method of stopping it:

"Oh, Susan," a gossiping friend will begin, "have you heard—"

"That tomorrow is probably going to be cooler?" interrupts Susan, good-naturedly. "Yes; isn't that interesting. I like cool weather."

Not yet squelched, the friend will go on: "But as I was coming here I met Mrs. Brown and she told me that Jane—"

"No, I don't like mission furniture," Susan will interrup', firmly. "I like mahogany with yellow walls and white woodwork. I was just reading a very interesting book on interiors that gave me some new ideas about decorating. Would you care to see it?"

And with that Susan will trot out her new book and gradually turn the conversation into interesting but impersonal channels.

Perhaps Susan carries her dislike of gossip a little to far. Perhaps some persons would say that Susan is rude to interrupt the chatter of her gossiping friends. But, say what they will Susan has the right idea.

Gossip is interesting. Few will deny that. But gossip is not worth while. And even if you must go to extremes to break yourself or your family or your friends off the habit of gossiping, you should preserve in a self-imposed task to lessen the number of gossipers in the world.

People cannot stop gossiping suddenly, unless they have great self-control and a strong, impelling purpose. They must gradually accustom themselves to the change. They must give themselves something else to think about.

Harmless and friendly talk about one's neighbors and acquaintances is all very well; and to talk of one's friends is the most natural and laudable thing in the world. Such kindly talk can do no harm and often does good.

But when you find yourself gossiping—when you find yourself repeating unkind things, or putting an odd and suspicious light on things your friends have done, even if you do not repeat your suspicions—then you should take yourself rightly in hand.

Refuse to listen to unkind gossip. At first your gossiping cronies will wonder at the change in you, and will not quite realize what it means. But gradually they will realize that you have left their chattering ranks and they will stop pursuing you.

And before very long you will actually have joined the organization of non-gossipers. Gossip will be distasteful to you and you will avoid it from taste as well as from principle.

Astoria, Oregon, January 8—The German bark Eilbek arrived early today from Santa Rosalia, Mexico, in ballast. She brought Captain W. Marsters, his wife and two young daughters and sixteen officers and men of the British bark Baltle Abbey, burned at sea on December 28th last. The party abandoned the vessel after her coal cargo had been burning for more than a week. After three days in a lifeboat the castaways were picked up by the Eilbek. Bad weather caused considerable suffering, but all were well on arrival here. They were picked up in Lat. 130.30 west, long. 64 north.

The battle-Abbey was owned by Hindrolph and Co., of San Francisco, and was registered under the British flag. She was of 1463 tons burden, built of steel, and launched in 1875. The ship's papers and instruments were saved. She was out of Newcastle, N.S.W., bound for Vancouver, B. C.

Was Troubled With Weak Back.

Weak back is caused by weak kidneys, and it is hard for a woman to look after her household duties when she is suffering from a weak and aching back, for no woman can be strong and well when the kidneys are out of order.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the weak, aching back, and prevent any and all of the serious kidney troubles which are liable to become deep rooted into the system if not attended to at once.

Mrs. Augustus Jinks, Demorestville, Ont., writes:—"For several years I had been troubled with weak back and kidneys. I had terrible dizzy headaches, and could not sleep at night. A friend of mine asked me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I did so, and in a short time was cured."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c. per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

"No," replied Mr. Camrox. "He called to discuss a marriage settlement. He didn't ask for your hand. He asked for my pocketbook."

There is nothing harsh about Laxa Liver Pills. They cure Constipation, Dispepsia, Sick Headache, and Bilious Spells without griping, purging or sickness. Price 25 cts.

"Smith made a lot of money out of his penmanship school, I hear."

"Yes, business was flourishing."

Minard's Liniment cures Neuralgia.

What do you suppose makes so many persons drowsy in church? Lack of interest? Not necessarily. It may be lack of pure air in the building. Why not make it your business to see if the latter is not true? If it is, ask some one in authority to alter the condition.

HAD INDIGESTION For Over Ten Years.

Weakening the body will never remove dyspepsia or indigestion, on the contrary, all efforts should be to maintain and increase the strength.

Burdock Blood Bitters will do this, and at the same time enable you to partake of all the wholesome food required, without fear of any unpleasant after results.

Mr. Henry P. White, Surretteville, N.B., writes:—"I have been troubled with Indigestion for more than ten years; tried several doctors, and different medicines, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. I have taken one bottle, and I feel that I am cured at last. I can now do the same hard work I could before I was taken sick."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
